The Street Performs.
When You're Dead.
Our Stick-Up Knights.
Mr. Mitchell Moves Up.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WALL STREET performed as usual.

Money opened at 10 per cent and stocks fell from one to ten points. Later money went to 15 per cent. Then stocks went up. Explain that!

BEWILDERED victims of our national usury system, so ably encouraged by the Federal Reserve Bank, ask, "How long will high money last?"

Answer: "As long as lenders can make it last."

MONKEYS in the forest drink water contentedly. In civilization you give them milk and they won't drink water. Give them beer, they won't drink milk. Give them whisky, they won't touch beer.

THAT'S the way with some bankers. They were happy with 4 per cent call money. Now they insist on whisky, which is 20 per cent, and they will get it if they can.

With the federal reserve helping them, and a few congressmen contributing their share of silliness, the usury probably will last.

MYRON T. HERRICK, United States ambassador is dead. The French plan a magnificent state funeral, "finest ever given to a foreigner on French soil." The Ambassador's body will return to America on a French man-of-war.

All complimentary and pleasing. But how little good it does when you are dead. A coffin of pine boards, a few friends to speak well of you, would do as well.

OUR "stick-up" men are as numerous and interesting as knights errant in old days of chivalry.

Mary Johnson, Chicago stenographer lady, was "stuck-up." The bandit took her purse, hat, coat, then said, "That's a pretty dress, take it off." She stood shivering.

ALONG came a young gentleman in a limousine. He took her in, saying, "Girlie you had ought to have learned something from that other fellow. I'm a 'stick up' man, too. Look at these guns." He showed two "automatics," but, remarking that she had had enough for one night, took her home.

The great American nation sooner or later will have to do something about the crime tidal wave born of prohibition, bootlegging, easy money and graft.

NEW YORK'S Guaranty Trust and National Bank of Commerce united, with about two billions of resources, becoming "the biggest financial institution in the country." It was suggested here that Charles E. Mitchell, head of the National City Bank, wouldn't stand that long.

He stood it no longer than yesterday, when he announced absorption of the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, putting his bank's resources at the top of the heap.

BACK in the shadow sits George F. Baker's gigantic bank, the First National. Mr. Baker has individual depositors with more money than the ordinary "big bank" has, all together.

Perhaps he will decide to swallow something and become bigger than anybody.

If you have good bank stocks, don't sell.

CHANG, fighting the so-called Nationalist government in China, lost 2,000 men yesterday. To the western world, that means as little as though a scullery maid had killed 2,000 flies with one blow of a fly-killer.

NEWS from Nairobi tells of terrible famine conditions in the Belgian Congo. Thousands of natives are dead of hunger.

Women and children struggling along forest roads through fever-infested districts, fall by the wayside and are eaten by hyenas before they are dead. Not a pleasant picture.

To the rest of the world that also is only a chapter in the history of fly-killing. The country reads and forgets. We are not our brother's keeper, in China or the Congo, or for that matter even in the slum next door.

NEWS from China that does interest this and all other civilized nations is the fact that Shanghai has 1,000 cases of meningitis. Nine foreigners are dead in the epidemic.

DISEASES that start in Asia often spread over the world, as Asiatic cholera and bubonic plague have spread in recent times, and the horrible "black death," killing half the population in the middle ages.

Natives dying in aimless wars or in local famines, interest us little, but natives sending plagues to fill our graveyards interest us much.

PRESIDENT HOOVER intends to get things done in addition to talking about them. Among other things, he proposes to end the waste of the national oil resources. He will confer tomorrow with the American Petroleum Institute. He intends to save foolish oil producers from themselves by forcing a reduction of 15 per cent in oil production.

HILL TOP BANK TELLER JAILED IN SHORTAGE

Kenneth H. McKnight, 28, was a prisoner in the county jail today charged with misapplication and embezzlement of $10,000 from the Hill Top Savings and Trust Company, where he had been employed as a bookeeper and note-teller.

McKnight, who waived hearing before Alderman Thomas D. Jones, was unable to raise $10,000 bail.

He had been employed at the bank for eight years. Unmarried, he lived with his parents in Mt. Oliver.

His arrest was first announced today by the State Banking Department in Harrisburg, whose officials said he had signed a confession. The bank's loss is covered by insurance, the announcement said.

"Fitz," Ocean Flier, Here to Take Post

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP).—Col. James C. Fitzmaurice, Irish pilot who last year flew across the Atlantic in the Bremen with Capt. Herman Koehl and the late Baron von Huenefeld, arrived today on the liner Dresden to serve as technical adviser in establishing a new airport on Long Island.

Col. Fitzmaurice brought a copy of a poem which the baron wrote just before his death. The last line read: "My German land, dying I think of thee."

Fitzmaurice said his visit here was the first of his aviation ventures as a private citizen. He recently retired from the Irish Free State Air Force.

Chicago at Polls; 'Thompson,' Issue

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP.)—Mayor Thompson's "America first" platform and his control of the City Council faced another test in today's aldermanic "runoff" election in 11 wards. The Mayor himself has taken no active part in the campaign, but the attacks on his administration by candidates supported by the Municipal Voters' League had sharpened the issue.

Pre-election violence broke out yesterday in the Thirty-sixth Ward, where three men were arrested on charges of slugging newsboys.

Chaplin, Recovered, Resumes on Picture

BAIL ALLOWED RACKETEERS

Four convicted members of the South Side rum ring and Martin Grady, of the "Strip," who was convicted of evading income tax, today won temporary freedom on bail pending appeals for new trial.

From Philadelphia came word that the United States Circuit Court of Appeals had allowed bail for the defendants, who have been in jail since March 1, when they were sentenced by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar. The defendants involved, Michael, Gussie and Sam Meyers, James Swift, and Grady had been refused bail by Judge McVicar. The South Siders were indicted in the government's probe of alleged political booze rings.

Putnam, Publisher, 85 Today and at Work

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP.)—Major George Haven Putnam, who is 85 years old today, is the active head of a publishing house, on the job daily. If he had not had swamp fever in Louisiana twice and had not been in Libby prison, a doctor has informed him, he might live to be an old man. For recreation he changes from one form of work to another.

$37,500,000 Interest Is Paid by Germans

BERLIN, April 2.—(AP.)—The first half yearly instalment of interest in industrial debentures for the fifth reparations year was handed today to the agent general for reparations. The amount was 150,000,000 marks (approximately $37,500,000).

CANNIBAL-INFESTED WILDS CLOAK FATE OF 4 FLIERS

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 2.—(AP.)—Search was being made today by air and water in the Australian bush for the missing plane Southern Cross and four men.

Absence of word from Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, Charles T. Ulm and their two companions, who radioed Sunday they were coming down in a rainstorm 100 miles east of Wyndham, Western Australia, led to anxiety.

While there was considerable difference of opinion as to where to look for the aviators, who were en route from Sydney to England, there was a feeling they were forced down near either Drysdale Mission Station or at the Port George Mission on the Prince Regent River.

In either event, the country is inhabited largely only by natives, many of whom are unfriendly and reputedly cannibalistic.

It is believed the radio of the plane was put out of commission when they landed.

L. WANER'S ROMANCE REVEALED

(Copyright, 1929, by Sun-Telegraph.)

Lloyd Waner, the half of the famous Waner act that has forsaken the holdout ranks, has been signed by Dan Cupid as well as Barney Dreyfuss, it was learned exclusively today by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The young Pirate outfielder is engaged to marry an Oakland girl, and the charming bride-to-be, Miss Frances Mae Snyder, daughter of Mrs. Lydia Snyder, of 407 Oakland avenue, reluctantly admits it is all true.

Although Lloyd has been engaged since he made a flying visit to Pittsburgh from his Ada (Okla.) home in January, the matter was intended to be kept a secret until the Pirates returned to Pittsburgh to open their home season, April 24, but friends just simply couldn't keep the romance to themselves, and, now that the cat is out of the bag, so to speak, formal announcement may be expected any day.

"Yes, it is true," Miss Snyder admitted to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph today, "and I am very happy, but I do not care to say anything further at this time. You see, Lloyd has kept his promise not to reveal our secret until a later date, and I do not want to say anything about it, either. How in the world did you find out about it, anyway?"

WEARS LLOYD'S RING

"That's a pretty engagement ring you are wearing," the reporter said.

Miss Snyder flushed up and admitted the diamond solitaire was the one Lloyd had placed on her finger in January.

"Yes, it is a beauty," she said, "and I'm very proud of it, but please don't press me further on the subject. Lloyd is the one who is in the limelight. Why don't you ask him about it?"

Miss Snyder is a pretty girl of 20, with dark brown bobbed hair and blue eyes. It is understood a party has been arranged for her

Invalid Seeking Brother Killed By Train

Seeking his brother who had failed to return home after investigating a light seen in their garage, Nicholas Maratic, 27, of 801 Railroad street, Versailles, ill for eight years, went in search, only to meet death under the wheels of a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train.

Burke Maratic, the brother, left his home to investigate a light in their garage across the railroad tracks. When he failed to return promptly the sick brother left to find out the cause of delay. Ten minutes after the train had passed, Burke Maratic found his brother's body on the rails a short distance from the station platform, the report to the coroner states.

LINDY ON WAY TO VISIT ANNE IN MEXICO

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., April 2.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off for Mexico City at 8:45 a. m. today to visit his fiancee, Anne Morrow.

The colonel said he expected to arrive in Mexico City by noon with normal flying conditions. His plane was checked over and refuelled while he ate breakfast.

It was believed he would make a non-stop flight to the Mexican capital.

The famous flier left Santa Monica, Cal., yesterday in his Curtiss biplane in such a hurry to return to his fiancee, after spending several weeks on the Pacific coast, that he did not pause for rest or sleep.

He reached El Paso, Tex., at 5:30 p. m. yesterday and pushed on to Kelly Field, San Antonio, where he landed at 1:41 o'clock this morning. Forty minutes later he took off in the dark for Brownsville, arriving here at 7:50 a. m.

Park Golf Course Will Open Saturday

The city golf course in Schenley Park will be opened next Saturday, about a month earlier than in previous years, according to announcement by Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works. Lang's statement was in reply to Harry A. Little, who made a request at a Council meeting last week for an early opening of the golf links.

BOMBS HIT ARIZONA TOWN

NACO, Ariz., April 2.—(AP.)—The American town of Naco was bombed today, apparently unintentionally, and Ferry Baker, 35, of Alliance, O., was wounded when a Mexican rebel airplane dropped four missiles in an attack upon the federal stronghold of Naco, Sonora, on the Mexican side of the line.

Two of the four bombs fell on American soil. Many windows in the business district here were shattered. The other two bombs fell in Naco, Sonora.

CONTINUED ATTACK

The attack was a continuation of the raids started last Sunday by rebel aviators under Gen. Fausto Topete, governor of Sonora. Thus far 19 bombs have been dropped in three days. Up to today the casualties on the Mexican side were two killed and three or four wounded.

American infantrymen have been stationed here for several days with instructions to prevent, if possible, any damage on the American side of the border.

Naco is held by about 1,200 federals under Gens. Lucas Gonzales and Augustino Olachea. Topete's attacking forces several miles south of the city are said to number upwards of 2,000.

VICTIM HIT ON HEAD

Baker was attended by a physician at the United States immigration office. He was reported to have been struck in the head by bomb fragments. There also was an unverified report that a boy was hurt during the attack, but he could not be located in the confusion which immediately followed.

The State Department, in the absence of any official report of the bombing, indicated that Maj. Gen. Lassiter, commander of the Eighth Corps area of the army at San Antonio would promptly take steps, probably ordering some units

Kidnaped Girl Found In Hut, Man Caught

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—(AP.)—Tied to a bedpost in a hut in an isolated spot in New Jersey, Rita Carulo, 14-year-old schoolgirl, who was abducted more than three weeks ago, was rescued last night by detectives. The girl was weak from lack of food and was near collapse when her rescuers cut the cords that bound her. They arrested Gaetano Aldonido, 48, who, the girl said, had carried her away in an automobile, beaten her and held her prisoner.

DE KING RAIDER TELLS STORY

AURORA, Ill., April 2.—(INS.)—Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith, who shot and killed Mrs. Lillian De King in a liquor raid upon the woman's home, on the witness stand at the official inquest here today claimed he shot the woman by accident.

"She had a pistol leveled at me," he said. "I backed up to get out of range and somehow, I don't know, it isn't very clear to me, my shotgun went off.

"After that nothing was clear. I heard another shot and I felt a sting in my leg. I saw the little boy on the floor with a revolver in his hand."

Smith's story was told to the jury of six men from his cot in the hospital where he is slowly recovering from the bullet wound inflicted by Gerald De King, 12-year-old son of the slain woman. Coroner Viercke presided.

Smith was asked the usual formal questions and was then asked to tell the story of the raid.

"Treadwell and Anderson, two deputies, told me that night to get a bullet-proof vest and get a shotgun and go with them. I

128 TO 73 VOTE FOR RAISE

By W. I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, April 2.—The House today passed the Sterling bill raising the gasoline tax from three to four cents per gallon.

The vote was 128 for and 73 against. The bill provides that the additional cent will be in effect for one year.

The Allegheny County delegation voted 13 to 12 against the bill, with two absent.

Sterling explained that his bill, in addition to raising the tax, changes the method of collecting the gas tax. It requires that the dealers be bonded and provides that they be compensated for their work in collecting and forwarding the tax.

SCORES POLITICIANS

Representative Albert B. Davidson, Allegheny, was the first to take the floor against the bill.

"Why does a certain gentleman not connected with the government sit inconference to tell us who to tax and what to tax?" he asked.

"I don't belive it is right, nor is it right for the executive to try to dictate legislative functions."

Davidson declared he did not believe the additional cent necessary.

Representative Carl C. Baldridge, Allegheny, followed Davidson in the attack against the increase levy.

"It is a hardship on the motorist, the truck owner, the farmer," he charged.

In the course of the debate Senator M. G. Leslie entered the House and took a seat among the Allegheny members.

TAX SUIT LOST BY DU PUYS

Herbert DuPuy, former chairman of the board of directors, Crucible Steel Company, and his wife, Amy H. DuPuy, lost their suit for a $2,400,000 income tax refund, according to word received today at the Federal Building from Washington.

The United States Court of Claims upheld the government, revenue officials here were advised, in an opinion handed down yesterday. The DuPuys sued to recover part of their income taxes paid for 1916 to 1919, inclusive, along with interest.

The government, represented by Attorney John A. McCann, of this city, contended that the DuPuys had settled their liabilities in 1920 by an offer in the office of Revenue Collector D. B. Heiner to pay $1,722,016.81 to cover taxes and $250,000 to cover penal liability, which was accepted by the government, and then sought to withdraw the offer. The case was argued in Washington, January 8.

Coolidge Tells Why Silence Was Golden During Presidency

HEREWITH is presented the third installment of Part One of Mr. Coolidge's Own Story, which appeared in April Cosmopolitan. In the preceding two installments, printed in this newspaper yesterday and the day before, the former President has described his early political career, the death of President Harding, his background of experience upon assuming the reins of the presidency and his abhorrence of waste as a moral wrong, a conception given to him by his father.

By CALVIN COOLIDGE,
Former President of the United States.

WHEN I became President it was perfectly apparent that the key by which the way could be opened to national progress was constructive economy.

Only by the use of that policy could the high rates of taxation, which were retarding our development and prosperity, be diminished, and the enormous burden of our public debt be reduced.

Without impairing the efficient operation of all the functions of the government, I have steadily and without ceasing pressed on in that direction.

This policy has encouraged enterprise, made possible the highest rate of wages which have ever existed, returned large profits, brought to the homes of the people the greatest economic benefits they ever enjoyed and given to the country as a whole an unexampled era of prosperity. This well-being of my country has given me the chief satisfaction of my administration.

One of my most pleasant memories will be the friendly relations which I have always had with the representatives of the press in Washington. I shall always remember that at the conclusion of the first regular conference I held with them at the White House office they broke into hearty applause.

I suppose that in answering their questions I had been

'VANISHING REDMEN' HERE TO BE BANISHED BY COUNTY

The County Commissioners today decided to eliminate all Indians from the county payroll.

The Indians concerned are those who have been installed in the county parks since Commissioner E. V. Babcock thought it would be a good idea to lend a touch of the natural to those wide open spaces.

The Indians haven't been very stable. No sooner, it seemed, were they brought from Montan reservations at the county's expnse than they developed homesickness. It has been rather expensive business.

Today, Paul Riis, director of parks, told the commissioners that Chief Peter Red Horn, of the South Park, was sick and wanted to go home—couldn't stand the climate.

"Oh " moved Babcock, "let's let them all go home; they're too much trouble."

The motion received unanimous support.

So Peter Red Horn, his squaw, Susan eWasel Short Face Red Horn and the four little Red Horns are going home.

Next fall, when their contract expires, the Indian family in the North Park will be given train tickets back to the reservation.

"It's just as I said in the first place," Commissioner C. C. McGovern reminded." Eventually we'll have to get our Indians from the Strip."

SMUGGLING CHARGES COLLAPSE

NEW YORK, April 2.—United States Attorney Charles Tuttle after investigating reports that Congressman William M. Morgan, of Ohio, had brought four bottles of liquor into the country from Panama, announced today that no one had seen any liquor and that the Morgan baggage had been passed unopened.

The accusations against Morgan "All came down to talk between custom officers and Mr. Morgan," Tuttle said.

CASE FALLS FLAT

Tuttle's statement, which was interpreted by legal experts as making the case against Morgan fail flat, was given out following the questioning of eight members of the customs service, including Inspector Louis Crawford and James McCabe, who examined the Ohio congressman's baggage.

Tuttle also declared that Mrs. Hall, the wife of a North Dakota congressman, had nothing to do with the matter under investigation and that her baggage had been "examined and found lawful and in accordance with declaration."

Tuttle said that he issued his statement "in order that erroneous ideas as to the facts may not be current."

MICHAELSON TRIAL SET

CHICAGO, April 2.—(INS.)—Congressman M. A. Michaelson, who had been sought for three days on charges of smuggling liquor into the country, will go on trial at Key West during the Federal Court term opening on May 6, it was announced today following the Congressman's surrender to federal authorities here.

As the special session of Congress probably will still be in progress when Federal Court convenes at Key West, there is a question as to whether Michaelson can claim congressional immunity and thus obtain a postponement.

TERMS CHARGES FALSE

Michaelson waived examination, posted four $500 bills for his bond and walked back out again.

The indictment had been returned in Jacksonville, Fla., and charged that a year ago Michaelson had used his "courtesy of the port" as a Congressman to smuggle liquor into Key West.

"I have been in Washington and just got in town," he said in reply to queries. "The charges against me are false and ridiculous. I never had any liquor in my possession."

didn't know where we were going."

"The told me Joe DeKing was causing trouble. They told me they had a warrant to search the house, but I never saw any. We got inside and I saw the boy. Then from a door I saw Joe with two guns in his hand.

"He said the first man to come in that room would be killed. I didn't want to shoot him so I thought the best thing to do would be to hit him over the head. I did and he dropped.

"I turned and saw Mrs. DeKing advancing from the other side of the room. She had a gun in her hand and was cursing me. I scrambled back to get out of the room and the gun went off. I didn't shoot on purpose."

After Smith's story the jurors filed into automobiles and went to Geneva to the Circuit Court where the inquest was to be resumed.

LLOYD WANER TO MARRY

friends at which the formal announcement is to be made.

The news out, however, the story of the romance of Miss Snyder and Waner, who is 23 and one of the brightest of the young stars in the major league firmament, was gleaned from her mother and friends of the family. It is one of love at first sight that has blossomed for more than a year during which time Paul Waner, older brother of Lloyd, who preceded him to Pittsburgh as a member of the Pirates, was married here. Paul still is holding out for a substantial increase in salary from the Pirates.

UNUSUAL MEETING

The love story of brother Lloyd and Miss Snyder goes back almost to the time Frances Mae arrived in Pittsburgh, in June, 1927, from Indiana, Pa., her former home. Her father was a florist there. He died six years ago, and, upon finishing her schooling at Indiana High School, Miss Snyder came to Pittsburgh to join her mother, who conducts a florist shop at 119 Atwood street. One day friends of the family brought Lloyd Waner to the Snyder home for a visit.

It was a case of love at first sight. The pair attended shows and parties, but preferred most to be alone in each other's company. Throughout last season their favorite pastime was taking automobile rides out into the country in the evenings. Both retain a preference for the country, in which they were reared.

LOVER OF ATHLETICS

Until she met Lloyd, Miss Snyder was not particularly interested in baseball. She played basketball and tennis and swam and liked to go hunting and fishing back in Indiana, and found Lloyd in harmony with her love for athletics and the outdoors, a love which was handed down to her from her father, who was an ardent sportsman.

Employed as a stenographer for the United States Casualty Company, Boulevard of the Allies, Frances Mae has been able to attend only the Saturday and holiday games at Forbes Field to see Lloyd play since their friendship began, but she has not missed any of these occasions.

Wedding plans are indefinite. Meanwhile, an indulgent world that loves lovers will beam on the romance of a big league star and his sweetheart to whom baseball stardom meant nothing until she met—well, the hero who made her the girl of his choice.

Movie Screen Used To Announce Troth

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP.)—The latest method for announcement of a social engagement is by movies. At a dinner dance, films depicted Miss Kathryn Coverly Fischer and William Musgrave Calder, Jr., son of a former United States senator, and gave the news about them.

NOBILE RESCUE 'FUN' FOR HERO

"Rescuing Gen. Umberto Nobile was for the fun of facing the dangers of the Arctic wastes," Capt. Einar Lundborg, Swedish aviator, who brought his plane down amidst snow and icebergs, declared in modestly describing here today his part in the dramatic episode of last summer.

"Of course, to save the Italian explorer was the real purpose, but the Swedish fliers took up the dangerous task for the sport of the adventure as well," the captain said.

Capt. Lundborg is a guest of the Swedish Central Committee of Pittsburgh, of which the Rev. J. V. Benson is chairman. He speaks tonight under the committee's auspices at Memorial Hall. The flier is accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Lundborg, and the party was greeted at the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie station by members of the committee. Ray Tucker and Ray Marlier, of the Pittsburgh Aero Club, and an Italian delegation headed by Vice Consul G. Giurato.

MINIMIZES FEAT

The blond aviator, whose name was flashed throughout the world for his daring, makes every effort to minimize the heroic efforts that have brought him fame.

"It must be understood that I did not find Gen. Nobile. An Italian flier had located him by radio the day before, but could not land. An observer and myself then followed my commander and finally located the isolated camp. My commander's plane was equipped with pontoons and my own with skiis, so it fell upon me to make the landing," Capt. Lundborg said.

"Yes, it was dangerous. You see, between these many icebergs there can be smaller ice formations, very deep snow and in some instances water. So I was forced to bring my plane to the little area and skim over it three or four times with my skiis just barely touching. This was to learn the conditions. While the opening was about 250 yards long, yet I could not utilize this space. I was forced to take the shorter side.

ONLY 17-YARD RUN

"In taking off with Nobile, I had about 17 yards for a run. It was difficult and dangerous. It was very rough and that was risky. But we did it safely. That is about all there is to the rescue," the captain concluded in his modest manner.

After a brief rest at the William Penn Hotel, Capt. Lundborg and his party were to be greeted by Mayor Charles H. Kline at the City-County Building and then be guests at the Aero Club luncheon at noon, at which Roy J. Wensley, inventor of the Televox mechanical man, was to demonstrate the latest feat of his invention whereby a pilot flying at night can automatically light airports.

A flight over the city from Rodgers Field was scheduled for the afternoon, with a dinner in the flier's honor scheduled at 6 o'clock by the Italian committee at the William Penn Hotel.

PLAN $400,000 AIRPORT OFF BUTLER PLANK ROAD

An airport and pilots' training school will be laid out on a site of 610 acres on the Butler Plank road at a cost of $400,000 by the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Comporation, it was announced today by the corporation's president, George R. Hann.

The plans were revealed at a banquet in Butler last night.

The site has been acquired and the work of grading the land and constructing necessary buildings will be started at once, it was announced. Present plans call for the erection of hangars, an administration building with class rooms, barracks and other necessary buildings. The field is scheduled for completion in June.

NEAR NIXON STATION

The site is near the Nixon station of the Butler Short Line, and is 45 minutes by auto from Pittsburgh. There are railroad terminal facilities nearby. Projected improvement of the Butler plank and Three Degree roads probably will increase its accessibility.

According to Col. Thurman H. Bane, head of the corporation's technical staff, the company has been surveying the landing field possibilities within a radius of 50 miles of Pittsburgh and has not found any site to equal the one selected. It is said also to have the approval of army aviation authorities.

BUTLER COUNTY AIDS

Business men and officials of the city and county of Butler have smoothed the way to development of the airport, which is to be designated the Pittsburgh-Butler Training Port. Butler County has vacated certain roads running across the site, and has promised to build new roads around it.

MELLON'S O. K. SPURS TAX CUT FIGHT

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, in his radio address Saturday favoring the lessening of tax burdens, gave an impetus to the movement for the downward revision of the federal tax on earned incomes.

Representative Guy E. Campbell, of Crafton, member of Congress from the Thirty-second district, today joined colleagues in the House who have given the movement their unqualified indorsement. Congressman Campbell expressed entire sympathy with the efforts of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers in sponsoring the undertaking for a reduction of taxes on professional people, salaried men and women and all wage earners.

In a telegram to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph today, Congressman Campbell said:

"I am in entire sympathy with your movement to reduce the tax on earned incomes. Such reduction will bring immeasurable benefits to a large group of deserving taxpayers who have borne a very liberal portion of federal taxes in the past.

EXPECTS REDUCTION

"Sincerely do I trust that the government finances permit a substantial reduction at the coming session of Congress.

"I feel greatly encouraged regarding the success of your efforts since Secretary Mellon indorsed the same in his radio talk Saturday night.

"I favor a maximum exemption and the lowest rates to all taxpayers dependent upon earned incomes. Your paper is to be commended for its efforts in behalf of so just a proposition, and I wish you success."

PROFESSOR SIGNS

Dr. J. H. James, professor of chemistry at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, was one of the petition signers received today.

"I wish I could add a new argument in favor of reducing the tax on earned incomes," he said, "but these have been covered again and again. It seems to be that the workers in all fields should be encouraged to create capital aside from the mere product of their brains and their hands. When they acquire property and other capital they will be more than willing to pay the tax on something more tangible than the income from their daily earnings, and the government will be just that much better off."

AREA'S ARMY CHIEF HERE

Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, Third Corps area army commander, made his first official visit to Pittsburgh today, devoting his time to meeting local division staff members and reserve officers. Accompanying him were his aide, Lieut. Joseph A. Cranston, and Col. O. S. Eskridge, recently appointed in charge of reserve activities in this area.

Gen. Sladen told of his interest in aviation and its part in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and National Guard. A noon luncheon was held in the Roosevelt Hotel by the Ninety-ninth Division staff and reserve officers of Western Pennsylvania. Tonight Gen. Sladen will be the guest of Col. Joseph H. Holmes at a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

State May Permit Bow and Arrow In Hunting

HARRISBURG, April 2.—(AP.)—If the Senate approves the Heffner bill, which passed the House last night, Pennsylvania sportsmen may hunt in the forests with the weapon of the Indians—the bow and arrow.

The gradual increase in the sport of archery prompted the proposed change in the game laws to make the use of the bow and arrow legal.

MOVIE CASHIERS SWINDLED

The newest racket, swindling girl movie cashiers by substituting slugs for quarters was exposed in Morals Court today.

On testimony of two girl cashiers two men were held for court charged with larceny by trick.

Jetta H. Gray, of 1504 Sarah street, cashier at the Colonial Theater, 2009 Carson street, caused the arrest of the three last night after she had been duped into giving currency in exchange for a roll of slugs.

Discovering the slugs, she ran to the street and caused the arrest of the alleged bunco man, who gave his name as Theodore Christinson, 30, of 908 Arch street. George Chapman and his wife, Sylvia, same address, were arrested later. Mrs. Chapman was later discharged.

Betty Smith, of 413 Arch street, cashier at the William Penn Theater, Isabella and Federal streets, testified she had been swindled out of $10 by Christinson.

2 GIRLS DEAD, 3 INJURED, BY GALE

The Pittsburgh district today cleared away the debris left by the 50-mile gale which carried death and ruin in its path yesterday.

Two school girls were killed, one in Patterson township, near Beaver Falls, and another in Newell, W. Va. Naomi Mallick, 7 had her skull crushed when a stone coping fell from the roof of the Patterson Township School. Margaret Beal, 10, was struck by a window frame in her class room in Newell. She died a short time later.

Toppling chimneys, crashing windows and falling sign boards claimed victims in all sections of the city. Motorists reported tree blown across highways all over the county.

Three girls, Caroline Fulmara, 6, of 2127 Monongahela avenue, Swissvale; Thelma Donalson, 16, of 429 Twenty-ninth avenue, McKeesport, and Elizabeth Brozosky, 9, of 1025 West Grand avenue, Duquesne, blinded by dust, wandered into the paths of automobiles. The Donaldson girl suffered a fractured skull and the Fulmara and Brozosky girls received broken legs.

No planes left Bettis Field because of the gale.

Mercury dropped as the wind increased in velocity and after touching a low of 32 degrees early today, began rising.

HOUSE VOTES 4-CT. GAS TAX

of dollars collected by means of the gasoline tax will be returned to the cities and other municipalities. He referred to the proposal to take over the maintainence of state highways in cities and boroughs.

Representative Grover C. Talbot, Delaware, sponsor of a second bill changing the method of collecting gas taxes, opposed the manner prescribed in the Sterling measure. He also vigorously opposed the plan to pass both bills, giving the Governor his choice.

The figures of State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis, who declares the boost unnecessary, are accurate, not guesses or estimates, declared Talbot.

"I am listening to the mandates of the voters in opposing this 4-cent tax," he ended.

Miss Helen Grimes, Allegheny, interrogated Sterling.

"Is it not true that the State Treasurer is quoted by the newspapers as saying that the tax is not necessary?" she asked.

"I must refer you to the Associated Press," said Sterling. "I can't be responsible for the authenticity of newspaper reports."

Sterling said the committee believed the higheway department figures show the tax to be necessary.

STANDS BY LEWIS

"Do we not elect our state treasurer and auditor to watch the state's finances?" Miss Grimes asked.

Sterling again evaded a direct reply.

"I will stand back of the state treasurer when he says the additional tax is not necessary," Miss Grimes said.

Chester M. Gross, York, spoke against the tax, an effort to stop the prolonged bate having failed.

"Rural members will have a hard time explaining why they voted to raise taxes," he predicted.

STOCK BOOM BOOSTS TAX RECEIPTS

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP.)—The rising stock markets of 1928, which caused the Federal Reserve Board a great deal of concern, are credited by the Treasury Department with an unexpected increase of $86,000,000 in March income tax returns over the same period last year.

Collections for the first quarter of the year have reached $684,000,000, compared with last year's first quarter total of $597,000,000. Indications are that by the end of the fiscal year, June 30, the total will be the largest since 1921, and the official estimate of the probable Treasury surplus has been raised from $26,000,000 to $100,000,000.

MORE INDIVIDUALS PAY

Furthermore, it was disclosed, individual income tax returns have increased to such an extent that, for the first time, they exceed corporation tax collections, which came up to expectations under the reduced rate of 12 per cent.

SENATE TO QUIZ MELLON ABOUT TRADE INTERESTS

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP.)—Senate investigators have found an overwhelming number of precedents to support President Hoover in retaining Secretaries Mellon and Davis in his cabinet without sending their nominations again to the Senate.

However, the Senate Judiciary Committee which has been directed to inquire into their status under a resolution by Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, will be called in early in the forthcoming extra session to examine into the other point raised—whether Mr. Mellon is serving in violation of an old statute forbidding the Secretary of the Treasury to be interested in trade or commerce.

Chairman Norris believes it will be necessary to have Mr. Mellon come before the committee to tell the nature of his extended business interests. There is some doubt, however, as to what the Senate can do about it if its Judiciary Committee does find that Mr. Mellon is serving in violation of that law. It is believed impeachment would be the only course to pursue in such an event, and such action would have to be initiated in the House. Senator Norris has been doing research work and has found more than 100 precedents for the retention of cabinet officers by one administration from another.

The question whether Mr. Mellon is interested in trade or commerce seems to hinge on the extent to which a stockholder is a person interested in business. It is generally conceded that Mr. Mellon is a stockholder. Supreme Court decisions on this point are being studied.

MANSFIELD POINTS OUT BIG FLAW

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 2.—The Pittsburgh Metropolitan District charter will be amended to include the requirement that the commissioners advertise for bids on all contracts involving an expenditure of $500 or more.

Senator William D. Mansfield, McKeesport, who discovered that the advertising provision had been omitted from the amended charter, leaving the commissioners in full control of the method of asking for bids, gave the necessary amendments to Senator M. G. Leslie, sponsor of the measure.

Leslie stated that the amendments would be placed in the bill in the House.

COMMISSIONERS' POWER

The charter as now drawn provides that contracts for public work requiring payments in excess of $500 "shall be publicly awarded on the basis of competitive bids to the lowest responsible bidder" omitting any check on the manner in which the commissioners will ask for the "competitive bids." The charter permits the board to prescribe the method of obtaining bids by ordinance. At present the commissioners are required to advertise publicly for bids.

The Metropolitan charter bill passed the Senate last night with only one dissenting vote, that of Senator Mansfield.

The Marcus bill continuing the Pittsburgh Metropolitan District Commission, which drafted the original charter bill, was reported favorably from the House Elections Committee last night and is on the first reading calendar today.

Coraopolis Council, over the veto of Burgess Fritz C. Gangloff, last night reduced the current rate of taxation from 14 to 12 mills. This is the second consecutive year that Council has reduced the millage. Council also authorized the erection of a new municipal building and swimming pool at a cost of more than $100,000. The money will come from the special electric light fund of $250,000 derived from the sale of the municipal light plant two years ago.

The municipal building will be built on property adjoining the present borough buildings. Twenty thousand dollars was authorized for the purchase of property from Roy Baldwin. The borough will retain part of the present property and sell the remainder to Baldwin for $14,000.

Fliers Must Put Their Handbills Under Doors

HARRISBURG, April 2.—(AP.)—An ordinance specifying that handbills must be placed under the door or "in such manner that they will not blow away," will be invoked against aviators who send showers of circulars fluttering down over the city, Chief of Police Joseph P. Thompson announced. Aviators who can accomplish this feat will be able to continue their distributions, but less resourceful flyers will be arrested and fined.

Chief Thompson's edict followed the shower of 35,000 salmon-colored handbills which a flyer scattered over the city on Saturday.

BROKER FISH'S YACHT RAIDED

NEW YORK, April 2.—Stuyvesant Fish, wealthy clubman and broker, has complained to Washington that his yacht was stopped last Saturday night near the Statue of Liberty by a coast guard boat whose crew pointed revolvers at him and his family and searched his craft for liquor.

Fish told newspapermen that although his wife and two young sons were present, the search was accompanied by a "frightful outburst of profanity and vulgar language."

Col. William S. Conrow, deputy surveyor in charge of the New York customs, admitted today that it was a man from one of his patrol boats which boarded Fish's yacht the Restless Saturday night.

BENJAMIN HELD FOR ARSON

Samuel Benjamin, 34, instigated the explosion which took one life in his butcher shop at 5170 Butler street to collect insurance on the place, Lieut. David Corbett, of the homicide squad, charged in Central Police Court today.

Benjamin was held for court on a charge of felonious arson and Corbett announced that he would ask District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner to accept an additional charge of murder against the defendant.

The murder charge would be based on the death of James Lomeo, 26, of McKeesport, who was killed in the explosion which shook the Lawrenceville district last Wednesday night. The detectives accuse Benjamin of conspiring with Lomeo to set off the blast in the three-story building.

Corbett testified that Benjamin had signed a statement which said that he held insurance only on a mortgage which had been placed on the property, but investigating, detectives say, revealed that $17,000 was held on the stock and fixtures.

PLAN TO WIDEN STRAWBERRY WAY URGED

The downtown traffic problem, already difficult, will be greatly complicated unless Strawberry way is widened, witnesses for the Better Traffic Committee contended, at a re-hearing on the project held today by the City Planning Commission.

Without additional outlet, they declared, the automobiles that will be attracted daily to the neighborhood of Seventh avenue and Grant street by the Koppers Building, the proposed Gulf Refining Company Building, the new postoffice and other contemplated edifices will find themselves in a hopeless snarl.

DESCRIBES TRAFFIC

L. W. Monteverde, chairman of the City Planning Commission, presided at the hearing, and Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee's sub-committee on Strawberry way widening, presented its spokesmen.

The widening of Strawberry way would not only relieve congestion, but would lead to the early consummation of the cross-town inter-district loop and other projects proposed by the city planners, according to Rice. It was brought out that the Gulf Refining Company contemplates the early erection of a magnificent office building at Grant street and Seventh avenue and it was pointed out that these structures would lead to further congestion at that point.

MAY BAN PARKING

Benjamin Marshall, inspector of traffic in the police bureau, called attention to the heavy traffic now congesting Seventh avenue. During his testimony it was predicted that the Chicago plan of prohibiting parking in downtown streets soon would be necessary in Pittsburgh.

F. C. Schatz, of the Joseph Horne Company, cautioned the Planning Commission against anything that would warp the development of the downtown section and urged the widening project. William H. Stevenson, Gen. Albert J. Logan and other speakers pleaded for the making of Strawberry way a major thoroughfare.

W. T. Mossman, representing the owners of the Seventh Avenue Hotel property, opposed the widening, and F. C. Chesterton, district manager of the Bell Telephone Company, said it would seriously hamper their projected building improvements. Chairman Monteverde recommended that a prompt decision be made in the case.

FIGHT TO KILL KITTS BILL IN SENATE

HARRISBURG, April 2.—Senator Frank J. Harris, Crafton, is engaged in an effort to have the Kitts bill which relieves street car companies of the cost of paving the streets between tracks returned to the Senate for reconsideration. It passed the Senate last week by a vote of 34 to 12.

Harris began his fight last night by introducing a resolution asking that the bill be recalled from the House for reconsideration. Under the rules Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James, presiding, referred the resolution to the Committee on Public Roads and Highways which reported the Kitts bill favorably. Then Senator Harris moved that the rules requiring that the resolution go to committee before being voted upon be suspended. This motion was defeated by a vote of 28 to 19. The six Allegheny County senators voted to suspend the rules.

HARRIS PLANS ACTION

Senator Harris said today that he planned to make a drive to have the Roads Committee consider his resolution promptly. In the event of a delay he may ask that the committee be discharged from consideration of his resolution.

The Kitts bill is in the hands of the Railroads Committee of the House, of which Fred A. Bell, Altoona, is chairman.

CITY, COUNTY PROTEST

Council has passed a resolution, presented by President James F. Malone, protesting against the Kitts bill, which would relieve street car companies from paying a share in paving costs. The bill has passed the State Senate and is pending before the Lower House.

The County Commissioners today passed a resolution protesting the bill. Commissioner C. C. McGovern, opposing the resolution, declared that "the street car companies have spent millions in providing cheap transportation."

Sign This Petition and Help to Cut Taxes

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

To the Congress of the United States:

We, the undersigned, respectfully urge that the Congress of the United States give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all income taxes on all earned incomes such as salaries or fees, or commissions for personal services. We urge this because of the many instances where wage or fee or commission earners sometimes have just a few years of good incomes and prior to and after that period have substantially less incomes. Their period of better earnings which might give the average wage earner a chance to accumulate some capital is heavily taxed and they seldom have a new opportunity which might tend to make more useful citizens of them.

Labor in general, lawyers, doctors, architects, clerical workers, salesmen, dentists, engineers, journalists, accountants, actors, motion picture actors, singers, musicians, and all the other professional people are in the same plight in the matter of earned income as distinguished from earnings on capital, and since they represent a great percentage of the citizenry of the country, we beg the gravest consideration of this proposition. Each signer below hereby enrolls as a member of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph League for the Downward Revision of Taxes on earned incomes and will work with that newspaper toward the end stated.

Permission is hereby granted the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to list the signer in the proper Labor, Clerical or Professional Division of the said League for presentation to our signatures to the United States Congress for the stated purpose.

The signer is not obliged to make any kind of contribution or to do anything except to give his moral support to this movement.

War Veteran Kills Himself With Rifle

BUTLER, Pa., April 2.—Charles Detwiller, 38, a veteran of the World War, ended his life by shooting himself with a rifle at Petrolia, 16 miles north of Butler, yesterday. Although he had complained of pains in the head for six months, he continued his work with the Pennsylvania Coal Products Company. His wife, Mrs. Maud E. Shakler Detwiller, found the body.

NOBODY'S IMMUNE

Have you all of your own teeth?

Unless you take preventive measures now, the day is coming when you may know, to your sorrow, that the true meaning of the phrase "artificial denture" is often the extravagant price of self-neglect—false teeth. Here's the reason and the way to help safeguard health against the coming of this day.

Teeth are only as healthy as the gums. And gums, undernourished and under-exercised, soon surrender to dread diseases that ravage health and often destroy teeth. To prevent this, avail yourself of the best care that modern dentistry offers. Place yourself in the hands of your dentist at least twice a year. And brush your gums when you brush your teeth, every morning and night.

But for this purpose—use Forhan's for the Gums . . . the dentifrice designed to help firm gums and keep them sound, thus protecting them from the attack of disease.

Use Forhan's regularly. You'll be delighted with the way it makes your gums look and feel. In addition, you'll notice that it effectively and safely cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay. Get a tube of Forhan's—today!

LEGISLATORS PUSH COAL AND IRON POLICE BILLS

HARRISBURG, April 2.—The Mansfield bill regulating coal and iron police, which passed the Senate last night without a dissenting vote, is scheduled to be sent to the Judiciary General Committee of the House.

The Musmanno measure, which was reported favorably from that committee, is on the second reading calendar in the House today and will come up for final passage tomorrow.

Both bills are based upon the administration measure introduced through the influence of Gov. John S. Fisher, although both have been changed to meet, in part, the demands of labor and civic leaders

As now drawn, the measures differ in five places. The Musmanno bill requires that all such officers be citizens of the United States, that they do not hold any public position, that only one of the three citizens recommending them be employed by the corporation seeking to hire them, that all persons they arrest be taken before committing magistrates or to a public jail immediately, and that coal and iron police have the power to guard the transmission lines of any electric power company. These provisions are not in the Mansfield measure.

Auto Plunges Over Grade; Four Injured

When an automobile in which they were riding went over an embankment on the Clairton-McKeesport boulevard in Clairton, four persons were injured late yesterday. Mrs. Sadie Holt, 37, of Clairton, is in the McKeesport Hospital suffering from a fractured right ankle. Frank Mulkerin, of Clairton, the driver, and his two children, Billy, 4, and Betty, 3, were cut and bruised.

Traffic Sign Asked For Wilmot Street

A "Stop and Go" traffic signal would be installed at Wilmot street and Par' view avenue under the terms of a resolution to be considered today by Council in safety committee.

LIMIT ON DOPE MAKING HELD ONLY REMEDY

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—Curtailment of traffic in dope by limiting manufacture to the actual needs of reputable physicians and hospitals is suggested as a remedy for a rapidly growing evil by Edward H. Charette, of Stockton, who is a pharmacist of more than 40 years' experience.

Mr. Charette's views are set out in the following letter to William Randolph Hearst:

"My Dear Mr. Hearst:

"I was much interested in a letter published in the San Francisco Examiner from Warden John W. Snook, of the Atlanta Penitentiary, giving his views on the narcotic evil and the benefits of the Porter bill in caring for the unfortunate addicts.

PREVENTION TRUE REMEDY

"May I add my approval to Warden Snook's views and express my own as a pharmacist of over 40 years' standing? During my early career in a drug store at the corner of Grant avenue and Morton alley, S. F., I was kept busy most of the day folding little packets of cocaine to retail for 10 cents and morphine powders in similar size. The owners of this store were made wealthy in this nefarious business.

"The traffic in this promiscuous peddling in narcotics in those early days has remained a terrible example of the degradation humanity can reach if given a free rein. While the habit has grown by leaps and bounds in recent years and more especially since prohibition has become a law, I really believe the government of the United States is tackling this evil the wrong way, the true remedy is prevention.

LOOKS TO HOOVER

"Stop the manufacturing by these cold-blooded chemical houses. What does the public know about the thousands of tons of narcotics these houses produce each year? Most all narcotics are transported to Europe and then smuggled back into this country to be handled by the big fry in the narcotic peddling game.

"Let us hope our Mr. Herbert Hoover will find a way of so curtailing the manufacturing of narcotics as to cover only the actual use by physicians and reputable hospitals. This is the only remedy.

"Yours Very Truly,
"EDWARD H. CHARETTE."

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that produced the high wind over this section yesterday is now in the far Northwest, and the high that covered the western states moved rapidly eastward increasing in pressure, and now covers the entire country east of the Mississippi with its crest over the Ohio Valley states.

It is attended by clear skies, generally and moderately cold weather. A low pressure area appears in the far Northwest, the center being north of the field of observation, but the barometer is falling as far south as the Northern Rocky Mountain states.

River Conditions.

There was a slight rise in the Allegheny River and the upper Ohio. The Monongahela is about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 6.5 feet; Lock No. 7, 11.6; Pittsburgh, 13.9; Dam No. 2, 7.6; Dam No. 6, 12.3; Dam No. 9, 11.8, and Dam No. 12, 9.4. Dams Nos. 3 and 4 are up. The upper Ohio will continue to rise slowly.

Coolidge Tells Why Silence Was Golden in Presidency

fortunate enough to tell them what they wanted to know in such a way that they could make use of it.

While there have been newspapers which supported me, of course there have been others which opposed me, but they have usually been fair. I shall always consider it the highest tribute to my administration that the opposition have based so little of their criticism on what I have really said and done.

I have often said that there was no cause for feeling disturbed at being misrepresented in the press. It would be only when they began to say things detrimental to me which were true that I should feel alarm.

Silence Golden
'Words of President Ought Not Be Used Lightly.'

Perhaps one of the reasons I have been a target for so little abuse is because I have tried to refrain from abusing other people.

The words of the President have an enormous weight and ought not to be used indiscriminately.

It would be exceedingly easy to set the country all by the ears and foment hatreds and jealousies, which, by destroying faith and confidence, would help nobody and harm everybody. The end would be the destruction of all progress.

While everyone knows that evils exist, there is yet sufficient good in the people to supply material for most of the comment that needs to be made.

The only way I know to drive out evil from the country is by the constructive method of filling it with good. The country is better off tranquilly considering its blessings and merits, and earnestly striving to secure more of them, than it would be in nursing hostile bitterness about its deficiencies and faults.

THIS is the third installment of Part One of Mr. Coolidge's Own Story, which was published in April Cosmopolitan. The fourth installment will appear in this newspaper tomorrow. These articles are fully copyrighted by the International Magazine Company, Inc., and reproduction of any part of them is forbidden.

In Part Two of Mr. Coolidge's Own Story, which will appear in the May issue of Cosmopolitan, on sale the latter part of this week, the former President tells why he did not 'choose to run," why he does not believe in a third term and what he did to prevent his nomination in Kansas City.

No Speeches
"First Declaration in Message to Congress."

Notwithstanding the broad general knowledge which I had of the government, when I reached Washington I found it necessary to make an extensive survey of the various departments to acquaint myself with details. This work had to be done intensively from the first of August to the middle of November, in order to have the background and knowledge which would enable me to discuss the state of the Union in my first message to the Congress.

Although meantime I was pressed with invitations to make speeches, I did not accept any of them. The country was in mourning and I felt it more appropriate to make my first declaration in my message to the Congress.

Of course, I opened the Red Cross convention in October, which was an official function for me as its president.

Slemp Helpful
"Fortunate in Securing Him as Secretary."

I was especially fortunate in securing C. Bascom Slemp as my secretary, who had been a member of the House for many years and had a wide acquaintance with public men and the workings of legislative machinery. His advice was most helpful. I had already served with all the members of the Cabinet, which perhaps was one reason I found them so sympathetic.

Among its membership were men of great ability who have served their country with a capacity which I do not believe was ever exceeded by any former Cabinet officers.

A large amount was learned from George Harvey, Ambassador to England, concerning the European situation. He not only had a special aptitude for gathering and digesting information of that nature, but had been located at London for two years, where most of it centered.

I called in a great many people from all the different walks of life over the country. Among the first to come voluntarily were the veteran president and the secretary of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Gompers and Mr. Morrison. They brought a formal resolution expressive of personal regard for me and assurance of loyal support for the government.

Farm organizations and business men, publishers, educators and many others— all had to be consulted.

Eager for Facts
"Never Relied on Unofficial Adviser."

It has been my policy to seek information and advice wherever I could find it. I have never relied on any particular person to be my unofficial adviser. I have let the merits of each case and the soundness of all advice speak for themselves. My counselors have been those provided by the Constitution and the law.

Due largely to this careful preparation, my message was well received. No other public utterance of mine had been given greater approbation.

Most of the praise was sincere. But there were some quarters in the opposing party where it was thought it would be good strategy to encourage my party to nominate me, thinking that it would be easy to accomplish my defeat.

I do not know whether their judgment was wrong or whether they overdid the operation, so that when they stopped speaking in my praise they found they could not change the opinion of the people which they had helped to create.

HEALTH CHIEF IN N. Y. ASSAILS DRY EVILS

Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, health commissioner of the city of New York, was asked as a medical authority and public official of long experience for his views on prohibition. He dictated for the editors of the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest the following statement:

"Prohibition, if it could be enforced, might be a very good thing for the country. But we have no certain way of knowing, since it has never yet been enforced. As for temperance, everyone knows its desirability and there would be few who would not give their whole-hearted support to a real temperance program for America.

SHIP SINKING CITED

"The present state of affairs under prohibition, constitutes a setback rather than an advance. There appears to be more drinking in the country today—especially among the young people—than before prohibition. Our attempt to make a nation of abstainers by legislation has also given us the recent beer gang massacre in Chicago and the more recent sinking of the I'm Alone, an alleged rum-running ship, by our coast guard.

"Whether or not the coast guard was legally right in sinking the ship does not seem so important to me as does the fact that such a thing could never have happened, except under prohibition. Under a system of government regulation and sale of the lighter liquors the industry of rum running would probably die a natural death. Every sensible person must realize what a tragic and expensive failure prohibition has been.

WOULD SAVE YOUNG

"Our problem now is to find a workable plan that will bring about moderation. Such a plan, once worked out, should win nation-wide approval. We are in extreme need of a system that will end the practice of hip-flask carrying by our younger generation.

"Walk a few blocks along any city street today and you are almost certain to pass at least one store window with a display of hip-flasks. If these displays are an accurate index to the practice of carrying liquor in pocket containers then the situation is indeed an alarming one. And it is certainly one that did not exist, even in the days before prohibition."

Man Killed by Auto

WAYNESBURG, Pa., April 2.—Dewey Delander, 30, of Philippi, W. Va., was killed by an automobile near Mt. Morris late yesterday. Police say the car was driven by Fred Koeber, Jr., of Sharon. Delander had been employed for the past few months at a coal mine near Moon Run, Pittsburgh.

Boy Killed, 2 Hurt As Boulder Rolls

WARREN, Pa., April 2.—When a huge boulder near which they were playing became dislodged one boy was crushed to death and two others were injured near here. The dead boy, Joseph Sigiliano, 12, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Sigiliano, of this city. Daniel Lucia, had his leg badly crushed by the rock and Dominic Calisle received minor injuries.

7 Rules for $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6 — If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7 — Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

HAD MOONSHINE GETS 90 DAYS

Acquitted on an indictment charging him with larceny of 125,000 gallons of water from the Springdale borough main, and with operating a 100-gallon still, Edmund Lilli, 30, of New Kensington, was found guilty of possession of 105 gallons of moonshine, before Judge Richard W. Martin, in Criminal Court, and sentenced to three months in the workhouse and a fine of $250.

The still was found in a stable in Pittsburgh street by Springdale police, who also discovered the water line had been tapped ahead of the meter for water to cool the still. Lilli contended he had been employed as a watchman at the still but two days before the raid, and maintained that in that time he could not have stolen the water and manufactured the liquor.

POUND A WEEK GAINED THRU NEW KONJOLA

Months of Suffering Replaced By New and Glorious Health—Pittsburgh Man Lauds New Medicine.

The speed with which Konjola, the modern medicine, works, is one of its most outstanding characteristics, and it is not infrequent that a single bottle works wonders in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, when all other medicines and treatments have failed. Each of Konjola's 32 ingredients has a special duty to perform; they all work together, and the results in thousands of cases are immediate. It seems that Konjola is at its best in cases that have resisted every form of treatment. The Konjola files are filled to overflowing with the happy statements of men and women of all ages who have been restored to health and happiness by this modern remedy. A few days ago Mr. Dan Faloon, 3942 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, called upon the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Company (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city, and told what Konjola had done for him. Imagine his happiness in being able to enjoy life a healthy person can. With gladness in his eyes, Mr. Faloon said:

"It is almost beyond belief what Konjola did for me. For several months I suffered from a severe and chronic case of kidney trouble. I daily sought relief, trying one medicine and then another, but my search was fruitless, for I steadily became worse. Each morning my back was so stiff and sore I could hardly bend over. Severe pains added their share of the suffering. During the night my sleep was always disturbed several times by irregular bladder actions. Naturally I felt tired and worn out. I became very worried and feared that I would never find relief.

"After trying countless medicines and treatments I have at last found the right one, and that is Konjola. It is amazing to know how this medicine stands out head and shoulders above all the rest of them. Where the others failed or gave but temporary relief, Konjola conquered and gave lasting relief. The difference is like day and night. Of course, I expected to take this medicine for several months. So you can imagine the surprise I got when, at the end of two weeks, I was a well man, free of kidney trouble and every one of its symptoms. Each week I gained a pound of good solid flesh, new strength and energy, and a greater delight in life. Sound sleep gives me the energy to do my work. I really can't find words expressive enough to do justice to Konjola."

Konjola is a medicine of deeds—not words. Konjola comes to the sufferer backed by an amazing record of accomplishments. There is every reason to believe that what Konjola has done for happy thousands it can do for you.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

SCREAMED WITH PAIN

Sharp, Jagged Gall Stones Tear Through Delicate Tissues, Causing Excruciating Agony

"Gall Stone trouble comes on a person gradually," writes Mrs. J. Zora, of Clairton, Pa. "When I had my first attacks I thought it was just ordinary stomach ache, from having eaten something that disagreed with me. But as time went on and the spells of pain came more and more often, they lasted longer, and the agony was more and more terrible each time. When I had these attacks I had to use hot water bags, which gave me very little relief. I also had to take physics every night to get my bowels to act. I have borne eight children, but I never at any time suffered such horrible pain as I had to undergo from these attacks. I would scream with agony for hours, and sometimes I would faint dead away.

"Finally the doctor explained to me that sharp cornered stones had formed in my gall bladder. He said that Nature tried to get rid of these stones by forcing them out through a little tube no bigger than a pencil, called the gall duct. The sharp jagged stones tear these delicate tissues, and that is what makes the horrible pain of these attacks. No medicine seemed of any help to me. So, when the doctor recommended an operation, I was so desperate that I almost yielded—even though the doctor himself admitted that many gall stone operations are not always successful and leave the patient weaker than before.

About this time I heard from a friend of the wonderful relief she had from a case just like mine by using a new medicine called World's Tonic, which is made from plants gathered from different parts of the world. I determined to try one bottle. I noticed good results from the first. My whole system felt cleaned and refreshed. I continued using World's Tonic and in a short time I entirely recovered my health. For the past eighteen months I have not had one single Gall Stone attack. I give the entire credit to World's Tonic. I give, too, my humble thanks to the scientists who have discovered this wonderful new remedy." World's Tonic is for sale at all Dow Stores (formerly McCulloch's), and other modern drug stores. HUSBAND AND WIFE HELPED Latter Relates How Ten Herbs Relieved Ailments; Claims It's Wonderful.

"Ten Herbs is a wonderful medicine"—that is the tribute thousands of local people are paying this celebrated new herbal compound. The remarkable success of Ten Herbs is due to its ten wonderful herbal ingredients, which are scientifically compounded in such a way that makes it an entirely new and totally different medicine—one that goes to the source of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders, rheumatism, neuritis, nervousness and a general weak, run-down condition. No wonder there is such a tremendous demand for Ten Herbs at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, where this preparation is being introduced.

MRS. JAMES S. MINOR

"Ten Herbs surely is a wonderful medicine," said Mrs. James S. Minor, Route 2, Bridgeville, Pa., (near Pittsburgh). "I was troubled with my stomach, which finally got so bad that I could eat scarcely anything. Gas formed around my heart, causing pain and palpitation. My husband was troubled in about the same way, and was told that he had an ulcerated stomach, which caused him considerable worry. At times I was bilious and had terrible headaches and dizzy spells. We were both bothered with constipation.

"We started using Ten Herbs, and I can truthfully say that it has been years since we felt so well. Neither of us is troubled with indigestion, gas, or palpitation of heart any more. We have good appetites and food digests properly. Constipation has been corrected. I am free of bilious attacks, headaches and dizzy spells. Ten Herbs gave us such good results that we are pleased to endorse your medicine to the public."

Ten Herbs has a cleansing, soothing, correcting action on the entire system. It has restored thousands of people of this section to perfect health, and why not you?

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, and is sold at all May's Drug Stores.

VARIED AND INTERESTING PROGRAMS ON AIR TONIGHT

WIEDOFT, RUBE BLOOM, SOPHIE TUCKER ON RADIO

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

NAMING 10 best bets tonight would be more difficult than naming the next president of Mexico.

There is music for every mood and a pleasure for every inclination. Lovers of jazz will have Paul Whiteman, WJAS at 9; followers of the theater will have Sophie Tucker and a literal host of stage celebrities through WCAE at 11 o'clock; concert lovers will be delighted to hear Reginald Werrenrath, baritone, sing "On the Road to Mandalay," WCAE at 9 p. m.

The spiritually inclined will find rest and comfort in the Sacred Song Concert over KDKA at 7:15 o'clock with Anne Hagmeier Woestehoff, contralto, as guest aritst.

Many words have been written and nothing has been said yet of Rudy Wiedoeft, the boy who makes the saxaphone do things. The youth who came to fame through "Saxophobia" and other specially written numbers will entertain through KDKA at 10:30 o'clock.

"TWO NIGHT CAPS"

Rube Bloom, the composer, will be heard in piano solos over WCAE at 8:30 p. m. and at the same hour WJAS will offer an excellent new feature which will have as its theme song the famous "Stein Song." A quartet composed of Henry Gill, Edward Spargue, Tom Morris and Russell Mitchell will augment a seven piece dance orchestra led by David Broudy.

"Broadway Melody," "The Divine Lady," "Macbeth" in Theaters

By GEORGE SEIBEL

GEORGE SEIBEL

TREADING so close upon the heels of Shylock, portrayed by George Arliss, and a variety of Shakespearean characters presented by Fritz Leiber, the Macbeth who came to the Nixon Theater last night must have heard echoes of blank verse in the air. Those echoes were given back tenfold, with the eerie laughter of the Witches and the battle songs of Highland warriors. For it was a spectacular "Macbeth" George Tyler and Gordon Craig have put upon the boards—a mystic melodrama full of weird moments, surrounded with an atmosphere of the supernatural and with a background of barbaric ruggedness.

Cubistic, impressionistic, futuristic, or whatever you choose to call it, there can be no question that it was awesome and at times overwhelming. It is our first glimpse of Gordon Craig's peculiar theatric art, though we have had approaches to it in productions of Reinhardt and even Hampden.

It could easily be overdone, and would then invite ridicule. It could easily be overpraised, and then would invite disparagement. Let us regard it as a noble experiment, and admit that in its employment of shadows, even more than of lights, it achieves some very impressive and thrilling flashes of greatness.

HUMAN AND SUPERHUMAN

Now let us turn from Gordon Craig, who is an incident, to William Shakespeare, who is an institution. The success of last night's performance was due to Shakespeare, not to Craig. It was Shakespeare's tragedy of conscience which the actors humanized and brought home to our modern day.

Craig furnished some fantastic architecture and geology, put a viaduct across the heath and filled the banquet scene with booths like a church fair; he sprinkled purples and blues and gold over the masses of castle and crag, but Lyn Harding as Macbeth and Florence Reed as the Lady did the humanizing that turned the spectacle into drama.

Harding's Macbeth excels in revealing the moral disintegration of the ambitious but somewhat stupid Thane. Here is no superman, but a henpecked soldier, "infirm of purpose." Having been goaded into a deed he desired and yet dreaded, he is then lashed by his imagination into chronic terror. That is Harding's Macbeth, and it is faithful to Shakespeare's Macbeth.

As for Florence Reed's Lady, it has a very sinister beginning and a most pathetic finish. At first she is the unsexed monster whose staccato utterances seem to stab like daggers. Later, at the close of the banquet scene, when she sees that she has wrecked Macbeth's peace of mind, her own peace of mind begins to totter. In the sleep-walking scene, she is gray and wrinkled—conscience has also smitten her.

A NOBLE DUNCAN

If one actor were to be chosen from the long cast, and crowned for distinguished histrionic powers, it is Douglas Ross, who played Duncan. Usually, Duncan is a doddering old man, whose taking-off causes no artistic regret. Ross played so humanly and read so understandingly that the audience mourned with his subjects, and was glad to have him reincarnated as Siward in a later act.

Another excellent piece of acting was the Ross of William P. Carleton, whose rich voice and sympathetic personality made him stand out in the few scenes he has.

But it was really a very capable and often remarkable cast, with William Farnum as Macduff and Fred Eric as Banquo. Farnum put great sincerity and feeling into the scene when he hears of his family's slaughter. Eric as the blood-boltered ghost was almost uncanny.

In the opening scenes that familiar old scarecrow, the "Bloody Sergeant," had been eliminated. But later on the producer's conscience smote him, and he put in many characters and scenes that usually are omitted.

Thus we got to see the murder of Banquo and escape of Fleance, and witnessed the march of Birnam Wood to Dunsinane. We hear skirling bagpipes and there's a boar's head on the banquet tables, while in the witch scenes there is much infernal hocus-pocus. After Macbeth has died, which he does without undue haste or excess agony, the Witches come on again in spectral exultation crossing the sky.

Why shouldn't they? It was their play—theirs and William Shakespeare's—even though Gordon Craig had put in rich colors and thick shadows, craggy castles and soughing winds. Above all, it was the human blood the Man from Stratford threw into the cauldron that made the charm good and strong. A stupendous production in many ways—but the little thing called conscience dominating all else!

STAR IN PENN HIT TWO WAYS

This is Lupe Velez week in the Penn, where the vivacious Mexican star of the screen throws her volatile personality into a "personal appearance" on the stage and in the artistic portrayal of a cabaret singer who becomes the bride of a nobleman, in "Lady of the Pavements," on the screen. It is an entertaining picture, with comedy, a heart tug and sound and vocal effects, the latter including the singing of the theme song, "Where is the Song of Songs for Me," by Miss Velez, the sentiment of which, although familiar, proves to be touching, when heard in its original atmosphere.

MAKES FRIENDS QUICKLY

In her personal act Miss Velez makes immediate friends through her ingenuous manner and she is on firm friendly footing when she leaves the stage. Her routine is a song or two, caricatures of film celebrities, very laughable, an ever-present smile, charming dialect and personality. She "gets over" much better than most film stars making appearances off the screen. Perhaps that is because, at the beginning she exacts a promise from the audience that it will like her.

The range of her art is more widely expressed in the film feature, in which she is used as the pawn of a countess to win the love of a count who rejects the elder woman when he discovers she is inconsistent. Telling the girl it is all a joke, she hires her to win the love of the count. She does, for keeps. Then when they are married the countess has her revenge by telling the count where his bride came from—a low cabaret in Paris. Nevertheless there is a happy ending.

MISS GOUDAL SNAKEY

Miss Velez plays her part quite convincingly. William Boyd is a rather static count. Jetta Goudal is snakey as the countess and George Fawcett gives his usual sound portrayal in the part of an officer high in the diplomatic service.

Teddy Joyce heads the stage show, "Bubbling Over," directing the stage band, playing a part in a "black-out" skit, singing and dancing, and playing the violin. Boyd Senter also is featured in pleasing sax and clarinet solos. Spring is the theme of Dick Leibert's amusing organlogue.

Denny Farce Harris Film

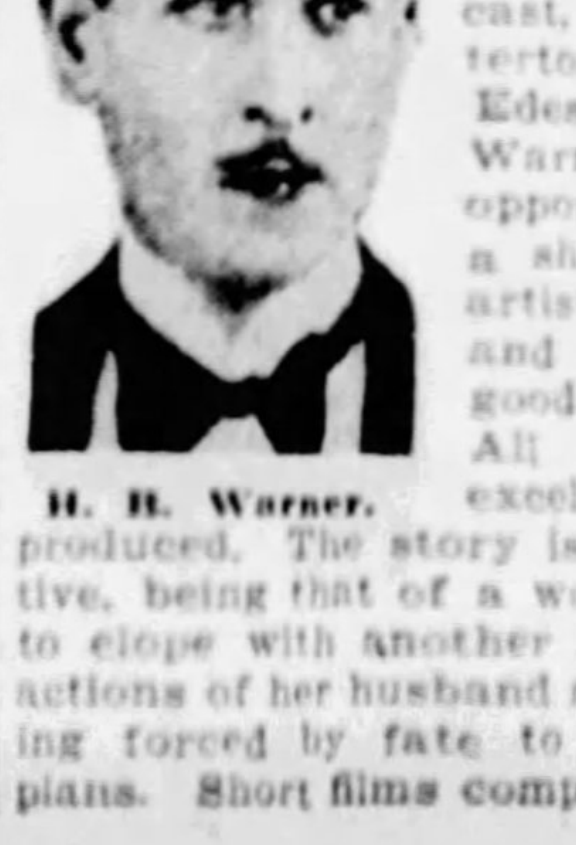
Reginald Denny is starring—and talking—on the Harris screen this week in "Clear the Decks." It is a farce comedy, with the action, most of it, taking place on ship board. There are many mixups and amusing situations, with a romance reaching a happy ending at the close, with Denny breaking Lucien Littlefield's spectacles and going into the fadeout clinch with Olive Hasbrouck. Olive by the way, has a voice that registers O. K. in the talk sequences. She, you recall, is an erstwhile heroine of movie westerns.

Reginald Denny.

Eddie Dale heads the vaudeville portion of the bill. He and an assisting company present a revue, "Bits and Hits," that has eight scenes and comedy, song and dance. The Musical Geralds, all dressed up in a clashing color scheme of red and green, do some instrumental numbers as another feature. Emily Earle comes out with a mouthful of songs. Polly and Oz end up the stage show. Short screen entertainment completes the bill.

Regent Feature Is All-Talkie

"The Doctor's Secret," all-talking photoplay, is current in the Regent. It is about the most interesting example of audible drama that has reached the screen and gives the principal members of the cast, Ruth Chatterton, Robert Edeson and H. B. Warner, ample opportunity for a show of their artistic talents and they make good use of it. All voices are excellently reproduced. The story is very effective, being that of a woman driven to elope with another man by the actions of her husband and then being forced by fate to change her plans. Short films complete the bill.



H. B. Warner.

Dancer Heads Academy Show

The burlesque on view in the Academy, called "The Best Show in Town," is a melange of song, dance and comedy, led by "She," whose special feature is "Dances of Flaming Youth." The principal comedian is Jack Errickson, who makes use of "Dutch" dialect in his eccentric comicalities. His associates are Jack Marley, tramp character comedian; Joe Kilch, who specializes in accordion playing, and Jack Regan, juvenile dancer. Anna Propp, soubret, leads the chorines. Specialties are introduced by chorus and principals on the runway.

Queen Marie, Tunney Hailed at Bull Ring

MADRID, April 2.—(AP.)—Queen Marie of Rumania and Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion, were co-stars at the bull ring here Sunday. They remained peacefully in the stands, but were as much applauded as the bull fighters.

Tunney was presented with a gift after the fight, but it was not recorded whether this was one of the bull's tails or ears, or a sword or cape of a toreador.

"Scarlet Seas" Enright Film

Richard Barthelmess and Betty Compson—who, you recall, hit the sawdust trail, figuratively speaking, in "Weary River"—again go in for regeneration in "Scarlet Seas," the latest Barthelmess opus, which is current in the Enright. Barthelmess plays a hard-living, reckless sailor. Betty appears as a bad little girl in a dive in a tropical seaport. The sailor kidnaps the girl and takes her to sea with him. There then comes a fire and a shipwreck and religion. This is followed by a mutiny, a handful or so of killings and more religion. Then the happy ending. Incidentally, there's a little girl in the cast, Loretta Young, who attracts attention.

Richard Barthelmess.

Dick Powell displays a stageful of dance and melody in his latest presentation, "Dixie Days." It features the great big comedian, Eddie Hill; the dancing Horton Spurr; the blues-singing Elsie Murphy; another songstress, Martha Patti, and the stage band and the Enright Rockets. And we mustn't forget to mention Mr. Powell's "mammy" number.

Scores Battle Grass Fires, Save Houses

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., April 2.—Brownsville was threatened from three sides today by grass fires, which, whipped by high winds, swept over 200 acres of ground. A hundred firemen and citizens battled the flames for four hours and prevented them from spreading to a score of houses and barns. The flames rose to a height of 50 feet in several sections.

"BROADWAY MELODY" BRINGS MUSIC SHOW FLAVOR TO ALDINE THEATER

By MILDRED FILLMORE

HELLO, everybody, I'm just back from the Aldine where I got an eye and ear full of "The Broadway Melody." It is some picture—real wowish, and everything. And there's something doing every minute. There is humor, drama and romance. There is song, talk and dance. No wonder it sent Hollywood and New York whoopee-mad for the talkies.

The picture is a smile-and-tear drama of Broadway show life. It concerns the two Mahoney Sisters, vaudeville performers from the sticks, and Eddie, the boy friend, who is a song and dance artist with a musical revue. In the early sequences Eddie is in love with Hank, the elder of the two sisters. In the end, he marries Queenie, the younger one. And in the interim—gracious, what a lot of laughs, romance, excitement and talk and song.

PANORAMA OF SCENES

There are dressing room scenes and dress rehearsals; feminine chorus girls and feminine battlers; a stuttering booking agent and smart and slangy dialogue; ivory pluggers and Broadway money boys—and so on, and so forth—with a large feature being a musical revue in action, with the sequence being done in color.

The cast is a keen one. Never has Bessie Love shone more brightly. She sings, she talks, she loves and she cries—all very convincingly. She plays the sister, Hank. And never has Anita Page appeared more attractive than she does in the role of Queenie, the little sister who goes night-clubbing with a Broadway money boy and who falls in love with her sister's fellow.

Charles King, in the role of Eddie, does a grand job also. He certainly puts over the theme song in a glorious manner. So nice is he that we forgive him for letting the villain of the piece (Kenneth Thomson) sock him in the jaw when he tries the heroics in Anita's behalf.

There are many others prominent in the cast also and they all do their parts well, including Jed Prouty who stutters himself into plenty of laughs. The production shows the clever directorial hand of Harry Beaumont.

Briefly, "The Broadway Melody" is a highly entertaining talkie with a musical show flavor. It is, perhaps, the best thing that has happened in the sound and talk line since the movie makers have taken the silence from the silent drama.

"BOOM BOOM" FUN PLAY IN ALVIN

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Boom-Boom," musical play in the Alvin, is an Americanized version of a French farce, which develops its fun along the broad sex lines that are so amusing in that dear Paris, but which we find rather repelling because they border so closely on the indelicate.

Jazzed up with our own native idea of whoopee in the way of lively songs and dancing, the plot serves as well as any other to give musical comedy a different angle, if that be the main idea.

FAST DANCING SHOWN

Principally it shines as a rapid dancing show, with several exceptionally skilled solo dancers and an ensemble that is billed as the Donahue-Doyle lightning dancing girls, as well as Cortez and Peggy. Vocally, it is nothing remarkable, although it has a number of songs that serve their purpose of providing interludes in the action, and, at least, they are not tiresome.

Frank McIntyre heads the cast, as a philandering oldster whose age has not dulled his playful instinct and who, through the strange ways of fate, finds himself married to a young woman with whom his son is in love. When the lad returns from a trip to South America and finds out who his new stepmother is he is rather surprised, say nothing of being indignant at what he considers her inconstancy. Mr. McIntyre makes the part very funny, especially with his song, "Just a Big-Hearted Man."

FINALLY LEADS TO RENO

Jeanette McDonald is the young woman, wedded to the father and in love with the son, and is the principal vocalist. She is a young woman of pleasing manner and is a graceful dancer. Harold Conkling plays the son, a chap whose attempts to prevent his stepmother from becoming involved in another triangle finally leads to himself and dad to an understanding and dad's departure for Reno.

Outstanding specialties are the acrobatic dancing of Kendall Capps, the graceful stepping of Cortez and Peggy and the eccentric comedy and stepping of Nell Kelly. Harry Welch, as a waiter, takes the lead in laugh-making with his bologna dialect comedy and clowning.

Last night's audience liked "Boom-Boom" very much.

"WILD PARTY" STANLEY FILM

Crowds that stood in line before the boxoffice and waited long and patiently in the lobby of the Stanley Theater at yesterday's showings indicated by their eagerness that the bill was to their liking. They wanted to see—and hear—Clara Bow and they liked the title of her new talkie, "The Wild Party." And no less anxiously, perhaps, they desired to see the Duncan sisters, Rosetta and Vivian. They saw and heard them, but the best they heard was Dave Broudy's Stanley Orchestra. The crowds gave every demonstration that they were immensely pleased.

PARTY REALLY WILD

Clara Bow's first talkie is no vocal hit. It is almost impossible to distinguish one female voice from another, but after all voice doesn't count for much. Dramatically, "A Wild Party" is wild indeed. It is broad farce, intense melodrama, osculatory romance and a "Follies" spectacle in one immense splash. As exemplifying capable camera work and the selection of ladies who photograph well, it is great stuff. It has to do with life at a modern women's college, and depicts that side of student activities which runs to bizarre escapades, loose talk, lingerie, cigarets and road houses. Of course, the star, a college girl (Clara Bow), falls in love with one of the professors, they "blow" the school and go away off somewhere in the Malay peninsula—a logical and happy ending.

The Duncan sisters have a pleasing act and last night's audience recalled them several times. Others on the bill are up to standard.

New York Man Is Left Estate Here

Lilly W. McCurley, of Upper St. Clair Township, whose will is just filed for probate leaves $10,000 to Charles W. Paulson, of Larchmont, N. Y., and $500 to a nephew, Vernon McCurley, of 417 Bausman street. The Pittsburgh Trust Company was named executor.

NEW SEASON OF STOCK IN PITT

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

If you think love makes for smooth and peaceful marriage go to the Pitt this week and let the George Sharp Players disillusion you. They do this in their play, "This Thing Called Love," which, incidentally, is the premiere presentation of their third summer season here. And we can assure you that in addition to being disillusioned you will get a large evening in an entertainment way.

The premiere last night was a happy event. Mr. Sharp himself was prominent greeting patrons of other seasons. He also discarded his high hat and cane long enough to make a brief curtain speech and caught enough applause to convince him there are a lot of theatergoers glad he and his emoters are back in our town. Which brings us to remark that the present company promises to be as popular as those of past years.

NEW AND OLD FACES

The play, a comedy, chiefly concerns two men and two women. In Act No. 1, you find Couple No. 1 heading for the divorce court and Couple No. 2, for the altar. Act No. 2, finds Couple No. 1 divorced and Couple No. 2 married, the act ending in a Garbo-Gilbert clinch. Then comes Act No. 3 (two weeks later) and Couple No. 2 get to the divorce talk stage and Couple No. 1 are all set for a remarriage as soon as final divorce papers come through. All of which is quite a merry mixup, you admit.

A number of familiar faces and some new ones are in the present company. The very blonde and talented Pauline MacLean makes

MISS GRIFFITH DOES HISTORIC LADY HAMILTON ON GRAND SCREEN

THE movie makers have taken another fling at historic biography and have brought Lady Hamilton and Lord Nelson to the screen. They have taken the romance between these two as the basis of Corinne Griffith's starring picture, "The Divine Lady," current in the Grand. Whether, in the doing, they have kept to the facts with the romancing is something else again. However, they have brought in the biographically true death of the heroic Nelson at Trafalgar. Also they have succeeded in making a picture that entertains—especially if you like costume plays, are a Corinne Griffith fan or have a weakness for sea battles.

Corinne Griffith

We remind you, perhaps unnecessarily, that Nelson was England's great naval hero, who defeated the fleets of Napoleon, and that Lady Hamilton was born Emma something or other and was the daughter of a cook. She rises in the movies—just as she did in real life—to the position of a noble lady, the wife of Lord Hamilton, English diplomat, stationed at the court of Naples.

The movies make her quite heroic. She is the means of saving the men of Nelson's fleet from starvation and defeat. She also—in a heroic gesture near the close—gives Lord Nelson back to England, sending him, though she doesn't realize it at the time, to his death.

STAR IS ATTRACTIVE

Corinne makes an attractive Lady Hamilton. But not always such an effective one. For one thing her well groomed hands command too much attention. In a climaxing love scene you find yourself speculating about her highly manicured finger nails, almost neglecting to catch the symbolic meaning of the flower she pushes from her lips.

H. B. Warner portrays Lord Hamilton and Lord Nelson is played by Victor Varconi. Both parts are done well.

"The Divine Lady" is a sound picture. In fact, it has two big sea battle sequences that are boisterously boom bang. There are also several song sequences, featuring Miss Griffith. There is no talk, however.

her debut as leading woman. Kenneth Daigneau, with ability and personality, takes the bow as the new leading man.

MABEL HAS GRAND TIME

And Mabel Kroman is back. She had a grand time last night, combing her blonde bob and squabbling with her husband in the first act, arriving back from Paris divorce courts in the second and becoming engaged all over again to her former husband in the third. And after Robert Fiske, another of former seasons, got terribly drunk and started a shooting affray before the final curtain, Mabel, in the excitement, spilt some water on her nice green dress......Which wasn't part of the play, but which Mabel put over just as if the playwright had written it into the script. Other players included the popular Gus Forbes and Alice Ann Baker and Hugh Banks, Peggy Dougherty, Carlton Young and Cynthia Blake. Cynthia played a charmer from Peru and got her face slapped for her pains.

There were bouquets for the players and curtain speeches for the audience at the play's close. And both deserved them—the players for their successful efforts to entertain and the audience for the applause and enthusiasm of its reception.

IRISH COMIC IS SCREAM IN DAVIS

This man Will Mahoney, in the Davis this week, is an Irish Harry Lauder, without any Scotch restraint about his fun-making. He says himself that there must be an easier way to make a living, and we might add that there can be few harder ones. His unstable equilibrium, his hurdy-gurdy singing, his bagpipe story, his composite imitation of all the mammy singers—all these provided as many screams as two mystery plays and a mouse at a bridge party. He is one of the most hilarious comedians that have imperiled vest buttons in many moons.

There's another very funny fellow in the well-rounded bill of vaudeville—and that is Stan Kavanagh, an Australian juggler whose quiet humor won the audience bit by bit as he caused his hat to walk up his arm, his cane to wrap itself around his neck, and Indian clubs to play hide-and-seek with golf balls.

LADY FROM LUNNON

One of the best male swell impersonators from London music halls, Ella Shields, is a genuine artist, and sang her "Burlington Bertie" songs with exquisite finish, coming on at the end in a ravishing gown appropriate to her sex.

Lottie Atherton does tap dancing while standing on her head, and manages to dance up and down stairs backward without missing a step. There was much good dancing in the bill, as Josephine McLean's "Dance Rhapsodies" gave delicate Chinese and Oriental scenes along with waltz and jazz numbers, against colorful backgrounds.

TEN FAIR DEBUTANTES

Dancing was also prominent in the exhibition of Harry Waiman and his Debutantes, whose music and comedy proved delightful, while the Zouave dance of two roguish maidens was captivating.

Joe Mack and Gail Rossiter added more laughter to the occasion, his "why worry" philosophy being particularly valuable, and her job as admiral in a hospital particularly useful. But for utility the Dakotas would be hard to beat. They can wrap a bundle at a distance of 10 yards and light a cigaret by cracking a whip, while Chic Cooper does her bit with a deadly Flobert rifle. Which raises the question whether Will Mahoney's story of the bagpipe's origin is history or a pious hope.

Fiske O'Hara Sheridan Star

Fiske O'Hara, singer of Irish songs, heads the vaudeville in the Sheridan Square, offering a little act, "Patsy, the Pest," in which "The Pest" is Patricia Quinn. O'Hara sings "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" and other songs. The screen talking feature is Reginald Denny, in "Clearing the Decks," a farce-comedy with scenes aboard an ocean liner. Also on the bill are Galla Rini and sister, in a musical act, Ann Gold, in songs, short talkies and Fox Movietone News on the screen.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Carolyn Maccoun Weds Baltimore Man Today In Church Ceremony

THE interest of many of our society folks is centered today on Baltimore, where the wedding of a local girl, who lived in the City of Orioles for most of her life, is taking place, with one of our own debutantes as a member of the bridal party. The bride is Carolyn Maccoun, daughter of the Andrew Ellicott Maccouns, of North Braddock, formerly of Baltimore, and she is meeting John Hanson Croker, son of the Edward J. Crokers, of Baltimore, at the altar of Emanuel Protestant Episcopal Church at 4 o'clock. The rector of the church, the Rev. Dr. Hugh Birkhead, is the officiant, assisted by the Rev. Samuel Taggart Steele, rector of St. David's Episcopal Church.

Carolyn, who is being given in marriage by her father, is wearing a draped gown of white satin, made with a long train, and her veil is of tulle and rose point lace. She is carrying a shower of lilies of the valley.

Three of Carolyn's sisters and two cousins are included among her attendants. One sister, Mrs. Henry Lewis Pritchard, of New York, is the matron of honor and another, Martha, is the maid of honor. They are wearng frocks of rose chiffon with slippers to match, and hats of beige straw. Their bouquets are of pink roses. The bridesmaids' dresses are of soft green chiffon and they are wearing hats of natural straw, while they are carrying bouquets of spring flowers. Mary T. Maccoun, another sister of Carolyn, and her two cousins, Mary Maccoun and Martha Stockton, of Princeton, N. J., are bridesmaids, and so are Jane Allderdice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, of Wilkins avenue; Mrs. Randolph Fenton, who is Mr. Croker's sister; Margaret Mitchell, of New York; Florence Marlatt, of Washington, D. C., and Alice Temple Carter.

Douglas Croker is his brother's best man and the list of ushers includes Richard Stockton III, of Princeton; Charles Lea, of Richmond, Va.; Randolph Fenton, John Webster, Reginald Baldwin, George M. Shriver, Jr., Hugh Smallwood, John Sherwood and Thomas Jenifer.

After a large reception, the young Mr. and Mrs. Croker are leaving for an extensive trip. I haven't heard definitely, but no doubt they will make their home in Baltimore, where they both have so many friends. Carolyn made her debut there, you know, and her sisters, Martha and Mary, went back to their home city last December to make their bow to their parents' friends.

Mrs. Rauh Hostess At Ice Ass'n Lunch

THREE events were rolled into one yesterday when Mrs. Enoch Rauh celebrated her twenty-fifth anniversary as president of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Milk and Ice Association, and the monthly and annual meetings of the association were held in the Concordia Club. Mrs. Rauh gave a beautifully appointed luncheon for the officers and directors of the association as her anniversary celebration. The Rev. Dr. Carl August Voss, first vice president, served as toastmaster for the luncheon, at which Mrs. Rauh as "a useful citizen" was praised by her several guests and presented with a silver gravy boat and tray. The Rev. Dr. A. J. Bonsall, the treasurer, who has been on the board for 20 years, paid his tribute in original and decidedly clever verse. Reports were heard at the monthly session, and at the annual meeting which immediately followed, the present officers were re-elected and Mrs. Harry J. Miller was made a third vice president, the result being: President, Mrs. Rauh; vice presidents, Dr. Voss, Frank C. Harper and Mrs. Miller; Mrs. A. B. Speer, secretary; Dr. Bonsall, treasurer; Dr. Amelia A. Dranga, medical director (founder of the organization and medical director since its inception), and Mrs. T. S. Isengard, field secretary.

Dr. Bonsall, the Rev. Dr. C. E. Wilbur, Mrs. Miller, Mr. Harper and Miss Lena Westervelt were reelected to the board.

The annual reports showed that $2,973.70 had been received from the Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund and that out of the total expenditures of $24,033.22, there had been expended for milk alone $16,250,09. During the year the association had 565 families under its care, 257 of which had been taken on during the year. Among these families were 13 sets of twins. Dr. Dranga reported 3,928 cases seen at the office and Mrs. Isengard reported 3,954 persons seen in the homes.

INTERESTING problems in stage settings will be presented by the plays to be given in the Drama League's fifth amateur players' contest by the drama department, Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg, and Rhetoric X class of Washington and Jefferson College. The W. & J. Players will give "Release," by Edward H. Smith, which has as its setting a county jail in upper New York state. This play, which is a powerful story of gang loyalty and brutality, won an award in New York City when it was presented with a realistic setting by the Cellar Players in 1926; in 1927 it was awarded one of the prizes in the Pittsburgh contest when it was given with a setting consisting of gray drapes. It was worked out as a class problem in the Rhetoric X class of Prof. Burris-Meyer, who will direct the play in the contest. The cast will consist of Wayne Lacock as the Kid, Stowell B. McKain as Rabbit, J. N. Yarnall as Lefty, C. B. Schuhardt as Bull O'Malley, W. W. Coates as Tarpey and J. C. Moody as the bookholder.

The Wilkinsburg club group have chosen Alice Gerstenberg's "Ever Young," which has its setting in the balcony of a fashionable hotel. Mrs. W. C. Hawley, director and stage manager, will use as part of the decoration a unique Chinese banner which was given to one of her family by Chinese officials. The cast will consist of Mrs. Henry Chalfant Miller as Mrs. Phoebe-Payne Dexter, Mrs. J. C. Ackerman as Mrs. Agnes Dorchester, Mrs. Nelle Moore Sprowls as Mrs. Blanchard and Mrs. W. C. THE psychological world changes which have taken place within the last few years were commented upon by Pierre de Lanux, director of the Paris information office of the League of Nations, when he addressed the Twentieth Century Club yesterday. The crystallization of public opinion for peace and the change in the spirit of business were among the changes mentioned by the speaker, who had as his topic, "Modern Manners in Foreign Policy." He stressed the aim of the league to prevent fighting between nations until a decision has been reached as to which is the aggressor.

INTEREST FIGHT WON BY HEIRS

Two granddaughters of the late Peter Patterson, prominent in Braddock and McKeesport, Mrs. Mary V. Harvey and Mrs. Helen M. Price, are each about $10,000 wealthier as a result of a decision handed down in Orphans' Court by Judge Thomas P. Trimble.

When an account in the estate was filed in January, showing a balance of $269,821 for distribution, it was claimed by them that their legacies of $10,000 each should have been drawing income for the last 14 years. Patterson died in 1912.

The court upheld their claims, and directed the Peoples' Savings and Trust Company to pay the amount of the legacies with 6 per cent interest for the period involved.

WIFE-SEEKER SAYS WIDOW KEPT $500, JILTED HIM

Answering a matrimonial advertisement cost him $500, but did not get him a wife, according to the story told county detectives by E. E. Stevenson, of Woolrick, Clinton county.

He charges Mrs. E. E. Campbell, widow, of 801 North Highland avenue, with fraud, in an information sworn to before Alderman George J. Anderson. The woman is under arrest, and was questioned yesterday by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner.

Stevenson told detectives that he answered a matrimonial advertisement and came here to meet Mrs. Campbell. She agreed to marry him, and he gave her $500, but she failed to appear in Woolrich on the date set for the ceremony, he alleges.

Jurist Demands Legal Papers Be Legible

Lawyers who go before Judge Josiah Cohen, sitting this month in the assignment room of Common Pleas Court, had better submit papers to the 87-year-old jurist he can read, or they will find themselves thrown out of court.

This was revealed yesterday when a member of the bar presented a libel in divorce. The court remarked, as he handed it back, "I cannot read it." Then the lawyer undertook to decipher it. The document was handed to Clerk Robert J. Moore, who could not read it. Back it went to the lawyer.

It now will require a new affidavit on the part of the libellant.

(From a Scenario by Edmund Goulding.)

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Eddie Kerns, song plugger, has written the music for "The Broadway Melody," a big revue to be produced by the famous Zanfield. For two years Eddie has been engaged to "Hank" Mahoney and now he sees his way clear to marry her. She and her younger sister, Queene, are playing in vaudeville and Eddie summons them to New York and tells them he has managed to place them in the revue. They are overjoyed, but Eddie suddenly discovers that he's lost his heart to Queenie who has developed into a startling beauty in the two years since he saw her last. He keeps his secret from "Hank" and the girls turn down a long vaudeville contract for a chance to make good in the revue. Zannie, after seeing the "Mahoney Sisters" perform, decides that he could only use Queenie. She, however, appeals to him to also give her sister a chance in the show. He consents. "Hank" believes that she put it over. During a dress rehearsal Eddie shows the sisters the big ad in the newspaper announcing their coming to Broadway. When Hank kisses Eddie, Queenie cries. Zannie gives Queenie a place in the revue. She makes an impression and the two "angels" of the revue invite her out to dine after the show. Dore, one of the show girls, tells Queenie to watch her step with Worthington.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

AS EDDIE approached Queenie, she saw in his eye a look she had never known it could register. Eddie Kerns was clearly "sore."

"What's the big idea?" he shot at her. "I was on there holdin' hands with that tailor-made bum, Stewie Worthington, an' swappin' a line with Francis Warriner, the best known 'on-the-make' party aroun' Broadway. I couldn' break up the number an' I couldn't keep my pan toward the front on account o' tryin' to keep cases on you, an—"

"What's all this?" demanded Hank, who had come up from the dressing room side at the same time.

"Search me," said Queenie, to Hank, for Eddie's benefit. "Two of the angels came back and talked to me. What could I do?"

"You know what you could do—every girl does," snapped Eddie. "What were you talkin' about? An' did you say yes or no?"

"Just a minute, Eddie," cut in Hank. "You an' I are engaged, you've been mighty sweet to both Queenie an' me, an' all that. But where do you come in to bawl the kid out—with a lot o' dizzy chorines pickin' up an earful to make it perfect?"

"Let's go in your dressing room," said Eddie.

When he had closed the door he started pacing up and down the little chamber, talking at neither of the girls in particular:

"I had a hunch that I was goin' to have millionaire-trouble the minute I put two smalltown gals with bigtown looks in a Zanfield troupe. Oh, I know you're city-broke and been up against plenty o' propositions an' diff'rent kinds o' go-get-'em guys. But not this kind. They fish with yellow bait an' they don' toss back the undersized.

"The minute they saw Queenie on that love boat they began lettin' out their silk line with the shiny hook on the end. Everybody says she's goin' to be the beauty o' the season. Well, them kind go after that kind quick and hard an' good an' dirty. Expense don' count—they're rotten with dough. Queenie may know how to protect herself with the reg'lar run o' rats, but she's up against a new racket here.

"An' I want her to strictly lay off the Warriners an' the Worthingtons, especially that Warriner, whose got a reputation up an' down this alley like nobody's business. He's more than just rich—he's good lookin' an' a smooth op'rator. That Worthington is just a big, fat booze guzzler. He buys dames by the pound—buys 'em at their weight an' pays for 'em at his. With all his jack I don't think he'd get to first base with Queenie. But that Warry—wow! He's got records."

Queenie was a girl who never said much.

She was not eloquent at argument and her mental setup did not run to psychology, philosophy or long-hot views of elemental values. Things to her were actual, immediate. Her life had been narrow despite her several years of travel, knocking about in vaudeville and bumping and rubbing against many sorts of humans in the synthetic, hectic avenues and lanes of show business.

It seemed to her the d'Onegin girl had made an awful verbal fuss over her brief chat with Stewie and Warry, and that Eddie was stewing over it rather volubly and impassionedly, too. What was all this about? She was no unsophisticated baby. All their warnings and metaphorical stoplights gave he. a feeling that they were hysterical about little and were overplaying a melodrama where the plot and cast were rigged up for a light comedy.

She had heard out the hard-boiled showgirl because she felt that her volunteer lay counsel had sincerely meant to be helpful. But it had gone in one ear and out the other. When Eddie spoke, however—well, that was far different. Not only was he her benefactor, not only did she view him as the apotheosis of all that was wise and lofty in the profession, but—

She hadn't dared say it to even herself, and didn't now.

When she was 16, when she had first met Eddie and he had fallen in love with Hank, she hadn't bothered much about him and he had tolerated her only as the necessary excess baggage of a sister act. But now—when she was 18—when their eyes had met as their eyes had met; when he had kissed her in an ostensibly platonic, if not coldly, in-law-to-be manner and her reaction had been the most turbulent, terrifying, terrific thrill of her whole life—that whole life had changed.

She saw now that his fierce attitude toward her brief episode with the two predatory millionaires was actuated by an emotion far deeper than a mere manly impulse to warn a girl he thought was in danger—or a future sister-in-law in that situation.

The thought of being disloyal to Hank was horrible. To even think of treachery toward her was black and wicked. And here—now—Hank spoke:

"I'm in with what you say, Eddie. But you don't know Queen like I do. She's smart and straight. She can take care of herself."

"No, she can't. No girl can take care of herself. If she could, she wouldn't be a girl—she'd be a woman. She can't know all that an' be her age. I've heard a hundred of 'em say—'Oh, I know all that stuff . . . I've heard an' I've read an' I've seen . . . well, it's all fine, but it don't go for ME! Ev'ry girl thinks a special miracle was put on for her p'tic'lar benefit. Then, when it's too late, she wakes up with a headache, an' worse than that. An' she cries 'Why did this have to happen to just ME?'

"They think becus nobody ever hit 'em there ain't no sharpshooters what can. Well, at no time in this here life have any of us been up against everything an' everybody we're goin' to have to run into. A girl don't have to be a simp for men or loose or a sap. It's always one man comes along that's got somethin'—looks or pers'nality, or a slick routine, or a big name, or the power to hand out somethin' that's hard to get, or just the good old mazuma. We may all think we ain't gold-diggers. An' it's true. But that printin' on them nice big bills sure is in a language all its own. It's mighty hard to out-talk a grand note."

Crumpled and moist in Queenie's hand was the left half of one of those grand notes—a $1,000 bill. The other half was to be hers if she met Warry and Stewie and had a snack with them at some classy cafe. It burned her palm. She had quite forgotten that it was still there. She turned with a sense of guilt, walked out of immediate view and put the thing in her stocking.

"Ah, don't let it worry you, Eddie," she said, her first words since the conversation had opened. "They were just kiddin' with me about takin' me out. I laughed it off."

Hank looked at him curiously. There seemed to her he had put a ring in the speech that was—oh, nonsense; she must have overwrought herself with the disappointment of having their most conspicuous double number cut out abruptly by Zannie and the whole excitement of the dress rehearsal and everything.

"We've got to dress, Eddie—make a change for our next number. We've still got that," said Queenie, by way of breaking the tension and trying to act merry.

"We've still got it till Zannie sees it," said Hank, gloomily. "If he chops that one, baby—I don' know where we'll be at. He ain' goin' to pay out double dough for you to sit on that love boat for a minute and a half while a sad-panned tenor warbles a ditty."

"I'll see what I can do with Zannie," said Eddie, carrying on the bluff that he had a drag with the mighty glorifier. "It's six, two an' even I can get him to put back the other number, too."

"Oh, Eddie," moaned Hank, "if you'd do that I'd give you anything—anything on earth that you could ask."

Eddie's glance met Queenie's.

"Anything?" he said, in answer to Hank but with his eyes on Queenie.

"That's what I said—anything . . . what can I lose. I'm goin' to marry you, so whatever I've got is yours and when it's yours it's mine . . . . besides, what have I got to give? But you'll try, won't you honey?"

He nodded his head.

"Hey—snap out of it, Queenie," called Hank. "You look like you're dreamin' on your feet . . . say, maybe that handsome an' wealthy Warry did hang it on you." She crossed Eddie and put her hands on Queenie's shoulders. "Look up at me, kid . . . you haven't—you ain't—you ain't in love?"

Queenie attempted a broad grin, but the best that she could make was a somewhat wistful smile.

"Why not?" pursued Hank. "I never think o' you bein' that way over some guy—but you're eighteen. I was so wild over Eddie when I was eighteen that I couldn' eat, sleep or see. I s'pose that could happen to you—"

"What!" gasped Queenie, the blood flying to her checks under the makeup.

"Well, somethin' like that—not with Eddie, o'course, but with a man. You ain't immune, young lady. I don't guess any of us are."

"Maybe not," muttered Queenie. "But don't talk like that. We've got a show to do on our hands . . . go on, Eddie—you've got to take the air now."

"I—I guess I'd better," said he.

"Yeh—that's right—you'd better," echoed Queenie. "And—don't worry about Warry—he's nothin' to me."

Excitement in the Bank

By LOUISE P. ARMSTRONG

Daily Short Story

DAN WHITTAKER, vice president, had been called into Mr. Stevens' office that morning, and a tense air pervaded the whole bank during their secret session.

"Has anything happened?" asked the stenographer, Grace Milton.

"I'm not supposed to talk," confided Jake Evans, paying teller, "but a batch of coupon Liberty Bonds we'd just received for redemption has disappeared off Wesley Miner's desk. Wes' says they were lying there, then they were gone. Looks mighty funny to me!"

"You don't suppose one of the boys hid them for a joke?" the girl asked anxiously.

"Nobody would dare play such a joke," Jake asserted.

Something in his tone made the girl catch her breath and stare. "You're not thinking that Wes' . . .?" Her voice died as she looked at Jake appealingly.

"Not saying a word," Jake replied dryly, "against our new assistant cashier, who besides being popular with old man Stevens, is son-in-law of the Graham Gayles, richest folks in Camden. I happen to know, however," he blurted out viciously, "that the young fool's been playing the market. Bet Pappa Gayle don't know that! Those bonds were registered . . . not a chance of tracing any of 'em."

"I don't believe it," Grace Milton declared indignantly. "Wes' wouldn't steal!"

"Yah!" Jake Evans retorted, turning back to his cage as he observed a customer approaching the grill. "You're just like all the other dames in this town, crazy over Wesley Miner's Greek profile and dancin'-school manners."

The little stenographer was deeply concerned. She saw that Dan Whittaker looked worried when he at last emerged from the president's office. He spoke to Wesley. The assistant cashier flushed, grew pale, then arose from his desk and went himself into Mr. Steven's office, closing the door behind him.

A moment later the vice president's wife came back into the bank, for she had made one visit there earlier in the morning to get her statement. "Oh, Miss Milton," she said sweetly, "I believe I left my gloves in here, has anyone seen them?"

And Grace obediently searched for Claire Whittaker's gloves, murmuring politely as Claire suggested various places in which they might be found. Funny how things get lost, she heard Mrs. Whittaker say to Jake Evans, and the paying teller smiled.

"I don't believe you left them here," the girl finally said. "Remember you brought your little boy, in and he stayed while you went . . ."

"To the manicurist!" Claire Whittaker exclaimed. "Just where they are!"

She dashed out, and Grace shrugged as Jake Evans laughed and said Mrs. Whittaker was always losing something. Once she'd even lost Bobby, her seven-year-old son. This seemed a day for losing things, he observed with sarcastic emphasis.

"I wish she wouldn't run in here and leave that spoiled child for us to look after while she's shopping," Grace said as she turned back to her filing.

The whole day seemed to have begun wrong. Usually such a cheerful, friendly place, the bank now seemed to have taken on the aspect of a prison. The vice president talked for a long while over the 'phone, then a strange man came in and conversed with him earnestly. Together they went into the president's office, where Wesley Miner was still closeted. Then Mr. Graham Gayle, father-in-law of the assistant cashier, came in and joined them. When they at last let Wesley out he looked like a ghost. "Playing the market, eh?" the stenographer heard old Mr. Gale say accusingly, and she saw Wesley cringe. So they'd got that out of him?

She remembered Matilda Gayle, now Matilda Miner. A pampered, rather stupid girl who had been one of her schoolmates. "She'll believe he did it too," Grace thought sadly as she put on her hat and went out to lunch.

But she ran across Matilda almost immediately, and was astonished at her words of greeting, the tensely proud way she held her head. They're actually accusing Wesley, Grace! Can't we do something about it?"

"Let's go and see Tom Winston about it," suggested the stenographer, after she had listened to Matilda's account of the family scene at her home when old Mr. Graham had heard of Wesley's accusation.

Tom Winston, leading attorney-at-law in the town, received the girls in his office. They plunged at once into a spirited recital, talking simultaneously, contradicting each other, until Tom held up his hands helplessly.

"One at a time!" he pleaded. "Grace, you first. Tell me everything that happened at the bank this morning. Everything you heard."

Grace paused thoughtfully. "We-ell," she began, when Matilda, having restrained herself to the utmost, burst into a flood of tears.

"Come now," said Tom kindly, "we're going to find out the truth, Matilda. There may be some person who has something against Wes' . . . though I can't imagine . . but go on, Grace, tell us everything."

"The package of bonds was on his desk," the girl began solemnly. "I saw them when he was talking to Mrs. Whittaker about her account. It's almost always overdrawn. She'd brought that boy of her's little Bobby Whittaker, into the bank with her and he was running about making a nuisance of himself as he always does. Finally even his mother was annoyed, and she made him sit down at Wesley's desk while she finished talking about her statement."

Grace paused suddenly. She looked at the weeping Matilda and shivered slightly. "There's something I've got to say," she finally announced in a flat tone. "Jake Evans came to me and accused Wesley just as soon as the bonds had disappeared. He was excited about it . . . he acted strangely, talked real mean about Wes'. I . . . I've heard that he's sore because Wesley was promoted to be assistant cashier, right over his head. But I don't really believe. . ."

Matilda had lifted her tear-stained face, stared at Grace intently. Now she cried out excitedly: "He did it! He did it to ruin Wes' so he could get the job!"

"His attitude is certainly strange," observed Tom Winston with a gravity which seemed to bring calm, "we'll look into it and have him questioned."

So Tom, acting as lawyer for the assistant cashier, came to the bank to inquire into Jake Evans' rash remarks, and there was another long session in the president's office that afternoon to which Jake was dully summoned.

Claire Whittaker called early to drive her husband home as they had a dinner engagement. "Another conference?" she asked impatiently. "Well, wait here then, Bobby, with Miss Milton, while mother goes across the street. I'll save that much time, but we're going to be dreadfully late anyway!"

Bobby Whittaker sat quietly on the chair by Grace's desk. Once or twice she looked at him, was puzzled at his subdued air. "What's the matter, Bobby?" she finally asked in a teasing tone. "Lost your marbles?"

"Nope, it's mother's ole gloves," replied the boy sulkily. "She's been after me all day long about 'em. Don't you tell on me, Miss Milton. I said I hadn't had 'em, but I did have 'em. You see, I was sittin' at that desk over there, and I pulled a drawer out. There was a hole at the back, and I shoved some ole papers in to see if they'd go through. They did. Then I picked up her ole gloves and chucked 'em in without thinkin' what I did. They'd have to take the desk apart to get 'em out, and I'd get a whalin'. They were ole gloves anyway."

"What papers?" asked Grace, jumping up excitedly.

"Jus' a lot of junk lying there on the desk. Sorter dirty, raggedy papers. I wouldn't have touched nice, clean ones. I pushed 'em in to see if they'd fall through, and then I jus' picked up the ole gloves . . ."

A moment later the bank stenographer startled an assemblage in the president's office, composed of the bank officials, a representative from the insurance company, and the chief of police. "Neither of the boys took the bonds," she declared. "You'll find them stuck behind the drawers of Wesley's desk. And if Mr. Whittaker will ask his wife to keep Bobby out of this bank—which isn't supposed to be a kindergarten—we won't run the risk of having such a thing happen here again!"

"It beats time how people treat you," commented the paying teller next day. "Wesley wasn't noticed, never amounted to anything, 'til he ran away with Matilda Gayle. Then he was made assistant cashier. He stands well, now that he's been accused of stealing bonds . . .and as for me, ole man Stevens has asked me up to his home to dinner tonight, and my salary's been raised! I guess I've got you to thank!"

"Oh, Jake," cried the little stenographer, "I never thought . . ."

Jake patted her shoulder kindly. "Forget it, kid!" he said. "It was nobody's fault . . . just Fate, and Bobby Whittaker."

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their systems. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

W. B. Caldwell MD
AT AGE 83

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. A trial is sure to convince any household of the merits of this famous prescription.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

RADIO WITHIN REACH OF EVERY SCHOOL ROOM

Preparations are at last complete for the launching of the Sun-Telegraph-Stanley-Warner Brothers' campaign to place a radio receiving set in every class room!

Possessed with the idea that Pittsburgh schools should keep their leadership in educational methods, the sponsors of this campaign have arranged to make its use practical in the Pittsburgh schools.

VALUE RECOGNIZED

Educational leaders throughout the city and county have recognized the value of the movement.

The campaign makes possible, without cost to the city, the installation of a complete eight-tube No. 53 Atwater Kent self-contained set with Electrodynamic loud speaker built in.

The way has been cleared for special broadcasting of instructive programs over station WJAS at times convenient to the city schools. This broadcasting is to commence as soon as arrangements of schedule and subject can be made and should be in operation by the time the first radio set is installed in a Pittsburgh school room.

The campaign which the Sun-Telegraph is to conduct in conjunction with the Stanley-Warner Brothers' Theaters will be based on orders for delivery of the Sun-Telegraph for 13 weeks.

As soon as the pupils of any school room succeed in obtaining 125 subscription orders for the Sun-Telegraph, the radio set will be installed in that room without cost. There will be no delay in installation—sets are now ready and waiting for installation.

MINISTER APPROVES

In approving of the campaign, the Rev. Dr. Paul E. Campbell, superintendent of the Parish Schools, said yesterday in a letter to the Sun-Telegraph that "a great opportunity lies before the radio in the field of education. It has already availed itself of that opportunity in some measures. But there are vaster possibilities. Perhaps Pittsburgh, through your efforts, will be first to realize them. Carefully planned programs will supplement the work of the teacher in the classroom."

These subscription orders are for 13 weeks at 18 cents a week for the daily Sun-Telegraph and 28 cents for daily and Sunday. Either order counts for one full point toward the radio. Prices are slightly higher by mail.

Order blanks may be obtained now at any Stanley Theater or at the Sun-Telegraph offices, Gazette square. Organize your class room and start work on this amazingly easy campaign now!

Asks New Trial In Damage Case

A motion for a new trial in the damage suit of Miss Marie Hyer, 21 of Edgewood, against Thad W. Byrne, merchant and Attorney Bentz Craddock Glenville, W. Va., was made yesterday before Judge Josiah Cohen in Common Pleas Court. The plaintiff had asked for $35,000 damages alleging that Bryne with Craddock and two officers went to the Hyer home in March, 1927, to try and get possession of a $600 diamond ring that Byrne had given the girl as an engagement ring, she afterward refusing to marry him.

Firemen's Physician Seeks Fee From City

Dr. H. Ryerson Decker has submitted to council bills for $325 for treatments to City Firemen Frank Hagen, Fred Krause and Charles McDermitt, whom he attended in Presbyterian Hospital for injuries suffered while on duty. The doctor forwarded a reply he received from Safety Director James M. Clark stating that, on the advice of the city law department, no bills would be recommended for payment when the patients were city employes under treatment in hospital wards.

Man Is Held, Loses Car on Wine Charge

Charged with possession and transportation of eight gallons of wine, Abraham Bloomenthal, Inverness street, was held for court by a United States Commissioner today. MAN BORN HERE TO BE EXILED AS ALIEN

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar in an opinion Monday held that Stephan Rojak, of Rankin, who was born in Braddock, expatriated himself when he entered military service of Czecho-Slovakia on October 3 1921. The court remanded Rojak to the custody of W. H. Marshall immigration inspector in the Pittsburgh district, who has a warrant of the Department of Labor for Rojak's deportation.

Rojak has fought the deportation order on the grounds that he is a citizen of the United States and unwillingly entered military service in Czecho-Slovakia and was ignorant of his rights as an American citizen. At a hearing last week before Judge McVicar of a habeas corpus proceeding brought by Rojak against Inspector Marshall, it was testified that Rojak, when 5, was taken to Czecho-Slovakia by his mother, and he remained there until April, 1925, when he went to Canada and subsequently entered the United States at Detroit.

Later he was arrested and ordered deported. Judge McVicar, in the opinion, said that besides swearing allegiance to Czecho-Slovakia when he joined the army, Rojak also represented himself as a citizen of the latter country when he procured a passport to enter Canada, and that he also claimed Czecho-Slovakian citizenship at the first hearing on deportation.

According to records of the case, Rojak was born in Braddock on March 28, 1900.

Babe Safe, "Mad Dog" Menace Dead

"There's a mad dog at 1327 Olivant street and a baby, unprotected, on the second floor."

This telephone message to Frankstown Avenue Police Station today sent Patrolmen Clyde Holiday and Joseph Thompson speeding to the home of Guy M. Sayre, at the Olivant street address. They found "Queenie," a German police dog, stretched out on the floor of the living room, dead, evidently from poisoning.

Mrs. Sayre told police the dog had appeared mad and stood menacingly between her and the stairway when she sought to reach her 2-month-old son, Guy, on the second floor. She ran out and notified neighbors, who called the police.

SIX COUPLES ASK DIVORCE

Alleging that her husband was guilty of misconduct, Elizabeth H. Faul, 117 Shady avenue, has brought suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court against George H. Faul. It is averred in the libel that the couple were married in 1902 and that during 1923 and since that year the respondent was indiscreet in his attentions to Jessie Wetzel, whose address is not given. The respondent avers her husband's last known address was 3911 Forbes street.

Catherine Emma Forsythe, who married in May, 1927, and separated in April last year, has filed a divorce libel against John W. Forsythe. She charges him with cruel and barbarous treatment.

Kate Ritter, 226 Forty-third street, who was married in October, 1912, and separated from her husband the following October, wants a divorce because he was arrested in Philadelphia for a serious offense and sent to the penitentiary for 10 years. In her libel in Common Pleas Court by Attorney E. R. Edmundson, she sets forth that her husband was released from prison in 1919.

Mary J. Binder, 5441 Penn avenue, wants a divorce from Charles L. Binder because she alleges he deserted her. They were married in March, 1921, and separated the same year.

Florence Pitts, 145 Camp avenue, Braddock, who was married to Albert Pitts in March, 1917, and separated in 1927, has filed a libel against him. She charges him with cruel and barbarous treatment.

Etta Duke, 820 Moore avenue, is suing Royal Duke for divorce, alleging cruel and barbarous treatment. They were married in 1926 and separated in 1928.

Schantz-for-Governor Cards Distributed

Anonymous campaign cards which predicted that "everybody is going to vote for Senator Horace W. Schantz for Governor" were in the mails here today. From Harrisburg Senator Schantz, of Allentown, said he knew nothing of the literature, which bore the label of a Rome (N. Y.) branch of the Typographical Union.

Clairton Man Freed On Mann Act Charge

A jury in Federal Court today acquitted Louis Latto, of Clairton, on a charge of violating the Mann act. He was alleged to have taken Anna Tolorszk, 17, of Triadelphia, W. Va., from her home to Clairton. The girl testified she was abducted. But Latto entered a general denial.

MINISTERS FILE DAYLIGHT TIME PROTESTS

Additional protests against establishing daylight saving time in Pittsburgh have been forwarded to Council.

The Rev. Dr. Robert W. Woods, minister of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Mt. Vernon street and North Lang avenue, submitted a letter expressing the sentiments of a congregation of 700 persons and a Sunday School of 700.

He said observance of the changed time interferes with children getting the proper rest as it is hard to get them to bed before dark.

"If court and city officials and laborers want to start work an hour early, it can be done without changing time," he said.

The Rev. Dr. Cassius A. Ward, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, 2200 Wylie avenue, declared that 1,260 people present at a meeting on the subject voted against daylight saving time.

John V. Smith stated that a majority of the people were opposed to a defiance of the state and national law establishing Eastern Standard Time as legal.

Her four children are named heirs of a $25,000 estate by Mrs. Sarah L. Shepard, of the North Side, whose will was filed for probate today. Elmer L. Kidney is executor.

OVER MILLION DISTRIBUTED BY 2 ESTATES

Decrees of distribution in two estates totaling more than $1,000,000 were filed in Orphans' Court.

The estate of John Pollock Cameron shows there remains $547,877 for distribution which it is directed be turned over to the Fidelity Title and Trust Company in accordance with the terms of the will, except the balance income of about $53,000 which goes to William Radcliffe, a son who has now reached his majority.

The estate of the late Wilhelmina C. Eberhardt shows a balance of $563,609 for distribution. Of this sum $77,654 each goes to his children, Elma L. Murphy, Salome H. Eberhardt, Melville A. Eberhardt, Lillian Blanche Clark and the same amount in trust to Wilhelmina H. Bunting and George W. and Mart W. Eberhardt, leaving about $80,000 yet to be distributed.

DUNCAN SISTERS LAUD TYPICAL GIRL CONTEST

"The American girl of today is athletic, beautiful, wholesome," said Vivian Duncan today to the Quest editor, "and I'm sure that the nominees in your contest ably bear out my contention." Miss Duncan was speaking for the Duncan Sisters, Vivian and Rosetta, who are at the Stanley Theater this week.

The Duncan Sisters heard of the Typical American Girl Quest with great interest. Rosetta thinks "it's a great idea! What I like about it is that it's so much more dignified than the beauty contests we all hear of." She adds:

"There's something about the American girl, as anyone can see from these pictures, that makes her the possessor of a vast amount of personality. Maybe it's because she is athletic, or keeps thin, or dresses beautifully. Maybe it's all three—I don't know—but I do think she is worth your $5,000 prize and the trip to Paris, if you can find her!"

The sisters agree that the Pittsburgh district nominees constitute as fine a galaxy of beauty and accomplishments as they ever have seen.

"We are glad," said Vivian, "that the Sun-Telegraph is approaching the Quest from the angle of character and accomplishments as much as from that of beauty.

"The girl you pick will probably be beautiful, or, rather, very attractive, but she will also be refined, I'm sure, and of strong character. You know, I think she probably smokes a little, and maybe she sips a cocktail once in a while, but she doesn't go to excess in anything."

The Duncan Sisters join with the Quest Editor in urging everyone to send in their nominations at once. The last week of the contest is under way, and they are anxious that no one be omitted from the judges' consideration.

Send your nomination before midnight of April 7, or, better still, avoid the last-minute rush by mailing the photograph and description at once.

BANDITS BOLD 'HOLD THE BAG'

Two very young bandits opened a black bag today and were deeply disappointed.

The two very young bandits had parked their car in front of the P. H. Butler store at Armandale and Buena Vista, North Side, with motor running.

When E. H. Faust, a collector for the Butler chain, emerged, the pair dashed from the car, shoved revolvers against Faust's person, grabbed the bag and ran.

Now usually Faust's bag is filled with spendable dollars, receipts from the stores. Today it had only paper—store records.

Faust allowed the bandits to have the bag, but he took their license number. It's being traced.

Woman Held as "Fence" for Thefts

Alleged to have purchased stolen automobile accessories from T. A. Jackson, 16, North Braddock, and Paul Lucas, 18, North Braddock, which had been stolen from Braddock garages, Mrs. Pauline Weiss, of Hamilton avenue, Rankin, was held on charges of receiving stolen goods when arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. H. Rose. The boys are awaiting the grand jury's action on a charge of larceny.

BRIDGE RAMP PROTESTS FILED

Twenty-seven representatives of civic organizations and industrial plants in the Woods Run and Manchester districts made formal protest to county engineers yesterday against the proposed Richardson avenue ramp as an approach to the McKees Rocks-North Side bridge, over the Ohio river.

"No ramp would be preferable to the one proposed" was the gist of the objections. It was urged that an eight per cent grade on the projected ramp coupled with seepage and freezing of water on the ramp from the hillside in the winter would make it virtually useless. Richardson avenue has been impassable for 50 years, in the winter, it was declared, by reason of seepage of water.

Another objection was that the ramp would connect with the proposed Ohio River boulevard instead of with the bridge direct, thus throwing heavy trucking onto a highway intended for rapid speed vehicles.

Alderman George A. Young, was spokesman for the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade of which he is president. Park H. Martin, president of the Ohio River Boulevard Association and John H. Bragdon, vice president of the McKees Rocks-North Side Bridge Association represented those organizations in the protest.

V. R. Covell, chief of the county bureau of bridges, who with other engineers, heard the protest promised to consider the objections and to inform the organizations represented of the county's action.

$32,000 Left Wife

George Duncan, of 2918 Versailles avenue, McKeesport, leaves his $32,000 estate to his wife, Anna M. Duncan, and names her executrix in his will which was filed for probate today.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, April 2.

I believe I discovered a way to aid preachers in getting people to church. Publish their pictures in the papers every Monday instead of just on the day after Easter. There is no reason why people should have to wait from one Easter to another.

The only time I ever attended one of those afternoon teas was in the Embassy in Paris at Mr. Herricks' invitation. The American tourists lapped up all the tea before I could get near the tables. But he gave me some awful nice wine after they had left.

He was a fine, jolly, humorous old man.

Yours truly, WILL.

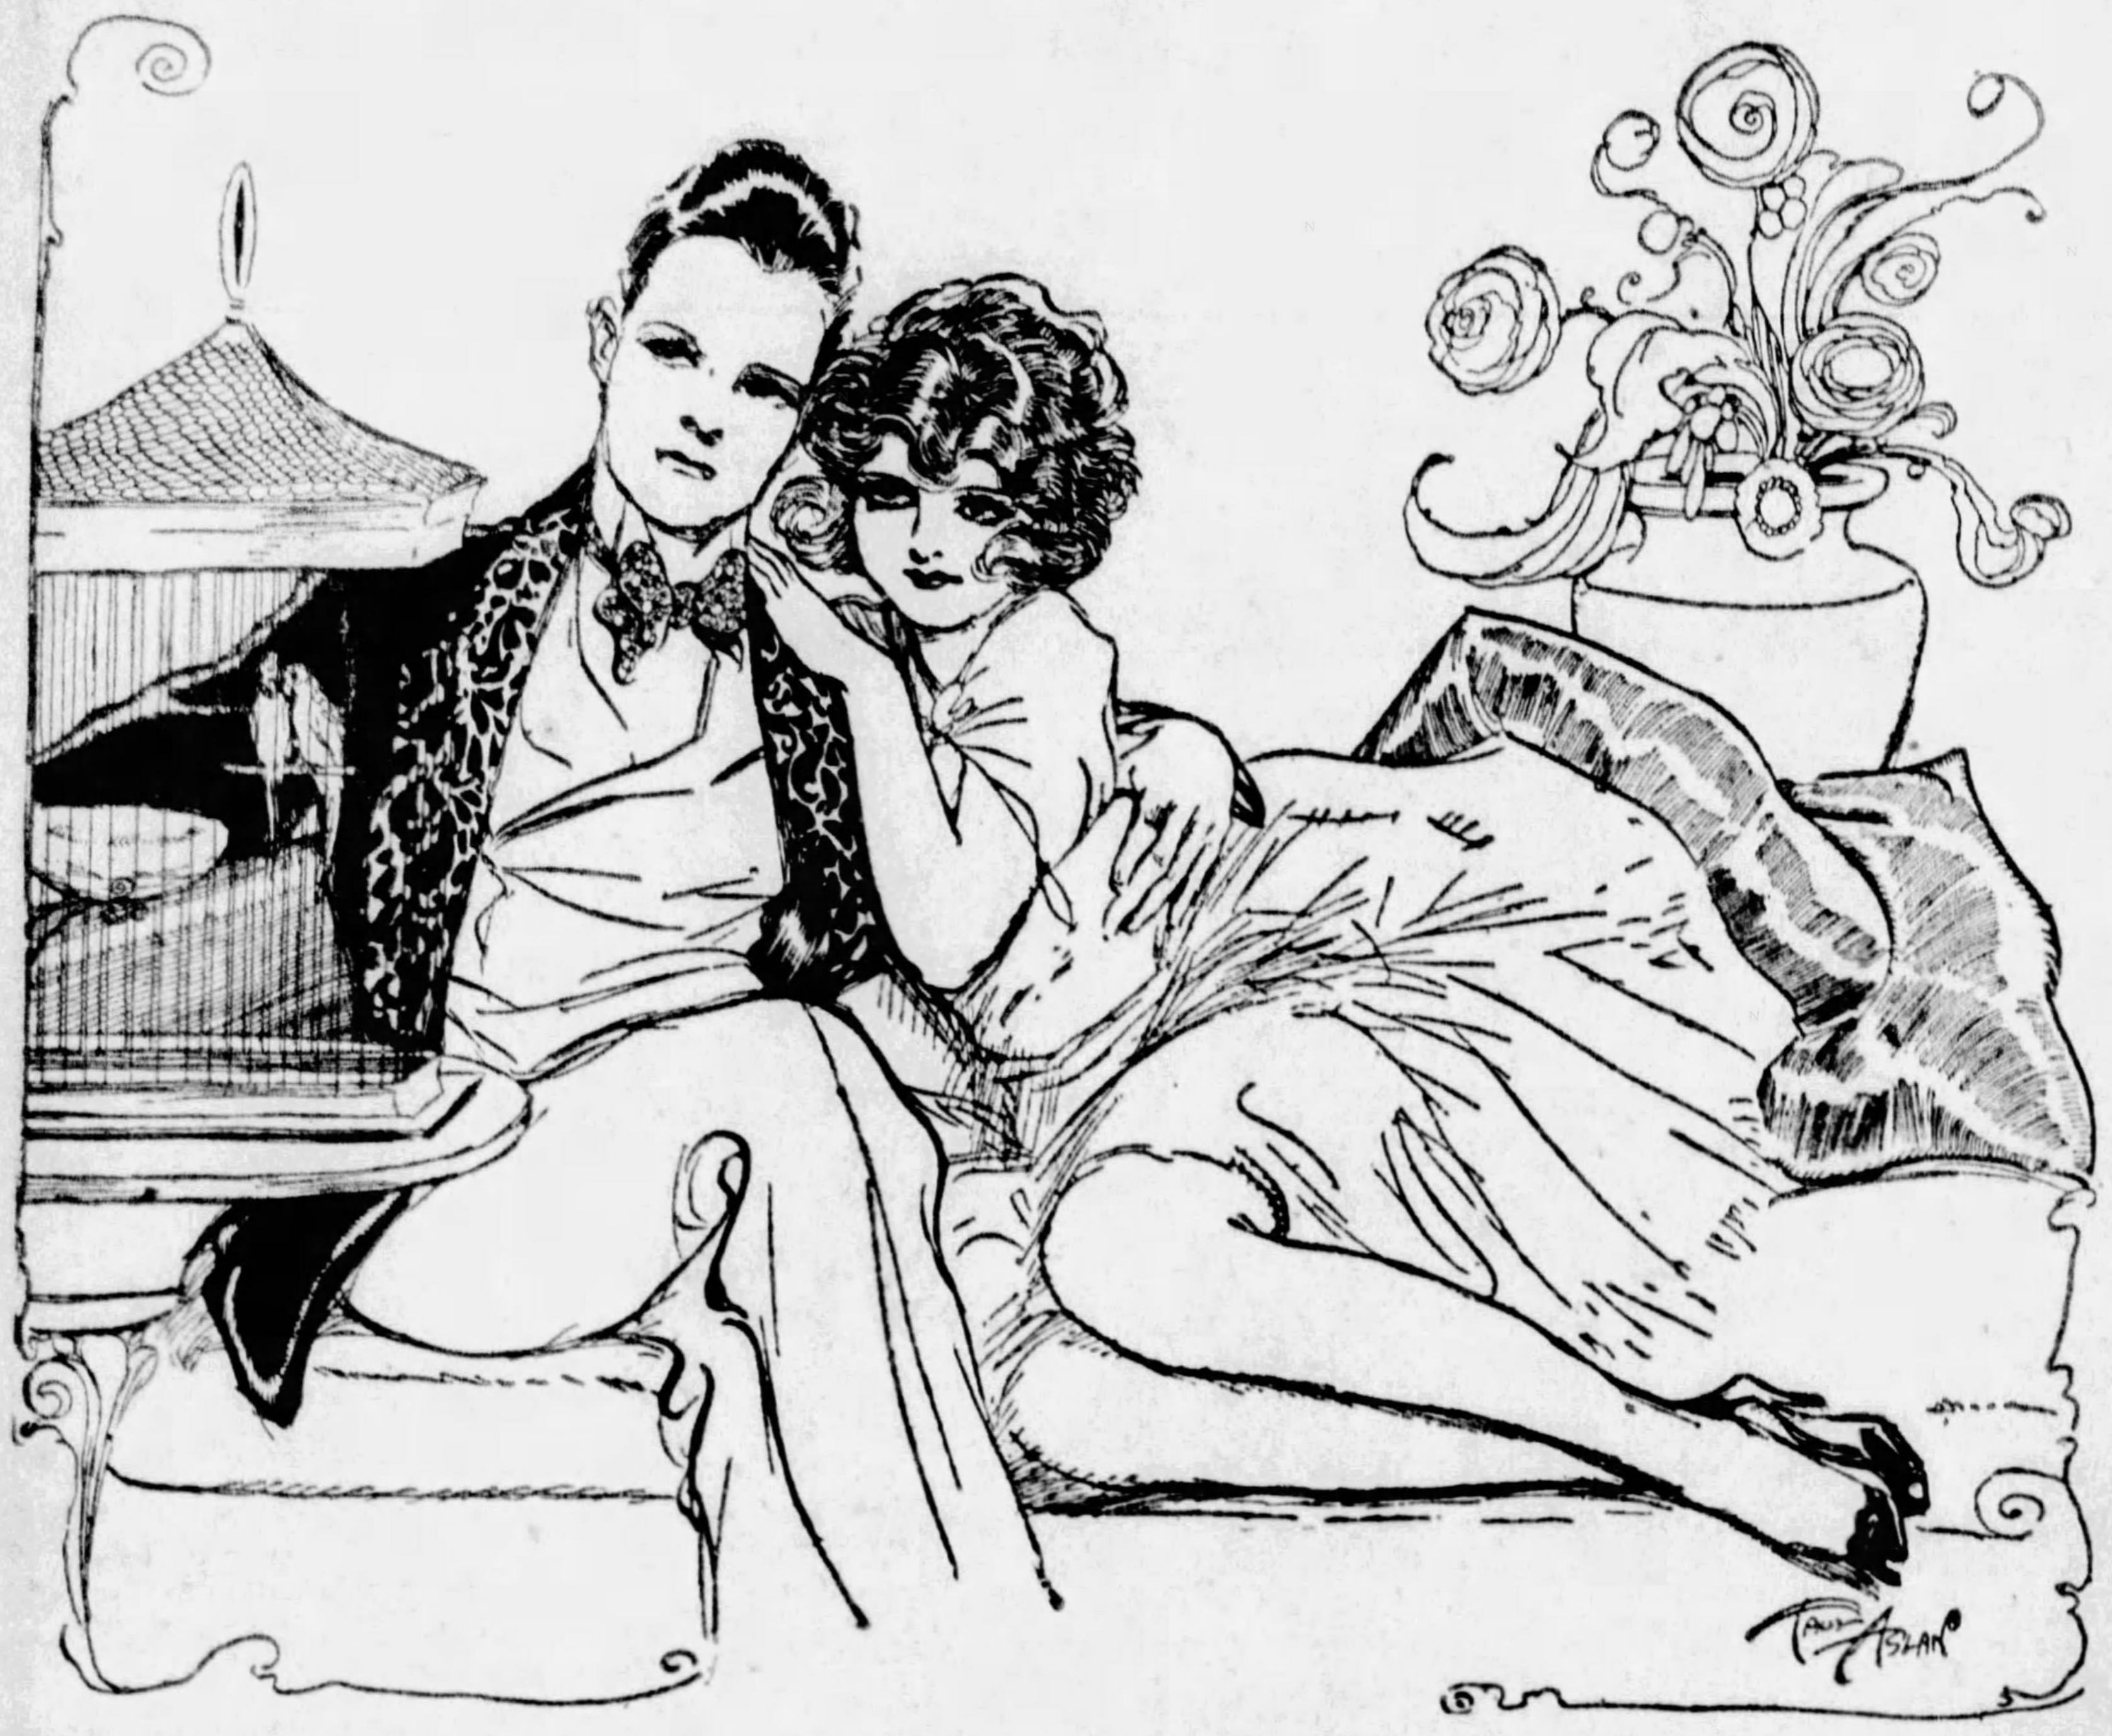
The Love Birds -:- -:- By Paul Aslan



EVERYBODY knows about love-birds and the affection they display for their mates, for they never can live alone. They must be together or else die. So what more fitting than that they be named "love-birds?" For love such as this is the most beautiful thing in the world.

And two who make their home find the love bird a constant inspiration. Why shouldn't they be? For in their affection for each other they remind these two that love is everything in the world that matters. What matter it if funds are low, or everything seems to be going the wrong way, if love abides in the home, then everything is well. For love is wealth—far greater than all the gold the world has ever seen.

And love brings contentment, for striving to bring happiness to the loved one means contentment in his happiness.

Not only the billing and cooing and sweet caresses which they exchange make for love; it's the deeper, finer, lasting love that prompts the outward display of their affection.

So take a lesson from the love-birds. Let them be a source of inspiration to you. "One for all and all for one" applies to the love game as well as anything else. And when you doubt, if you ever do, watch the love-birds a while, and you'll soon lose all the fears and unhappiness and be ashamed that you've ever doubted love for an instant.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Dangerous Conduct

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Bebe's father owns a store and when Bebe goes out with a young man she invites him in (the time being about 1:30 or 2:30. Of course the lights are out in the store—this is the only entrance—and they converse with each other at least 45 minutes. I am her mother and I warn her. Please answer me soon.

ANXIOUS MOTHER.

I AGREE with you wholeheartedly, that you daughter is using bad taste and that she is laying her reputation open to most destructive criticism. Can't you persuade her that such conduct is foolish—VERY foolish—and that it may heap incalculable harm on her thoughtless head? I am sure that now she is being only thoughtless, and that you will be able to make her aware of her lack of taste. Don't nag at her—this will only make her more headstrong—but show her, as we all like to be shown, in a kind, gracious, appealing way, how her actions appear to the world.

Women Withdraw

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When lettuce salad is served, is it correct to cut it with a knife?

2—When eating asparagus, can one take it up in one's fingers?

MISS E. C.

YES, it is correct to use both the knife and fork when we are eating salad. In fact, now several manufacturers of silverware have put excellent salad knives on the market. And for this I am most happy. It has always seemed to me the most ridiculous thing to see people struggling with a difficult salad, such as our ever-popular hearts of lettuce, or romaine, or endive, or a salad with slices of pineapple or other difficult-to-manage ingredients, when it would be so easy and simple to use a knife as an aid to the fork, either a salad fork or the customary medium size or small size fork.

Why not use a knife as well as a fork when we are eating salad? Perhaps if we considered the question from this point of view, we would not, as a nation, shy away from using the knife as an accompaniment to the fork when we are eating a salad.

2—It is not considered good form to take asparagus in one's fingers. As a matter of fact, this is a very messy process. Naturally the fingers get "untidy," and this means that the process is not an agreeable one to watch. Then the fingers must be wiped on a napkin, and this means more untidiness. It is the safest rule of all that we should, whenever possible, eat with our fingers only those items of food that are not moist. The most fastidious eaters use the fork or the knife and fork when eating anything that is, like asparagus, moist. And there are very few exceptions that are necessary to this rule—artichokes, corn on the cob, for instance.

Divorce—and Other Pastimes

DIVORCE is like war. Nobody wants it, nobody approves of it, but everybody is more or less prepared for it, these days.

A modern marriage may be full of problems and surprises—but you must admit that there are very few dull moments in it.

A little coddling and flattery won't hurt your husband. But when you start picking up his clothes, hunting for his shoes, and waiting on him as though he were a spoiled prima donna, you are just ruining him for his next wife.

After a long bachelorhood spent in making love to every woman, a man is sometimes glad to retire to the shelter of matrimony, and enjoy scrapping with one woman, for a change.

Whichever way you look at it, it's a hard life for a woman! When the knees are rococo, the ankles are so apt to be Gothic; and when the hips are down to the vanishing point, the calves are with "yesterday's seven-thousand years."

Nowadays, when a man forgets the morning kiss, his wife doesn't suspect that his love is growing cold; she merely wonders if he is getting enough of the right vitamin.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Fruit and Vegetable Juices Build Health

IN these articles we frequently speak of the importance of taking orange juice, or giving it to infants. Frequently I am asked if there are any other juices that will make up for the deficiencies of the milk or other food?

DR. COPELAND

Tomato juice has the same properties as orange juice. It, too, contains the vitamin C.

This, you will recall, is the agent that prevents or overcomes scurvy, although that too, was overcome by taking fruits and vegetables containing this substance.

In these modern days we insist on getting a full supply of vitamin C, in order that we may escape bad teeth. Likewise, it gives us "pep" and energy, overcoming listlessness and laziness and indifference.

The juices of carrots or beets are much less valuable than orange juice, although they possess this particular vitamin. The juice of the Swedish turnip must not be overlooked, because it is practically equal to orange juice.

By giving the juices of these fruits and vegetables is the only way the baby can be supplied with the auxiliary food essential to its good. Of course, older children and adults can get it through the eating of tomatoes, cabbage, lettuce, spinach, turnips and other fresh vegetables and fruits.

It must be recalled that heat destroys this vitamin. Really, it is not so much the heat, as it is exposure to the oxygen of the air. So in cooking these vegetables, they should be kept covered. The vitamins in acid fruits, like tomatoes, are not affected by heat.

Unless there is a never-failing supply of foods that carry vitamin C, there will be paleness of the skin, loss of appetite, loss of weight, or in a child, failure to develop physically. No doubt the rapid action of some debilitated persons may be traced to this defect in the diet.

There is a popular idea that certain foods are likely to bring on rheumatism or make it worse. One which is frequently referred to as unsuitable to take when there is a tendency to rheumatic complaints is the tomato. I disagree with this theory. In my opinion, tomatoes, apples, oranges and similar fruits are helpful to the rheumatic patient and not harmful.

It is certainly true that nobody can expect to have good teeth without having the proper diet from infancy onward. The essential minerals and vitamins must be considered in taking food. It is not enough merely to satisfy the appetite.

A Continuation of Love's Embers

Madge "Listens In" on Telephone Conversation of Mary's

AT the sound of Mary Harrison's voice talking over the telephone to Prince Georges of Trees, whom she knew only as George Jackson, I braced myself for a disagreeable task—that of listening in upon her conversation. All of us had agreed that it was vitally necessary to keep track of all the young girl's activities until we solved the mystery of her weekly checks drawn to Janet Rawdon, and equivalent to the greater part of her allowance from her relatives, the Braithwaites. But I felt a shame-faced kinship to my little maid, Katie, whose propensity for eavesdropping has earned her the epithet of snooper" from my mother-in-law, as I stood at the telephone with the receiver at my ear. I tried to look as if I were waiting for a dilatory operator to get my number, but I am sure I would have deceived no one who chanced to see me.

To my relief, however, no one came into the upper hall where I stood, and the telephone conversation was mercifully short.

"I haven't a thing to do," Prince Georges asured Mary, after laughing amusedly at her slangy query, "But I am deeply grateful to you for assuming that I ever think—deep thoughts—or any other kind. How can I serve you? I am hoping that is the reason for your telephone. Do you know this is the first time you ever have so honored me?"

There was distinct gratification in his voice, and I felt sudden annoyance with Mary. Her chief charm for this fastidious European prince had been her aloofness—she had made him earn every smile she had given him In his essential ignorance of the little ways of American girls, he might fancy that she was becoming romantically interested in him.

"Thanks for the salad dressing," Mary told him carelessly. "But don't get it into your noddle that I'm perishing of love for you because I called you up," she added, with the appalling frankness of the young moderns.

"If I only could cherish that thought in my 'noddle' I'd be willing to die myself," he told her promptly.

"Well! you won't need to notify the undertaker this morning," Mary informed him dryly. "But I'm wondering if you wouldn't be good-natured enough to take me for a short drive this afternoon. There's a shop in Easthampton where I want to match some embroidery silk, and I don't want to take Auntie Madge's car, for it's the only one here just now."

"Don't think of going any other way but with me," he adjured her eagerly. "I'm overjoyed at the thought of being of service to you. What time shall I call for you?"

"Would half after one be too early?" Mary asked a bit hesitantly, and Prince George's voice faintly echoed the surprise in my own mind. Luncheon would barely be over by that time, ano no shop in Easthampton closed before 6 o'clock while the drive was no more than half an hour at the most.

"Half after one," he repeated a bit doubtfully, then resolutely, "No indeed, that's a perfectly good hour for me. I'll be at your front gate at that time."

"And I'll be hanging over it," Mary assured him laughingly. "Thanks a lot, George. I'll take you shopping the next time you're out of embroidery silk. So long."

She hung up the receiver, and I heard her quick footsteps down the lower hall. With infinite pains I hung up the receiver, and tiptoed to the double doors leading to Katie's quarters and the kitchen stairs. There were many instructions I wished to give my little maid concerning the preparations for the Brixton visit, and I had a dozen things to do besides. But I had made up my mind that I, too, would be at Easthampton that afternoon.

SPORT COMMENT

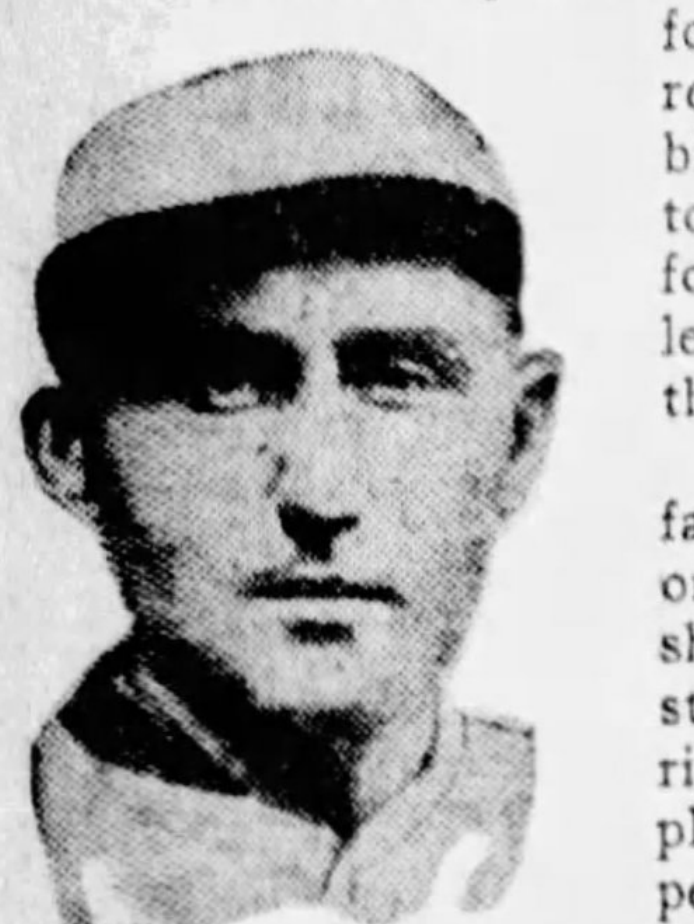
by JAMES J. LONG

Wright Kept at Second.
To Start Season There.
Can't Take Bancroft Out.

One-Armed Pitchers.
Hall's Great Billiards.
Bench Seat for Lary.

PIRATES NOT AFTER SLUGGER JOLLY

THE shifting of Glenn Wright to second base in the Brooklyn lineup to ease the strain on his ailing throwing arm may not be for merely a few days, as reported. It looks as if the former Pirate will not only open the regular season at that position when the big pennant races begin two weeks from today, but will be found on the same job for an indefinite period thereafter. At least that is the latest inside dope from the Dodger camp.



Dave Bancroft

There are two other arguments in favor of extending Wright's stay at second base, apart from the fact that the shorter throw ought to save him from straining the muscles and tendons in his right shoulder before they have completely recovered. One is the unexpectedly great showing that Dave Bancroft has been making at shortstop. Everybody was counting the veteran as about done, and likely to figure only in utility roles this year, but Dave has not only been fielding in surprising form, but hitting the ball in sensational style against all kinds of pitching in the exhibition games.

IN fact Bancroft's hitting has been of such a type that it would be hard to figure how he could be kept out of the lineup without weakening the team. His average up to date is well above .350, and as that sort of start generally means a spring hitting streak it would be folly for the Robin management to take him out before he begins to slow down.

The other reason why it looks like a good bet to keep Wright at second for the opener and later is that D'Arsy Flowers, though he has postponed the removal of his appendix until fall, is still weak and shaky from an attack of ptomaine poisoning and the taking out of his tonsils. He will not be able to play his best game for some time. So don't be surprised if Wright stays at second base for a much longer period than was originally planned.

MUCH ado is being made around Boston over the prospect that when Boston University's baseball team takes the field next Friday for a game with Harvard, a one-armed pitcher may be sent to the slab against the Crimson.

The hurler in question is Bunno Burns. He starred with the Boston University freshmen nine two years ago, but has never pitched varsity baseball, and the chance that he may be sent against Harvard has led to lot of speculation as to how a flinger so handicaped will fare in varsity competition.

George England

YET there is a man right here in Pittsburgh who demonstrated more than four decades ago, that a pitcher can go even higher than varsity intercollegiate baseball in spite of having only one arm, provided he has the heart, the head, the determination and the right kind of stuff. He is George England, who for a number of years has been a Pittsburgh police magistrate. The loss of his left arm early in life did not prevent George from becoming one of the best pitchers in the minor leagues. He stood out particularly n 1887, when he pitched for the Mansfield (O.) club in the old Tri-State League and at other times he hurled for county league teams and strong independent clubs hereabouts.

AND England's value on a ball club was not confined to his pitching ability. He was no weak sister in the other departments of play, but could field his position in fine style and made a creditable record in hitting, too, even though he was forced to swing a bat with one hand and arm.

One of George's playing mates, in fact, his battery partner, became one of the most famous players of all time, as at Mansfield in 1887 his catcher was none other than the late Ed Delehanty. Ed was the outstanding member of the noted baseball family that sent four brothers to the major leagues, and is listed among the greatest hitters in history. He batted over .300 for 11 years in the majors, led the American League in batting in 1902, and was the only player except Bob Lowe ever to make four home runs in a modern game. Playing for the Philadelphia Nationals on July 13, 1896, Delehanty made four homers and a single.

Willie Hoppe

IF Willie Hoppe can succeed in defeating Allen Hall in the 600-point three-cushion billiard match that was opened in New York yesterday he will gain the distinction of having turned back the most sensational angle cueist of 1929.

It is doubtful if any three-cushion star ever made such a brilliant record in a similar period as Hall has placed to his credit since the first of the year. He has been toppling champions and near champions right and left.

HALL started off by defeating in short matches Augie Kieckhefer, of Chicago, and Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, both former world champions. Then he went to New York and surprised the fans at large by twice downing Johnny Layton, present world title holder. He defeated Layton in two 600-point matches between March 4 and 16. This is the first meeting of Hoppe and Hall since last spring, when Hoppe won a 600-point contest with a grand average of 1¼. The winner of the present match is to meet Layton at 600 points before the season ends.

REPORTS from the Pacific coast that the slugging of Smead Jolly, San Francisco outfielder, during the Seals' exhibition games with the Pirates, had made such an impression upon the Buccaneer management that the Pittsburgh club was making every effort to purchase him, appear to have been only some more spring fiction. It is known that the Buc management is not interested in him.

It is learned from good judges that Jolly is not nearly so great a slugger as his record of 45 home runs last year would appear to indicate. They say he hits high flies over or against the fence in a small ballyard at San Francisco, and gets home runs on hoists that would be caught in a real park. It is asserted that all but two of his hits against the Pirates would have been outs at Forbes Field. It is pretty safe to predict that if Jolly ever comes up to the majors it will not be as a member of the Pirates.

SPEAKING of Coast phenoms who fail to live up to their reputations, there is Lyn Lary. After a flossy start with the Yankees in spring practice he has been unable to come up to major league

Mayberry Stops Fox in Fourth

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 2.—Howard Mayberry, Donora, Pa., bantamweight, stopped Midget Fox, of Indianapolis, in four rounds of a scheduled eight-round bout here last night. The end came quickly with Mayberry pounding his opponent around the ring.

In the semi-final, carded for six rounds, Freddie Boylestein, of New Kensington, won on a technical knockout from Eddie Anderson, of Pittsburgh, in the sixth round when the bout was stopped with Anderson in distress.

Tommy Hellman, of Donora, won a four-round verdict from Nick Caruso of Midland, and Ken Davis, of East Liverpool, copped a decision over Johnny Munroe, of New Kensington.

CHAMP SCORES 75 TO SET GOLF PACE

BULLETIN.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, defending champion, was 1 down to Miss Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., at the eleventh hole of their first round match in the North and South women's tournament here today.

Miss Virginia Wilson, of Chicago, was 3 up on Miss Martha Parker, of New York, at the turn. Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, O., former North and South champion, was 2 up on Miss Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, as they went to the twelfth hole.

Miss Glenna Collett, the medalist, was 1 up on Miss Virginia Holzderber, of Baltimore, at the turn.

PINEHURST, April 2.—(AP.)—Glenna Collett, National woman's champion, whose golf this winter has been just so-so, snapped back into form to win the qualifying round of the North and South Woman's tournament here.

The Providence girl showed a pair of heels to one of the largest and classiest fields the event has ever attracted by traveling around the championship course in 35-40—75 for the 18 holes.

FAVORITES ADVANCE

All of the favorites made the first division. Martha Parker, of New York, medalist in the mid-South event at Southern Pines last week, was runnerup to Miss Collett, with a 42-40—82, seven strokes behind the champion.

Mrs. C. S. Hill, of Kansas City, defending champion, finished in a four-cornered tie for third place with Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, Southern titleholder, and Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, mid-South winner. Each of this quartet polled an 84.

Two strokes behind them with 86 came Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., and trailing in order were Helen Hicks, of Long Island, sensation of the winter tournaments in Florida, with an 87; Virginia Holzderber, of Baltimore, 88; Edith Quier, Reading, Pa., 89, and Virginia Wilson, trim little Chicago girl, who turned in a 91.

FIRST ROUND STARTS

Others who will start match play today in the championship flight are Mrs. E. H. Baker, of Boston; Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo; Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago; Mrs. J. D. Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn., and Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, of Philadelphia, who defeated Dorothy Smith, of Flushing, N. Y., in a play-off for sixteenth place.

Pairings for the first round today follows: Miss Collett vs. Miss Holzderber. Miss Hicks vs. Mrs. Baker. Miss Wattles vs. Miss Fordyce. Miss Quier vs. Mrs. Hill. Miss Wilson vs. Miss Parker. Mrs. Jones vs. Miss Van Wie. Mrs. Chapman vs. Miss Orcutt. Miss Turpie vs. Mrs. Barlow.

The largest gallery of the day watched Miss Collett hang up what is believed to be a record for women on the Number Two course by negotiating the first nine holes in 35 or one under par.

The champion had on her putting habits and dropped long ones for birdies on the first two holes. She got a birdie four on the sixth, when her long drive enabled her to reach the green with an iron and added her fourth on the 457-yard sixteenth hole on the way back.

SCHOOL FLOOR PLAY OPENS

CHICAGO, April 2.—(INS.)—By staging a brisk rally in the closing stages of the battle, Raton, N. M., nosed out Portsmouth, N. H., 24 to 23, in the opening game of the eleventh annual national interscholastic basketball tournament today. The game was desperately fought throughout and half-time saw the Easterners in front, 11 to 10.

In the second contest Wheeler, Miss., romped over the cowboy quintet from Winnemucca, Nev., 39 to 9. Wheeler used its second team in the final quarter.

Dempsey Denies Detroit Arena Deal Is On

DETROIT, April 2.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey denied today on his arrival here from New York that he and Humbert Fugazy had taken steps toward purchase of the Olympia sports arena.

Commenting on reports that they planned to purchase the Olympia, Dempsey said:

"Of course if the Olympia is for sale we would be interested in buying it. We would be interested in anything that would help our business. But I don't know that the Olympia is for sale and I doubt if it is. We have heard that the stock could be had for 50 cents on the dollar, but you know how those stories get around."

TRIMBLE LEADS PYLE RUNNERS INTO PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—(AP.)—Troy Trimble, Bakersfield, Cal., who finished fifteenth in yesterday's leg of the bunion derby, was the first to finish today in the run from Morrisville, Pa., to Philadelphia, 29 3-10 miles. His time was 3:38 40.

Herbert Hedeman, New York, was second in 3:39. Guisto Umek, Italy, finished third in 3:45 20, and Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., who was first yesterday, finished fourth. His time was 3:50 12.

Other finishers were, fifth, Ken Mullan, Philadelphia, 3:47 04; sixth, John Salo, Passaic, 3:59 43; seventh, Ed Gardner, Seattle, 4:02 02; eighth, Voight Houfstater, Manistee, Mich., 4:07 10.

ROSIES WIN FLOOR SERIES

FT. WAYNE, Ind., April 2.—In the most brilliant game of the American League world series, the Rosenblums of Cleveland came from behind for the third time in four contests and captured their fourth straight game, 30 to 22, here last night to end the titular event which has been the most successful in the history of the pro sport.

Trailing at half time by three points, the Rosies jumped into the last half and with nine minutes played, had gained a three-point advantage.

From then on, it was a complete rout. The Hoosiers seemingly had given their all in the earlier session.

It was Sox Husta who had the misfortune of being pitted against Borgmann, who put the Rosies to the fore. Pete Barry tallied three times in rapid succession and the new champions had the lead, 24 to 17.

Some brilliant shooting by the home five in the early half made the local passers appear favorites to cop the game. Borgmann and Glasco in particular were able to land the distance with perfect shots, they scoring five between them. The lineup:

Cleveland.		Ft. Wayne.
Barry	F	Borgmann
Beckman	F	Saunders
Lopchick	C	Chadwick
Husta	G	Miller
Dehnert	G	Gascio

Disqualified—Saunders. Substitutes—McElwain. Field goals—Beckman 5, Barry 3, Husta 5, Borgmann 4, Chadwick, Glasco, Miller, End. Foul goals—Cleveland, 4 out of 8; Ft. Wayne, 4 out of 5. Leading scorer—Borgmann 12 points. Time of halves—20 minutes. Score first half—Cleveland 10, Ft. Wayne 13.

ANDY MARTIN TOO CLEVER FOR O'DOWD

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

We thought Andy Martin, the Boston featherweight, was a pip the night we saw him dazzle Johnny Datto, the Filipino, of Cleveland, in the Motor Square ring, early in the current season, but you should have seen the little Italian in the same ring last night with that fighting Irishman, Midget Mike O'Dowd, of Columbus.

Andy Martin

All the boxing wizard from the Bay State did was to win 10 of the 10 rounds and finish pulled up because of a damaged left mitt, suffered at the start of the final round.

And what a fight! All out in the middle of the ring and at more or less close range. Each just standing on top of the other and blazing away, Mike swinging and Andy hitting straight ahead with both fists. The sharpshooter almost invariably wins in a case of that sort. And when it comes to being a sharpshooter, this Andy boy is the original bullseye manufacturer.

FULL OF ACTION

There were no knockdowns, but the action all the way was so torrid that no one would have guessed the principals were a couple of out-of-town boys trying to get by in a strange city. They were so different from the ordinary run of traveling ring toreadors. More glove-throwing was crammed into their bout than usually is seen in a half-dozen windups. Not more than a few times were they against the ropes and the referee seldom had to break them from clinches.

Having seen Martin in two great exhibitions of his ring skill here, this writer cannot help but wonder what a guy has to have to be the world champion in his division when Andy isn't even generally mentioned among the top contenders. He holds a decision over Benny Bass, the former champion, and has whipped many other stars, and if he can't take Andre Routis, the Frenchman, who holds the title now, then last night's hectic melee was an April Fool frameup.

Martin came whizzing out of his corner for the first round, just as he did against Datto, and he never stopped going. He was on top of Mike every second of the route, taking the play away from him with two-fisted punching that never gave O'Dowd a chance to get going. The harder Mike tried the more liberally Martin sprayed punches on his head and body. He was almost ghostly in his elusiveness and persistent attack from all angles. Mike did his part to make it a spirited affair, but it takes more than that to beat a phantom, which is what this Martin is, and nothing less.

Andy sported a two-pound weight edge when they scaled in at 3 p. m., tipping the beam at 125 pounds.

LINGO BEATS STELLMACK

Terry Lingo, of Columbus, 137, outfought Frankie Stellmack, of Cleveland, 135, in the eight-round semi-final, although midway in the battle the veteran Stellmack made matters unpleasant for Terry with a jarring left jab that put him in the fight for a time.

Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, outboxed and outhit Mickey Solmen, of New Castle, in the six-round preliminary, but the judges agreed on a draw, the official verdict, while the referee voted for Solmen, so that Buck didn't get a break of any sort. He also lost a $25 weight forfeit for scaling two pounds over the stipulated 152. Solmen weighed 149.

Young Jacobs, of Canonsburg, sporting a mustache, subbed on short notice for Al Iovino, of Swissvale, against Georgie Tomosky, of Turtle Creek, in the second four-rounder and put up a rattling good fight, although he lost the decision. At 116, he outweighed Tomosky by one-half pound.

Bob Concrete, erstwhile marathon dancer, found the boxing racket a tougher sport in his ring debut against Bob Krape in the four-round opener. Krape tried hard to knock him out, but couldn't do it. Concrete weighed 162½ pounds and Krape 157.

Jack Henderson refereed the main and McTiernan-Solmen bouts and Al Grayber the others. Frank Brown and Jock Simeo were the judges. The largest crowd of the season at the Garden, numbering about 3,500, took advantage of the reduced prices to witness a good fighting card.

ALL-STAR CARD AT GARDEN NEXT WEEK

A card of four eight-round battles will be presented at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, it was announced by Manager John L. Hernon immediately after last night's show.

Phil Goldstein, of the Hill, will meet Ray Newton, knockout-hitting lightweight, of Mansfield, O., in the windup, and Dan Billick, of Swissvale, will oppose Mickey Dugan, of Cleveland, in the semi-final.

Leo Kyburski, of Swissvale, and Johnny Windsor, of Herron Hill, welterweight rivals, will box the second bout and Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, and Allen Beatty, Negro welter, of McKeesport, will round out the bill, one of the best all-star programs arranged here in many moons.

Many changes were noted at the Garden last night. The ring has been entirely rebuilt during the shutdown of boxing in the arena, and the ropes were newly taped, while a new press table has been erected for the working newspapermen. Buck Crouse was there with his new nose, which was something else new in the surroundings.

MEAD RELEASES M'TIERNAN

Eddie Mead, of Cleveland, seconded Frankie Stellmack against Terry Lingo in the semi-final. He announced that he had relinquished his contract with Buck McTiernan, who turned pro under his management in Cleveland and then came back home. Mead was manager of Joe Lynch when the latter was bantamweight champion.

U. S. Carpentier, the New Kensington featherweight, is reported on the verge of breaking with his manager, James (Red) Mason, who is sojourning at Hot Springs, Ark.

The Willie Davies-Midget Wolgast bout at New Castle, originally scheduled for last night, has been set back to April 15, and not April 25, as originally announced.

Only two more shows are scheduled in the Pittsburgh district this week. Tiger Joe Randall and Young Rudy battle at the Moose Temple Friday night, with Jackie Murray and Johnny Vivio in the semi-final, and two 10-rounders are billed at McKeesport Thursday night. Batting Gizzy battling Chet Smail-

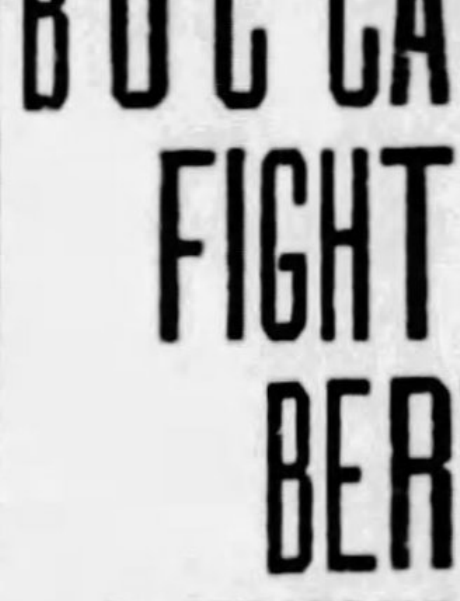
BUC CATCHERS FIGHT FOR BERTH

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

HOUSTON, April 2.—The Houston club sold enough stars of last year's championship team to register a big profit. Many of the players advanced so that Pancho Snyder faces the prospect of building up his club. The local franchise is owned by the St. Louis Cardinals, who in turn have given Houston a fine ball park. The new layout here is much better than the field the Cards and Browns play on at home.

The threat in Rolly Hemsley may be a fine thing for the Pirates insofar as it concerns Charley Hargreaves. The former Robin seems to have lots of ginger, but he realizes that Hemsley stands a big chance of becoming first-string receiver unless Hargreaves shows a lot of class. Anyhow, the competition, like in other fields, is healthful.



Babe Ruth.

The Ohio coal miner appears to be finding himself at the plate. Rolly needs only to be a fair batsman to be a star among the maskmen.

WANER FIRM

The latest communique on Paul Waner was read with interest in the camp of the Pirates. Apparently Paul is firm in his expressed intention to remain in Oklahoma until he is satisfied. It is probable that his case would be decided quickly if he would visit the camp and confer with his bosses. At least, Barney Dreyfuss is said to have made this observation.

Besides winning the Texas League flag, the Houston Buffalo copped the inter-league honors in the post-season clashes with the Birmingham Barons, champs of the Southern Association.

Everybody with Pirate sympathies is anxious about Pie Traynor, who, with the bell only two weeks away, is still bothered with the hip injury he sustained last summer in Philadelphia. Pie at present is in Fort Worth taking treatment from a specialist.

FENCEBUSTERS FACE FRENCH, HILL TODAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

HOUSTON, April 2.—Houston baseball lovers are all dolled up in holiday attire today and hoping it won't rain so that they may see the great spectacle of the Bambino at the plate. At the pretty new ball orchard of the Buffalos this afternoon, the Pirates and Yankees will clash, and, in the event of good baseball weather, a good crowd will be there.

Carmen Hill

The Yankees reached town this morning and they will be on their way again this afternoon. Ruth and Lou Gehrig, the fence-busting twins, have a fairly long fence at which to shoot in Houston, but so far as the Bambino is concerned, there is no park in the country big enough to hold his drives when he connects fairly.

The Buccos are going into battle as if it meant something. True, the

COLLEGES HERE RESUME SPORT ACTIVITIES

By JESS CARVER

Spring football sessions at Pitt and Duquesne and track and field activities at the aforementioned institutions and Carnegie Tech will be resumed this afternoon following the close of the Easter vacation. Hatless Row, as the collegiate district has been nicknamed, will open its annual spring drive, continuing with competition among the trackers, tenniser and squad scrimmages among the footballers until the college year closes in June.

Dan Dougherty.

The Dukes engaged in a bit of scrimmage last week, the day before the squad was dismissed for the rabbit and egg celebrating, and will likely get some more this week. Dr. Sutherland and his aides are bringing the Panthers along carefully, paying the usual strict attention to fundamentals and to the development of new material.

TECH OUT NEXT WEEK

Carnegie Tech's football men have one more week to rest before they too will be called out for spring gamboling with the pigskin.

The Pitt trackmen are out o'doors what with the good weather and the wild odor of the football hefties (who have reported for the weights) in the confines of the track house. Guy Halferty has had his Tartan hopefuls chasing about on the Tartan Bowld cinders for the past two weeks. The Dukes are looking forward to cutting a wide swath in conference track and field circles. Paci and Snellenbach are exhibiting fine form.

MORE TECH RUMORS

Add the name of Dan B. Dougherty to the list of those gentlemen seeking to step into John Irwin's shoes as basketball coach at Carnegie Tech.

Dan's name is on the books out at Carnegie, along with those of Harry Levine, former Coffey Club star and Jack Selznick, coach of the Duquesne Seltzers, former champions of the West Penn (not the penitentiary) League. Dougherty, a Wash-Jeff and Michigan football man, coached the Freeport (Ill.) High School team in 1914, '15 and '16, winning one state title and finishing in the dough the other two seasons. He has since won deserved recognition as an official in football, baseball and basketball.

ALLISON NOT CANDIDATE

Were it not for the fact that Paul Allison, present freshmen basketball coach and assistant Plebe football mentor, was to graduate from the Carnegie engineering school in February, 1930, there would be little chance for any of the present list of candidates for the varsity job.

Allison has been very successful since his advent as frosh director, and would be a 10-to-1 shot to get the job—if he wanted it. But Paul figures on sticking to his engineering work once he secures his degree, and seems set on breaking away entirely from the coaching racket.

Paul knows the game, is a high class fellow in all ways and is the sort of a chap to handle college athletes.

KNICKERS COP WEST PENN CROWN

The Knickerbockers, of Lawrenceville, last night captured the West Penn League championship by defeating the South Side Falcons, 27 to 26, in one of the closest games of the year, staged in the Duquesne University gym before a capacity crowd.

Lindsay Montgomery, Geneva College basketeer, garnered the winning point when, with only two minutes to play, he netted a sweet field goal to break a deadlock. Switala's foul helped, but the Falcons could not gain the needed point to overtake the Lawrenceville outfit.

The Knickerbockers were outplayed for three-fourths of the last of the three-game series last night by the smaller Falcon outfit, but the last period told a tale of woe for the South Siders.

In the playoff for the Junior League crown, the Hilks, of McKeesport, defeated Immaculate Heart, 41 to 11. The Korch Crescents barely beat the Young Men's Club of McKees Rocks, 33 to 31.

The lineups:

SMOKE TALKS
by the DUTCH MASTERS

After all there's nothing like a good cigar to tune the "static" out of life.

For troubles or mosquitoes
Here's a simple recipe—
You'll find it works as well for you
As it has worked for me.
Just light a good Dutch Masters,
Let its fragrance ring you 'bout—
Keep a-puffing and a-puffing
'Til you smoke the critters out.

The man who buys the cheapest cigar he can find, cheats himself out of a lot of pleasure. The man who buys the most expensive cigar, cheats himself out of a lot of money. If you judge a cigar solely by the quality of the tobacco that's in it—try Dutch Masters.

A lot of people are getting sore throats these days arguing about which cigarette is easiest on the throat. You never hear of a cigar smoker worrying about that question.

TOWNS AFTER LOCAL PRO BERTH

By VERN SWARTSFAGEL

It is on good authority I learn that Eddie Towns, former local professional, has been trying pretty hard to land a job back in the Pittsburgh district.

Charley Manning

I was told that he had been dickering with one of the district clubs for a place, but that he was turned down when it was understood the club's regular professional was willing to sign up for another year.

Eddie was a very popular man while in this section, and left home to become the private professional for a Washington, D. C. publisher.

Whether Towns will be able to hook up with a local club or not remains to be seen—or heard. Most of the local pro jobs are closed for the season, with little indication of any great important changes.

MANY BROTHERS PROS

Western Pennsylvania will have three brothers in professional golfers' togs this year in two instances. I speak of the Mannings and Zimmermans.

Nelson Zimmerman will be at the Wildwood Country Club; Dale Zimmerman is to be at Chartiers Heights, and it is thought Harry Zimmerman will return to the Valley Heights' Golf Club.

Charley Manning—Smilin' Charley—will be found at Shannopin Country Club with Pete Manning as his assistant again. Another brother, Jimmy who showed up late last season, is expected to go back to Chartiers Heights.

Charley Manning is very dark, Pete is a blonde. Jimmy is of titan hair. Some combination.

BRANDS, LOEFFLERS

There are several sets of brothers among the pros. Fred Brand, of Allegheny, president of the Tri-State Professional Golfers' Association, and Horace Brand, of Uniontown are brothers. A third brother, Davey, who was at Latrobe, died within the last couple of years.

Fred Brand

Walter Loeffler of South Hills and Emil Loeffler of Oakmont, are brothers. Ben Loeffler and Fred Loeffler of Ellwood City also are of the same extraction — Archie a third brother, is stationed at the Willow Springs Club, near San Antonio, Texas, where he greeted our Pirate baseballers the other day. Ben, Fred and Archie are first cousins to Emil and Walter, and George Underwood, of Alcoma, is another cousin. Then there is Uncle Ernie Loeffler at Wildwood.

Let us not forget the Stewarts—Jack at Thornburg, down in Crafton, and Kenneth at Latrobe, and Ronald Stewart, clubmaker at Wanango. They are related to Fred and Horace Brand.

Charley Rowe, pro at Oakmont, and his assistant, Will, are brothers, while Bert, assistant at another club last year, is Will's son.

McKAYS, McBRIDES

The pro trio of Al, George and Bill McBride was recently broken, when Bill passed on. Al is at Schenley Park, and George at the Country Club of Pittsburgh.

George Swanke is at Sharon, and his brother, Jim, is starter at the Country Club of Pittsburgh.

Yes, Watts Gunn is in town to stay. But let's not get excited until we see if he still has the golf in him he showed during his last appearance at Oakmont in the championship. And I suppose he has.

The Wildwood Country Club will stage its smoker and entertainment tomorrow night in its lovely clubhouse. A big crowd is anticipated.

SCHENLEY TO OPEN

It is said that Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang has given his official sanction to the opening of the Schenley Park municipal links for Saturday—just about three weeks earlier than usual.

It is reported the layout is in splendid shape, although if the present cold spell continues and the turf is still weak, the premature season inaugural for public linksmen may work to a disadvantage.

It may be all right to play now, and the course may withstand the usual daily assault. But if it does not withstand that assault, no one can be blamed but the director for taking the chance. Schenley was in poor enough shape last season. If it gets any worse, it will be just too bad.

Church Dempsey Was Baptized in To Be Razed

MANASSA, Col., April 2. — (AP.)—The little frame church in which William Harris Dempsey, destined to become heavyweight boxing champion of the world, was baptized is to be razed to make way for a handsome new structure. Work of laying the foundation for the building will be started this week by Mormon Church leaders.

Jack Dempsey was born in Manassa and was one of nine children of the family, all of whom were christened in the old church.

Schelroma and Schonfels, of Greensburg, led in the doubles with a total of 1,008 pins for three games, but C. Marfield and Greenwood, with 196 and 198, respectively, were high in one game and in the doubles and lead for the $20 prize hung up therefore.

SANDLOTTERS TO ORGANIZE TONIGHT

By TOM BIRKS

Final plans for the completion of the leading sandlot leagues in the district are expected to be finished this week, quite a number of outstanding loops being scheduled to get together. With April 26, set as the opening of the twilight season, plans will have to be rushed to complete all the business prior to the opening games.

This evening, the Central and West Penn Leagues, being organized by Honus Wagner, will get together at 211 Wood street. These loops will hold the cream of the teams affiliated with the famous ball player, and from pre-meeting gossip, the sponsors expect to line up the schedule with six teams in each league.

It was at first thought that two sections could be named in the West Penn League, but some of the managers objected, so the second circuit will play under the name of the Central League.

On Thursday, local sandlotters will be interested in the doings of the city loop. The meeting was originally scheduled for tomorrow, but the rules' committee asked for an extra day, so Secretary Sweeney called the meeting for Thursday in the offices of the Reliance Life Insurance Company, Fifth avenue.

Much business confronts the managers at this session. A president must be elected, the official league ball will be named, and probably, the umpire question will be settled. That will give the boys plenty to ponder over for a couple of hours. The last session found Everett Sweeney named secretary and F. P. Alger, treasurer. With the naming of this season's president, the officials will be set.

It is expected that the final meeting of the Allegheny Valley League will be held Thursday evening. Jimmy Smith has 12 clubs and now will come the fight on the split. It is reported Smith has worked out a solution for that problem.

PIRATES BATTLE YANKEES

Freebooters will be without the services of Capt. Traynor, who is in Fort Worth seeking solace for his injured hip, yet the rank and file of the Pirates think they have an even chance to take the American Leaguers.

HOUSTON WINS

Manager Bush announced this morning that Carmen Hill and Larry French would have the slab assignment against the Yanks. The veteran righthander and the youthful southpaw are close to top condition for their chore.

The Buccos were trimmed by the Buffaloes yesterday in a hard-fought game. John Shellberg, a young hurler, who two years ago trimmed the Pirates, limited them to three hits over a seven-inning stretch and in the end the Texas League champs won, 4 to 3. Over a five-inning period, beginning with the third round, Shellberg held the big leaguers hitless. He was relieved by Wachtel.

Burleigh Grimes and Ervin Brame worked the game for the Bushwhackers. The spitball star traveled six rounds, it being Burleigh's longest task of the season. Grimes was quite effective, but the natives were hard to check.

COMMY PREVENTS TIE

By getting thrown out at the plate on a close play, Adam Comorosky prevented a deadlock in the ninth. Commy was on third with one out on top of a fine triple which had scored a run. One of Wachtel's pitches rolled about 20 feet away from Catcher Abbott and the Polish flyer tried to go over on the little miscue. He was nailed on a disputed decision.

The Buffaloes played fine ball all the way, Pepper Martin and Williamson of the Cardinals of last year leading in the attack.

Manager Bush expects to prune down his pitching staff and several promising youngsters are curious as to their destination for the coming season. Five or six youngsters of various positions are likely to be placed for the year.

Newton Knocks Out McDonald in Second

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 2.—Ray Newton continued to exhibit his hard punching before local fans here last night when he flattened Mickey McDonald, reputed contender for the junior lightweight title of Canada, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout. McDonald could not stand the pace set by Newton and the brilliant youngster from Mansfield, O., put over a hard right to the jaw that sent Mickey to dreamland.

Ken Hargreaves, of New Kensington, won easily in the six-round semi-final bout over Frankie Buff. Harry Spencer, Washington mauler, defeated Bud Phillips, of Mansfield, O., in another six-round go. Joe Ribnicky, Donora, beat Albert Musselli, of Bellaire, O., in four rounds, while in the opener Petey Patch, of Bellaire, O., won from Smackem Davis, of Washington, in four rounds.

Long's Sport Comment

requirements. Leo Durocher has won the shortstop job, and an extra infielder sitting on the bench most of the time is all that the Yank owners will have to show for the sum they invested in Lary.

"Durocher will play short from now on because he is the better man," Manager Miller Huggins announces. "I knew last year that Durocher could play short well enough for the Yanks. In fact, I felt sure that he would play there this year, though we had to give Lary an inspection.

Leo Durocher

"REALLY, the only question about Durocher's playing short this spring was whether we could make Koenig into a third baseman. It seems to have been accomplished. I am pleased with what Koenig has shown. He likes the new assignment, and I like him there. We gain by the switch, for Koenig is as good a spring hitter as Dugan was, and over the length of the season he will hit better than Dugan. In using Durocher at short, thought must be given to added batting strength to counterbalance Leo's presumably weak stickwork. Batting strength is added at third, and we'll also have added batting strength in the catching department."

Grange - Cochrane Split Opening Cue Blocks

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP.)—After being samped in the afternoon block, Felix Grange, French billiard star, held Welker Cochran of Hollywood, Cal., to even terms tonight in the first two blocks of their 12-block 18.2 balkline billiard match. Cochran won the afternoon block, 300 to 23, in six innings.

Last night the French player won, 300 to 163, in 11 innings. The match consists of 12 blocks of 300 points.

27TH WARD CARDS BIG PROGRAM

With the staging of a big amateur out-of-door boxing show on its own grounds, Monday evening, April 29, the Twenty-Seventh Ward Athletic Club of the North Side will inaugurate its second season; the event will mark the first competition of an auspicious program, under the direction of W. F. Dummer, athletic director, which will include mushball, track and field sports and volley ball and tennis for boys, girls, young men and young women of that community. Old Jack Dillon, famous runner of his day, 66, now and still going, is to have charge of girl's and women's sports at the North Side club, and is at this time developing athletes for forthcoming girls' track meets.

Officers of the club, at a meeting under the chairmanship of President McNally held last night, went over the progress of the organization's first year, and outlined a varied, active program for the coming season, including several events to be held in conjunction with the Board of Trade.

The clubhouse has been entirely renovated, a gym well equipped, the grounds leveled, showers installed; indoor sport rooms provided and the interior decorated among other things. The club membership is at this time more than 300.

MARKET RISES AFTER MIXED OPENING

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP.)—Heavy buying of the oil shares featured the mixed price movement at the opening of today's stock market. One block of 10,000 shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey changed hands at 58⅞, up ⅝, and fractional gains were recorded by Standard Oil of California and others in that group. Miami Copper advanced 4 points on the announcement that the dividend had been doubled. National Cash Register opened 2⅜ points higher and International Combustion advanced 1. Westinghouse Electric dropped 3 points, Vanadium Steel 2¼ and Anaconda, American Smelting and Sears Roebuck fell back a point or so.

Prices turned upward soon after the opening on buying influenced by Secretary Mellon's assertion that the credit situation as it affects speculation had not been discussed at Monday's Federal Reserve conferences, and by the statemnt of Chairman McFadden, of the House Banking and Currency Committee, that no remedial legislation to check stock speculation is needed.

Oils continued to respond to the recent agreement to curtail crude oil production. Early gains of a point or so were recorded by about a dozen issues in that group, including Standard Oil of California, Pan American B, Sinclair, Texas Company, Skelly and Atlantic Refining.

American Express and American Railways Express each ran up about 5 points, American Zinc 4 and Calumet and Arizona and Coca Cola 2 each. Granby, Southern Railway, United States Rubber, Electric Auto Lite and American Bosch Magneto advanced a point or so.

In the initial outbreak of selling Goodyear Rubber and Sparks Withington fell 2 points, Radio 1¾ and Nash, International Nickel, Chrysler, Kolster, Davison Chemical and Coty yielded a point or so, but these losses were cut down in the recovery which set in soon after the opening.

AROUND THE WORLD EVERY SIX HOURS

FIGURES sometimes reveal amazing facts. For instance, the distance traveled each day by the 1194 cars of the Pittsburgh Railways Company is equal to four times the distance around the earth. If one car were to do the traveling in a straight line, at the combined speed of the 1194, it would encircle the globe four times in twenty-four hours.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company is one of the largest surface track railways in the United States. More than a million car rides are taken by Pittsburgh people every day. This traffic requires an operating force of approximately 3,000 trainmen. The total payroll of the railways company is over $9,000,000 annually, which is more than 40% of the gross revenue.

It is facts such as these that bring home a realization of Pittsburgh's metropolitan character.

You will find at the Mellon National Bank a cordial welcome as a depositor, regardless of the size of your account. It is a simple matter to open a checking account and it will prove of great convenience to you.

FINANCE

The Company met its maturing obligations and expended approximately $46,000,000 in 1928 for improvements on its own road and equipment in addition to the expenditure of large sums by its leased and affiliated lines. Work continued during the year on large terminal improvements at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

The important items of new equipment placed in service were: 13 freight and passenger locomotives and 523 steel passenger, baggage and express cars. 1,486 improved hopper cars were also acquired, in addition to 104 locomotives and 2,904 freight cars acquired from Leased Companies. The order placed last year was the largest combined order for steel passenger cars ever placed at one time in railroad history. The Company now owns about 20% of all the steel passenger cars in the country. This additional steel passenger equipment makes possible the retirement of the last of the wooden passenger cars from regular steam service.

To pay for additions and improvements, to retire equipment trusts and other obligations and to reimburse the treasury for capital expenditures already made, an allotment of $62,500,000 of capital stock was made to and subscribed by the stockholders during the year at $50 per share in amounts equal to 12½% of their respective holdings. A further allotment of $17,500,000 was made to the employes at $50 per share, as authorized by the stockholders, to be paid for in instalments. Subscriptions were made by more than 100,000 employes in all departments of the service.

To provide for future requirements, in the interest of improving and expanding the Company's facilities and services, there will be submitted to the stockholders at the annual meeting the question of authorizing the Board of Directors to increase the Company's capital stock by $100,000,000, making the total authorized $700,000,000.

The Company has paid a return to its stockholders in every year since 1847. It is now owned by 154,008 stockholders who reside in every state of the Union and nearly all foreign countries.

The total reduction in funded debt and other fixed obligations during the year was $33,358,984.

OPERATING EFFICIENCY

Steady improvement in operating efficiency ever since the end of the period of Federal control is reflected in the progressive reduction in the ratio of operating expenses to operating revenues. Operating ratio for the lines in the System last year, the eighth successive year in which a reduction, as compared with the previous year, was effected, was the lowest since 1916. Ratios for the last eight years were:

1921...87.6% 1925...78.3%
1922...82.4% 1926...77.5%
1923...81.8% 1927...76.9%
1924...80.2% 1928...73.8%

PAYMENTS FOR WAGES, TAXES AND MATERIALS

The Pennsylvania Railroad operates directly about 90 per cent of the mileage of its entire system. The remaining lines are controlled through stock ownership. The consolidated system embraces 11,515 miles of road with track mileage of 28,035.

In 1928 the Pennsylvania Railroad System
—Paid about $344,000,000 in wages to employes or nearly 49% of all its operating revenues.
—Paid in taxes $41,800,000.
—Paid for fuel, materials, supplies and improvement work almost $200,000,000.

PUBLIC SERVICE

The Pennsylvania Railroad System operates a daily average of about 3,800 passenger trains and 2,900 freight trains. During the year the service performed was equivalent to moving one ton of freight over 45 billion miles and to carry one passenger a distance of more than 6 billion miles. During the year 14,344,000 tons of fuel were consumed by locomotives. The maintenance of the property required the installation of 4,046,000 cross ties and 237,000 tons of new heavy steel rail. Over 6,000 miles of track are now laid with 130 pound rail.

COORDINATED RAIL, AIR AND MOTOR SERVICES

During the year the Company began to put into effect its long studied plans for coordinating rail, air and highway services to meet the needs of the public and to develop the company's transportation business. The Company is cooperating with various companies specializing in motor traffic and plans have been worked out for coordinating rail and bus lines in a large part of the territory served by the Company. A service has been inaugurated for less than carload freight through the use of portable steel containers to be carried on either specially equipped railroad cars or motor trucks. Plans are also being rapidly completed by Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., in the formation of which the Company joined last year, for a combined 48-hour rail-air route to be opened this summer between New York and Pacific Coast cities.

ELECTRIFICATION

The Company has authorized electrification for freight and passenger service of 325 additional miles of line and 1,300 miles of track to be carried out progressively during the next six or seven years at an estimated cost of $100,000,000. This program is planned to meet the future industrial and transportation situation in the East including terminal developments under way or projected. When completed the Company will have 658 miles of line and 2,260 miles of track under electric operation and a completely equipped electrified service from Hell Gate Bridge, N. Y., connecting with New England, to Wilmington, Del. and Atglen, Pa., on the Philadelphia Division.

• • •

The factors chiefly responsible for the Company's progress during the year and for its increasing financial success are: Large capital expenditures to improve and expand the railroad's plant and facilities; progressive improvement in operating efficiency and economy; cordial cooperative relations between the management and employes, and the continued patronage of the public whom it has been a pleasure to serve.

W. W. ATTERBURY,
President.

STOCKS RISE AS FRESH BUYING DEVELOPS

NEW YORK, April 2—(AP.)—Speculative confidence in the stock market appeared to have been restored today, when fresh buying operations developed in the oil, public utility and steel shares. Call money renewed at 12 per cent, but was expected to work lower as the April 1 dividend and interest checks returned to the banks. The recent gyrations in money rates, and the controversy that has developed therefrom, has had a restrictive effect on speculative operations, trading showing a further marked reduction in volume.

There were several developments in the day's business news that had a cheerful effect on sentiment. President Grace, of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, told stockholders that operations of the corporation were practically at capacity, and that the outlook for the industry was excellent. Private advices from Tulsa indicated a sharp drop in crude oil production. Francis H. Brownell, vice-president of the American Smelting and Refining Company, told stockholders that earnings in the first two months of the year were at the rate of $9.65 a share annually, as a result of the high price of copper.

CREDIT TIGHT.

Credit conditions continue tight. Time money was quoted as high as 9 per cent for the shorter maturities. Wall Street derived considerable comfort from the statement of Chairman McFadden, of the House Banking and Currency Committee, that no remedial legislation was needed to correct the evils of stock speculation and his advice to the Federal Reserve Board "to leave Wall Street alone and let it boil over of itself rather than do things which, if continued, will put at risk the general prosperity of the country." Reports from the Treasury Department that income tax collections will provide a surplus of $100,000,000 or over at the end of the fiscal year also were well received.

Express shares were buoyant in today's market, Adams scoring 34 points to a new high high at 624, while American and American Railways each jumped 16½ points. International Telephone rallied 11 points to 272, or 20 points above yesterday's low, and Wright Aeronautical converted an early loss of 5 points into a gain of 6½.

Rumors were in circulation in Wall Street today that the Cutten, Fisher and other large financial interests, previously identified with the leadership of the "bull" movement, had liquidated freely of their speculative holdings. The action of today's market, however, disclosed little evidence of any extensive liquidation.

PIERCE SOARS

Pierce Arrow preferred soared 9¼ points, but rallying tendencies in the other motors were held in check by unconfirmed reports that the recent break in stock prices had brought about some cancellations of spring orders.

Commercial Solvents ran up 10¼ points and Otis Elevator, Curtiss Greene Cananea Copper, Safeway Stores, A. M. Byers, Electric Auto-Lite, St. Joseph Lead, Johns Manville, Lambert American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, National Cash Register and Commercial Credit all sold 4 to 8½ points higher. Bethlehem, Vanadium and Republic, all up 3 points or more, led the advance in the steel shares. Superior Steel moved into new high ground.

Profit-taking sales predominated for a time in the afternoon. Radio reacted 4 points and International Telephone and Telegraph 6. Baldwin Locomotive dropped 13 points to 250. Renewed accumulation of the oils, particularly the Standard group, in the final half hour was supplemented by demand for prominent motors. Radio rebounded again to above 104. The market closed strong. Total sales approximated 3,700,000 shares.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, April 2.—Buying in Chicago against selling in the Northwest to close out recent spread trades turned wheat prices here sharply upward in the late dealings today. Wheat advances here were assisted by a better tone in the stock market. Besides, Chicago wheat offerings toward the last were light and the pit surplus was readily absorbed, with outside business here larger as wire service was better. Reported need of rain in parts of Kansas was also a late stimulating factor.

Wheat closed firm, ⅛ to 1⅛c net higher; corn, ¼ to ½c off; oats, unchanged to ⅛@⅜c lower, and provisions varying from 5@7c decline to a rise of 40c.

Wheat traders here leaned to the selling side of the market much of the time today and found buying support lacking as a rule, except on declines in price or from previous sellers who were in a position to collect a profit. Absence of domestic crop damage reports gave incentive for selling, and as did 2,048,000 bushels increase in amount of wheat on ocean passage. Meanwhile, relative strength of Liverpool wheat market was ascribed to lack of pressure by wheat offerings from Argentina, where port labor troubles appeared to be extending.

Graybar Dividends.

Employe-owners, ranging from office boy to chairman, received the first proceeds of their mutual ownership in the Graybar Management Corporation yesterday, when directors of the company declared a cash dividend of 1½ per cent for the first quarter on all common stock outstanding. The Graybar Management Corporation was organized late last year to effect the purchase of the Graybar Electric Company from the Western Electric Company. Total business of the Graybar company in 1928 amounted to $75,000,000. According to officials of the company, this payment to the employes, 98 per cent of whom subscribed to the stock purchase plan, constitutes a unique record in the industrial relationship of capital and labor. In announcing the payment yesterday, Mr. Loughborough, manager of the Pittsburgh house, expressed keen gratification and thanks to the employes for their co-operation and faith in working for the success of the plan to which they had subscribed. The Graybar Electric Company was organized in 1926 to take over the supply department of the Western Electric Company. It has a nation-wide system of 71 wholesale houses for the distribution of products, which include radio receiving sets, washers, ironers, vacuum cleaners, electrical exercisers, fans, lighting fixtures and similar articles.

Corporate Profits Expand.

Earnings on 75 leading common stocks traded in actively on the New York Stock Exchange showed an average increase in earnings of 70.6 per cent over a year's time, Morris Brown & Co. points out in their monthly publication, The Market Index. The greatest single increase in earnings, percentage-wise, was gained by Tidewater Associated Oil, whose earnings rose from seven cents in 1927, to $2.01 a share in 1928. Heaviest single loss of any company in the group was suffered by the American Locomotive Company, whose earnings fell off 60 per cent over the same period. Unfilled orders on the books, however, show an increase, with additional orders in sight. Crosley Radio showed a gain of 392.2 per cent; Brunswick Terminal, 355.2 per cent; Commercial Credit, 241 per cent; Calumet and Hecla, 454.4 per cent; Motor Products, 654.9 per cent, and Adams Express, 45.7 per cent.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Raw sugar was unchanged today at 3.61c for spots, duty paid, with sales reported of 70,000 bags of Cuban to an outport refiner for April shipment at that level.

Raw futures opened 1 point lower to 1 point higher. Near months were off a little under liquidation and trade selling, while the later positions held steady on covering and some outside demand. Offerings of nearby sugars at last paid spot prices. Restricted aggressive operations and trading was light throughout the rest of the forenoon. Prices at midday were about unchanged to 1 point lower.

Refined was unchanged at 4.90c for fine granulated. Second hands were offered more freely below this level. There were moderate withdrawals, but not much new inquiry.

Americans and G. E. Officials Confer

LONDON, April 2—(AP.)—Thomas L. Chadbourne and Herbert Bayard Swope, representing American shareholders in the British General Electric Company, held a conference with Sir Hugo Hirst and other General Electric officials today on the question of the proposed 1,600,000 £1 new share issue, the terms of which have met with protest by American holders.

Today's meeting was "amicable" but was not productive of a settlement of the dispute. The conference will be resumed tomorrow.

SUPERIOR STEEL TO SHOW SHARP GAIN IN EARNINGS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

Earnings of the Superior Steel Corporation are expected to be on a sharply ascending scale for the remainder of this year. March profits will exceed January and February and second quarter profits which may double the first quarter have been predicted.

Announcement will be made shortly of the adoption of several parts made from rustless iron by leading automobile manufacturers. Superior Steel has a contract with the Rustless Iron Corporation of America giving it exclusive rights for the conversion of this metal into strips. Frank R. Frost, president of Superior Steel, has been elected a director of Rustless Iron. This will closely cement the relationship between the two companies.

BIG FIELD OPEN

One of the outstanding developments in automobile engineering over the next year may be the replacement of nickel-chromium plated brass with rustless iron. A glance at any row of automobiles, whether high or low priced, after a few months' service usually shows the plating worn off the rims of lights and off the door handles. Rustless iron offers a cheaper product than plated brass, which has an equally high finish and which can never wear off or corode.

Superior's margin of profit on the conversion of rustless iron into strips is substantially higher than from the rolling of ordinary hot and cold rolled strip steel. The profits before depreciation of $54,354 in January and of $50,831 in February were shown before any large tonnages of the new rustless product had been rolled. They reflected lower costs which the company has secured on a highly competitive product. March and subsequent months will show the profits on a non-competitive product which is being enthusiastically received by the motor industry.

RECORD BROKEN

Superior's output has been sold for several months ahead. March will break all previous production records. On March 27 the company rolled 1,000 tons of strips in 24 hours on its five hot mills. This was about 40 per cent greater than its previous record days.

In anticipation of advancing prices of steel billets and slabs from which strips are rolled, large purchases were made at substantially lower prices than the present market level. This is also contributing materially to current improvement in profits.

Superior has no preferred stock and only 100,000 shares of capital stock in the hands of the public. This will be increased to 115,000 shares by the offering of rights to stockholders. The only indebtedness consists of $2,006,000 of first mortgage 6s, about one-fifth of which have been purchased and are held in the treasury. With such a small capitalization, any improvement in earnings is substantially reflected on the profits for the stock. The cash position is strong, so that greater earnings can be passed on to stockholders without any protracted delay.

GOOD MARKET EXPECTED

Following its policy of diverting production from highly competitive products to specialties with a large margin of profit, the company has started the rolling of Copperweld steel strips. The billets for these are purchased from the Copperweld Steel Company, of Glassport. With the rapidly rising price of copper this product is expected to find a very good market. It consists of steel with a coating of copper which can replace the solid metal for many purposes.

Thus far not a single pound of rustless iron strips has been returned by purchasers as unsatisfactory. In view of the fact that the price of the product is considerably lower than that of other rustless and stainless steels, the good reception of the product is not surprising. In addition to its uses for automobile trim, flexible cable for leads to automobile lights, and other motor adaptations, the metal can be used for chains and other machinery parts where there is exposure to weather or mild acids.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 2.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 2 to 7 points, with active months showing net losses of about 10 to 13 points by the end of the first hour under further liquidation combined with some Memphis and Wall Street selling. The easier ruling of the later cables from Liverpool and a more favorable view of the weather seemd responsible for part of the pressure which sent the price of May contracts off to 20.47c and the new October contract to 19.87c.

Trading was comparatively quiet, however, and there was enough covering or commission house buying to steady the market at the decline.

Private cables said there had been buying in Liverpool against 3,000 bales of cotton involved in a warehouse fire, with prices later easing on better weather reports and continental selling.

A preliminary private report estimating probable increase in acreage at 4.7 per cent and the area to be planted at 49,137,000 acres, led to a little more selling in the middle of the morning. May declined to 20.40c and the new October contract to 19.81c, making net declines of about 18 to 22 points on the more active positions.

Business tapered off at the lower level, however, and the market was quiet later in the morning, with prices steadier on covering. At midday, active months showed rallies of 7 to 8 points from the lowest. The market was about 10 to 15 points net lower.

Extraordinary Outpouring Of Favorable Dividends.

By B. C. FORBES

MARCH brought an extraordinary outpouring of favorable dividend declarations. This column's exclusive compilation shows that 196 improved disbursements were announced last month, an increase of no less than 97 over a year ago.

Better dividends have been declared during the first quarter of this year by 442 companies, compared with 308 last year, 263 in 1927 and 361 in the prosperous year of 1926.

Total dividends of all kinds, unchanged and changed, declared during March represent a total of fully $350,000,000, against somewhat less than $250,000,000 in March of last year.

THE feature of this year's dividend record has been the unprecedented number of initial declarations. This is due in considerable measure to the creation of well over 500 investment trusts within the last few years. Many of them start off on a dividend paying basis, either on their preferred stock or on their common shares or both. These investment trust dividends are, in reality, little more than duplications, since investment trusts derive their income mainly from dividends paid by corporations whose shares they hold.

PERHAPS a more encouraging feature of last month's record was the unusually high total of 64 extra disbursements. This showing means that a great many enterprises have been making more than normal profits and that they have sufficient confidence in the future to cause them to share these unusual profits with stockholders instead of adding them to reserves.

Increases in regular rates numbered 24.

	Ind.	P. U.	R. R.
Initial	70	3	0
Extra	60	3	1
Increased	24	3	0
Stock	22	2	0
Resumed	3	1	1
Totals	182	12	2

	1929	1928	1927	1926	1925
February	126	98	81	72	64
March	196	99	93	102	81
Total first quarter	442	308	263	361	214
April	...	70	60	60	34
May	...	78	68	54	42
June	...	163	137	98	67
July	...	93	60	54	36
August	...	105	63	57	39
September	...	135	104	85	82
October	...	133	83	69	54
November	...	153	136	103	96
December	...	227	205	184	147
Totals	...	1468	1179	1025	811

IT IS encouraging to note that unfavorable dividend action has been taken by fewer companies this year than either last year or two years ago. During the first three months only 30 companies treated their stockholders less generously than formerly, compared with 44 in the the first quarter of last year, and 44 in 1927.

The fact is that the annual reports now appearing are unexpectedly good in a great many cases. It is common, rather than uncommon, for record-breaking profits to be revealed, especially by large enterprises. This, considered along with commercial failure statistics, gives convincing proof that, as a rule, the strong are becoming stronger and the weak weaker. In other words, it is becoming increasingly difficult for small concerns to hold their own against the rapid growth of powerful organizations, many of them created by mergers.

INCIDENTALLY, these encouraging dividend showings throw light on the enormous increase in the amount of non-bank money being loaned in Wall street. Outside of sums supplied by New York banks and by out-of-town banks, there is today out on call in New York $2,898,000,000 furnished by corporations, investment trusts, foreign lenders, etc. This is $1,620,000,000 more than was supplied from similar sources a year ago. Incidentally, this lending "for others" exceeds the total furnished by all banks combined. Obviously, the increased dividend disbursements are not using up all the additional profits which have been earned by corporations. Also, of course, loanable funds have been enormously increased through new stock offerings during the last year or two.

HAPPILY, the prospect still is that, unless Wall Street and Washington upset things, the 1929 dividend record will prove exceptionally satisfactory.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

The Oils Again.

Heavy calling of loans, with the threat of a higher rate on money, kept the stock market from running away on the up side today, but the list made a very favorable showing under the leadership of the oils and a selected group of industrial specialties. Key stocks were higher, but there was no particular enthusiasm noted in the buying. Oils surged ahead, to new high ground for several of the most important issues in the market. Standard Oil, of New Jersey, was the spearhead of the advance, reaching a new high price for all time and strengthening the confidence of the traders following the other oils. President Hoover was reported as strongly favoring plans for elimination of oil and gas waste and, with the apparent accord of the world oil leaders, it seemed the long-neglected petroleum shares were at last on the road to sustained betterment. Oil shares have been the "Patsies" of the entire Coolidge-Hoover bull market. They have made a dozen different false starts, but the so-called "public" is very partial to the group and runs in on the buying side quickly when it gets the idea that a real move is in prospect. Traders were buying them all along the line today.

Hoover's Attitude on Oil.

President Hoover's attitude toward the effort of the oil industry to follow his conservation move on the public domain is expected to be announced at the White House within next few days, perhaps Wednesday, coincident with the visit to Washington of leaders in the recent Houston and New York meetings of oil men. The oil leaders are going to Washington to confer with Secretary of Interior Wilbur, who has formerly requested from the Department of Justice an opinion as to the legality of the new agreement. After their talk with Wilbur the oil men will call at the White House.

Although no official statement has yet come from the White House, it is learned that a cursory examination of the recent agreement between members of the Amn Petroleum Institute to curb the 1929 production to the 1928 figure is not regarded as contravening the provisions of the Sherman or Clayton acts.

It is said to be the President's opinion that the serious phase of the situation is in over-drilling in various competitive fields. The Petroleum Institute, together with the Oil Conversation Board, arrived at this conclusion, but so far has failed to decide upon corrective measures. It has been suggested federal legislation might be invoked, but, in the opinion of the President, this would eventually lead, as in other instances, to price fixing by the government.

Bethlehem at Capacity.

Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, addressing the annual meeting stated the company's operations were currently running at approximate capacity. He stated that while it was too early to prognosticate what the first quarter's earnings would be, he said he was sure stockholders would be "well pleased with the result."

Mr. Grace said: "We feel we are in a position to share any prosperity with stockholders. Our financial condition is sound, so we can see no need for new financing for any project now in sight. Therefore we can properly, fairly and liberally reward common stockholders in the future."

KSU Doubles Net.

The Kansas City Southern Railway reports consolidated net income for the year ended December 31, 1928, totaled $2,941,287, after fixed charges, equal, after preferred dividends, to $7.01 on 299,599 common shares against $1,897,666, or $3.53 a share, in 1927.

Improvement is due mainly to non operating income which last year amounted to $1,898,702 against $810,568 in 1927.

Miami Earnings Rise.

Miami Copper Company reports net income of $1,842,379 for the year ended December 31, 1928, after depreciation, but before depletion, equal to $2.46 a share on 747,116 capital shares, against $1,142,457, or $1.53 a share in 1927.

Actual Copper Shortage.

F. H. Brownell, vice-president of American Smelting & Refining Company, at the annual meeting stated that earnings this year during January and February were at annual rate of $9.65 a share on the 1,829,940 shares of no par common now outstanding. This compares with $8.24 a share reported for 1928. Mr. Brownell did not think that price of copper would go materially higher. He said: "The price has not been put up by producers, but by the consumers as there is an actual physical shortage of copper and with consumers willing to pay a premium for metals, producers cannot hold price down. The limit to advance will be the coming in of substitutes. These however, are coming in very slow."

Sinclair Pipe Profits Gain.

The Sinclair Pipe Line Company reports for the year 1928 net income of $8,388,285 after interest, federal taxes, etc., compared with profit of $5,367,959 in 1927.

Devonian Surplus Lower.

Balance sheet of the Devonian Oil Company as of December 31, 1928, shows a decline in profit and loss surplus of $39[illegible],530, with that item now standing at $232,424 as compared with $628,954 on December 31, 1927.

LOCAL OILS FOLLOW TREND IN NEW YORK

Trading was moderately active and price movements were narrow in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today.

Oil stocks here displayed a firm tone in reflection of the strong buying in the petroleum division on the New York Stock Exchange, where prices for the leading oils were up from 1 to 3 points. The best grade oil stocks led the movement in New York conveying the impression that well informed interests were becoming more aggressive in their bidding for the shares. Arrangements for curtailment of world production are expected to result from the conferences now in progress between leaders of the industry here and abroad and the spirit of conciliation evident in statements made public the last few days indcates that the most influential interests in the industry are determined to bring some kind of order out of the chaotic situation resulting from the indiscriminate production of crude over the past few years.

In the local manufacturing group there were no conspicuous price changes. Aluminum Goods showed a firm tone and was thought to be under accumulation for the long pull. Buyers of this issue have shown no disposition to push their market up, but it has been noted that the stock has met the strongest kind of support when it has sagged back around the 30-level on one or two occasions recently. This company manufacturers aluminum kitchen utensils marketed under two of the best-known trade names and also has a varied output of other aluminum products.

The gas stocks continued to range around the levels prevailing for a week or more. Lone Star was steady, but rather quiet, and the Arkansas issues were handled at prices showing practically no change from yesterday.

The application of the Standard Steel Propeller Company to list its shares has been approved by the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange and the stock was admitted today. There are 20,000 shares of no-par convertible preferred and 350,000 shares of no-par common.

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY OF PITTSBURGH (Transfer Agent)

PEOPLES SAVINGS & TRUST COMPANY OF PITTSBURGH (Registrar)

The following information has been summarized by Mr. George O. Yohe, Chairman of the Board of Mayflower Drug Stores, Inc., from his letter to us:

HISTORY AND BUSINESS

Mayflower Drug Stores, Inc., a Pennsylvania Corporation, has arranged to acquire fourteen retail drug concerns in the Pittsburgh area. These stores have been selected out of a group of over one hundred stores, which have been examined under option for several months. They have been in operation an average of over 15 years: are outstanding locations in growing communities, and adaptable to economical chain store operation. The principal downtown store will be opened in the Jenkins Arcade Building, with direct entrances from Liberty Avenue and the Arcade, where a traffic count indicates that 50,000 to 60,000 people pass daily.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The proceeds of the sale of this stock will be used to purchase the stores to be acquired presently and others on which it is expected that options now held, will be exercised. The right is reserved to reject any stores and to substitute any other stores which meet the approval of the Board of Directors.

SALES AND EARNINGS

Sales and net earnings accruing to the owners of these fourteen concerns and the pro forma net earnings if these concerns had been consolidated, for the three years ended December 31, 1928; after, in each case, eliminating non-recurring charges averaging $3,372.72 annually and after providing for Pennsylvania Capital Stock Taxes and Federal Taxes at 12%, as computed by Pace, Gore & McLaren and Richter and Company, certified public accountants, were as follows:

	Sales	Net Earnings Accruing to Former Owners	Pro Forma Net Earnings
1926	$1,444,304.99	$125,812.45	$101,565.30
1927	1,421,991.37	128,873.38	104,956.82
Average	1,411,413.74	124,016.02	100,996.00

The average pro forma net earnings, as above, for the fourteen concerns presently to be acquired, are slightly in excess of the dividend requirements of the entire amount of convertible preference stock to be outstanding, giving no effect to the employment of $875,000 to be received by the Corporation upon final payment; the additional stores to be acquired may be expected to double the volume and corresponding net earnings indicated above which would show preference dividend earned twice and earnings in excess of $1.00 per share of common stock.

In determining the above pro forma net earnings, salaries for managers of the stores in lieu of former owners services, other store salaries, and rentals have been included at the amounts the management proposes to pay; provision has been made for depreciation of furniture, fixtures, equipment and lessees improvements as determined by the American Appraisal Company; general administration expense incidental to chain store operation has not been included as buying and operating economies can reasonably be expected to more than offset this item. Central management and modern merchandising methods should increase materially the volume of business transacted by these stores.

PRO FORMA BALANCE SHEET

Giving effect to the acquisition of fourteen retail drug concerns and the issue of 50,000 units of Capital Stock, (each unit consisting of one share of Convertible Cumulative Preference Stock and one share of Common Capital Stock) and the issue of 50,000 additional shares of Common Capital Stock.

Holand, Secretary, have been identified with successful local chain drug situations for many years. Mr. Mark K. Solomon, Treasurer, has been treasurer of the principal Baltimore, Md. chain for fifteen years. Mr. George O. BUGS BAER Says

HOW ABOUT THE CHILDREN'S AMENDMENT?

SOME years ago we informed the public that the Constitution was being chewed up by the mice of amendments.

"Bugs" Baer

The Constitution started out to be a fairly good road map. Now, it is regarded as a scenario, subject to change without notice.

So many amendments have been tacked to the original chorus that the tail is now longer than the kite.

And the string is busted.

In spite of the fact that the preamble starts with the plural, we, the people, all the amendments have been very singular.

The eighth article states there shall be no cruel and unusual punshment visited upon the people.

Yet, the Grassy Sprain Golf Club has an island hole that violates this business.

The general welfare and the blessings of liberty of 1787 were too astigmatic to forsee the lack of parking spaces of 1929.

The provisions for the common defense and the insurance of domestic tranquillity were both rash horoscopes of enthusiastic patriots.

At that time, the founders of the nation could not realize that 150 years later it would be impossible to use your radio while the electric refrigerator was running.

In 1787, the American home was a castle.

It was supreme, the highest court in the land and the refuge of the exhausted.

Now, the American home is an annex to a three-car garage.

We are forced to agree with Volstead, Jones or any other legislator who is anxious to buy a new dress for the Statue of Liberty.

We need more amendments in order to prevent the Constitution from getting the upper hand.

The Eighteenth Amendment is neither autocratic nor monarchial. You can still have liquid liberty—if you can afford it.

The girls can vote for anybody picked out by the playboys of the National Republican Committee.

Everybody has an amendment now except the children.

The proposed Article XX or the Twentieth Amendment, seems to have been shuffled in the scramble for enforced civilization. This amendment prohibits child-labor and has been adopted by Arizona, Arkansas, California, Montanna and Wisconsin.

It has been rejected by both Houses in 24 states and by one House in 10 states.

We're sorry for you, children, but the idea of an amendment seems only to help grown-up people who are old enough to resent interference.

News dispatch says—

LONDON—Scotland Yard is considering the adoption of a novel trap for bandits in motor cars. The device consists of a mat of steel tentacles and wire chains, placed across the road. When the bandit car crosses the mat the wires and chains grip the chassis and entangle it in such a manner that a fast-moving car is stopped in less than 100 yards.

Of course the bandits must agree to play fair, and not make a sudden turn down a side street.

MOTHER TRUTH'S MELODIES

IN SPITE of eugenics, disinclination and companion marriage there are still quite a few tiny tots who need instruction in good behavior. In order to remedy this situation, various lyrics from "Mother Truth's Melodies," published in 1888 by Mrs. E P. Miller, will be reprinted from time to time in this department. "Our hope," says Mrs. Miller, in her foreword, "is that the truths presented, even if not fully understood at first, will leave their impress, and in so far as they fill the little minds, will keep out falsehood and false ideas."

The Temperance Child,
"Mama, if you'd have me
Be a temperance child,
You must give me only
Food that's pure and mild,
Highly seasoned dishes
Make the stomach crave
Stronger things; and often
Lead to a drunkard's grave."

Our little readers are urged to memorize the above exhortation and recite it whenever their mothers serve hot tomales for breakfast.

Metropolitan Planners Should Be Kept on Job

A resolution has been introduced in the Legislature to continue in existence the Metropolitan Plan Commission, which prepared the tentative charter for a Pittsburgh metropolitan district, after years of work and months of compiling suggestions received and working them into a coherent instrument to comply as nearly as possible with these suggestions. Then to have politicians in Harrisburg tear their document to pieces.

As suggested in a recent editorial in The Sun-Telegraph, the commission should be continued. Its members could not be blamed were they reluctant to serve longer, considering the lack of attention its creative work received in the State Capital, but it is to be hoped the Legislature will continue it in force and that the public spirit of the commission members will outweigh their indignation at the outrageous treatment they have received.

Those who emasculated the commission charter had scant reason for doing as they did. The commission, in preparing to frame its charter, sat in Pittsburgh for weeks. It received suggestions from numerous organizations and individuals, including leading associations in varied activities, and persons in private and political life. It sent out thousands of letters in order to obtain opinions from individuals and groups, including our City Council.

Long ago, sensing that the political element was lukewarm toward the work being done by the commission, The Sun-Telegraph pointed out that the place to make the charter was in Pittsburgh and not in Harrisburg. It urged that matters at issue be threshed out here so that agreement could be reached and a charter on which all could unite be drafted. We all know what happened.

Yet our representatives in Harrisburg, at least some of them, realize that the work of the commission has been of great value, and would continue it in existence. The public subscribes to that view and will insist that the work that it does on the charter in the legislative interim be given real recognition.

Location for Town Hall Soon to Be Selected

The public is pleased with the announcement that work on Pittsburgh's new $6,000,000 town hall soon will be under way. Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, says tentative sites for the structure have been narrowed down by elimination and that from among those remaining under consideration one thought to be most suitable will be chosen before the end of May.

Study of sites still included as the prospective location of the community structure is being made by the Commissioners, County Department of Public Works and the town hall committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which originally sponsored the movement to erect a building for the use of the public. The Downtown, North Side and Oakland districts remain as those which still have a chance of having the institution as its own.

The need for a town hall has been evident for a number of years. The fact that it will not be available for a long time after actual construction is begun makes slowness in selecting a site appear like a waste of time, but in a matter of this kind many things are considered. It is gratifying to know that we must hold our patience but a short time more before the matter will be settled definitely.

Kiss for Health

Osculation Good for Sluggish Hearts and Blood Circulation

Science has discovered what most of us between the ages of 8 and 80 have long known to be a fact. Osculation is no mere courtesy or expression of affection. It is an exercise that makes for health by speeding up sluggish hearts and increasing the circulation of the blood. So potent is its effect that even a group of chorus girls from a Broadway revue responded to the stimulus.

Now we shall expect to find physicians and surgeons prescribing "Three kisses daily, one before each meal." Sweethearts spooning in parks or parked automobiles may produce certificates from medical advisors recommending osculation, especially in cold weather, and thus defy the police.

Youths who press unwelcome kisses on girls will be able to explain that they did so purely for the improvement of the maids' health or because it is what the doctor ordered. The scientific discovery really is boundless in its influence.

Stodgy husbands of middle age or more may find themselves kissing their wives with greater frequency and ardor than ever in the history of their married life—and what a difference that would make in matrimony and the whole course of domestic relations!

That British Rum-Runner

A Simple "Explanation."

A small British ship, with sails to make it look innocent, and a little engine to kick it along with considerable speed, was engaged in bootlegging near New Orleans.

Invited to stop by a United States coast guard cutter, the trim little British rum runner paid no attention, ran away. It happened again, and the coast guard cutter sank the little British boat. It won't "rum run" any more.

The British demand an explanation. The explanation is that our gunners shoot well. No other explanation is needed. Suppose we sent smugglers to British coast towns and they refused to stop on orders of a British captain. What do you think would happen?

Tales That Are Told

The Lesser Evil

PILSON, the village grocer, and his wife were on a visit to their son, who was captain of the school football team. The occasion was an important match, and Pilson persuaded his parents to stay till Monday.

The next morning (Sunday) the boy accompanied his parents to church, where Pilson, senior, disgusted the congregation by joining in the singing with a voice which almost drowned the organ.

Young Pilson was furious. After church he said to his father:

"Dad, I do hope when you come again you'll sing a bit lower. Everybody was grinning at you."

"It's all right, my boy; it couldn't be 'elped," said Pilson, senior. "You see, if I hadn't 'ighered my voice they'd 'a' 'eard your mother."

Another

THE young son of a wealthy man was engaged in a clerical capacity by a friend of his father, who undertook to try and make something of him. He was, however, shiftless to the last degree, and nothing he said could be relied upon.

One day his employer called him into his office and gave him a sound lecture. He dwelt chiefly on his prevarication, and wound up by saying:

"You know, James, that you are always lying."

"Sir," said James, "I would have you remember that I am a gentleman!"

"There you go again," said his employer.

The Horse for Him

FARMER HAYSEED was notoriously mean, and having purchased a horse at the market sale, he wondered whether he had not been too extravagant.

However, he led the animal home and gave it a pail of clean water. The horse sniffed at it with dignified disapproval and walked away.

Next the farmer gave it a feed of corn, but once again his generosity was refused.

"Ah," murmured Hayseed to himself, "if only I was sure ye were a good worker, ye're just the horse I've been lookin' for."

Proverbs Barred

THE milkman wiped the whitish gray mud from his clothes and gazed wretchedly after the runaway horse. Then he glanced at the dirty white puddles that covered the ground.

A crowd had gathered to watch the fun. Suddenly he turned upon them.

"Look here," he shouted, adopting a threatening attitude, "the first idiot who says a word about its being no use crying over spilt milk, I'll punch his head for him!"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was two fellows from a nice quiet neighborhood brought up in police court, and Jones was explaining to the judge why he hit Smith so hard.

"He called me a liar, your Honor, and a thief, and a fool and a chicken thief and a forger and a convict and a gunman and a gangster and a bootlegger and a bounder."

"Did you call him all that stuff, Smith?" says the judge, looking cross.

"No, your Honor, of course I didn't. I didn't call him a chicken thief because I forgot about that, and I didn't even know he was a bootlegger."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

MR. ALLISON STREETER can't understand restless wives.

They make him mad.

Why can't they be satisfied with their homes and the household chores as their mothers were?

A great many gentlemen are joining the indignant Mr. Streeter in asking these questions. They, too, want to know why wives leave home. Any housekeeper can tell them.

Wives leave home because homes aren't homes any more. They are mere service stations. Time was when homes were important industrial centers in which a woman accumulated pride and power.

Great-grandmother Wilson's hand-woven sheets, great-aunt Eleanor's peach conserve, established records in the community. Housework swung from rug weaving to the brewing of medicines. It took expert craftsmanship to be a housekeeper 100 or even 50 years ago. Harder work? Yes—immeasurably harder work. But work which satisfied a woman's self-respect and gave her a definite authority in her community.

Homes are denatured now.

MEN HAVE TAKEN THEM OUT.

Men have commercialized housework.

Men bake the bread now. Men weave the rugs—men sew the clothes—men do the canning and pickling—men make the medicines.

Homes, as they stand today, are empty husks. There is no work within them upon which an energetic, constructive spirit can feed.

That's one reason why wives leave home.

But I think there is an even deeper reason—one which reaches farther back into the relationship of life.

Housekeeping as a one-woman performance has always been a doubtful experiment. The original housekeeping wasn't a one-woman performance, it was a communistic industry.

Primitive women did their housekeeping en masse.

They gathered in groups to grind their acorns, bake their bread, weave their blankets, wash their clothes, tend their babies. They did an enormous amount of work, but they did it TOGETHER.

They did not labor in a vacuum of loneliness as the individual houseworker does. They were continually enlivened and stimulated by each other's companionship—instructed by each other's workmanship.

They worked together as men work together.

Few men would endure the isolation during their working hours which they expect women to endure as a matter of course. Their dispositions would be wrecked and their actual technique would suffer. Save for those students and scientists who are forced, by the nature of their service, to work alone, most workers do better when stimulated by their companions.

Women hate isolation as much, if not more, than men. They are seeking to escape it by going into offices or by gadding the streets. The radio and the telephone cannot lift that isolation—they need actual contact with other human beings.

The isolated home is doomed. More and more our housework is becoming communistic.

Community nurseries, community sewing rooms, community clinics, kitchens, and kindergartens are coming into being and calling back into the domestic circle many of the restless wives who now refuse to be found in the empty house.

"COLUMBUS OF SPACE"

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE super-universe is now sweeping the imagination of the whole thinking world to unwonted heights of exaltation. The star islands of distant space have become more captivating than ever were the coral groups of the Southern oceans in the adventurous days of the early navigators. It is certain that this coming summer, when the golden corner of the galaxy where the boundaries of Scorpio, Ophiuchus and Sagittarius meet, glows high above the Southern horizon in the warm July midnights, new thousands of eyes will be turned to see the far-off twinkling of the hundred million stars which form that stellar metropolis of our particular universe. The true "Columbus of Space" is the American astronomer, Harlow Shapley, who has made known this great center of the Milky Way system.

But, with his associates and compeers, he has likewise disclosed the character of the dimly-seen specks of nebulous light lying far beyond our vast system, which we now know as the "island universe." The most conspicuous of them—none is truly "conspicuous" except to supreme powers of photographic vision—are whirling wonders whose fiery spires, made of stars and star-stuff, stretch across trillions of miles of space around them—immense tentacled monsters of the fathomless cosmic deep.

Yet each is apparently a milky way resembling that in which we dwell under the guard of our little sun, a most humble member of the glittering assemblage, where 10,000,000,000 other, and many enormously greater, suns are herded by gravitation. And all these herds of glowing stars are shepherded together into a super-order that may extend to infinity. How little and how great is man; an atom lost in this immensity, yet a mind that all but comprehends it.

It is claimed by some that science is adumbrating a new religion. There can be no religion without the recognition of a higher, more perfect power. Astronomy is anything but atheistic. Some might say, however, that it suggests a divine hierarchy. Does one single supernal will govern the details of all this multifold flock of universes? Does it rule in the spiral of Andromeda as in the Milky Way? Even the old theocratic systems postulate orders of angels and lower gods. If the Greek mind had to deal with the problem it might invent a Zeus for the super-universe—the universe composed of universes—and Neptunes, Apollos and Dises of the widely separated divisions, the island universes. The Greek would have felt no difficulty on that score, because his religious ideas were aesthetic but not ethical, except with thinkers like Socrates. None of his gods was moral. Zeus, the head, was the chief of the rakes. But an ethical religion, such as Christianity, stands on a different basis. This basis is untouched by the physical revelations of science. Earthly physics may admit the possibility of physical laws unknown to us operating in an outside universe; but earthly ethics can suppose only one moral law. The essential principle which opposes right to wrong is not altered by the contradictions of custom; it will always be found unchanged in character, underlying every ethical question, whether that question arises under one form of civilization or another. Right and wrong—those are the opposed poles of the lodestone of ethics, however varying the precise ideas of what is right and what wrong may be, in consequence of environment differences.

Bible Passages

A Prayer of David

(Psalm 86)

BOW down thine ear, O Lord, hear me: for I am poor and needy.

Preserve my soul; for I am holy: O thou my God, save thy servant that trusteth in thee.

Be merciful unto me, O Lord: for I cry unto thee daily.

Rejoice the soul of thy servant: for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.

For thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon thee.

Give ear, O Lord, unto my prayer; and attend to the voice of my supplications.

In the day of my trouble I will call upon thee: for thou wilt answer me.

Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord; neither are there any works like unto thy works.

All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name.

For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone.

Teach me thy way, O Lord; I will walk in thy truth: unite my heart to fear thy name.

I will praise thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart: and I will glorify thy name for evermore.

For great is thy mercy toward me: and thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell.

O God, the proud are risen against me, and the assemblies of violent men have sought after my soul; and have not set thee before them.

But thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, longsuffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth.

O turn unto me, and have mercy upon me; give thy strength unto thy servant, and save the son of thine handmaid.

Shew me a token for good; that they which hate me may see it, and be ashamed: because thou, Lord, hast holpen me, and comforted me.

The Rhyming Optimist

He Who Loves Best

HE who loves well must always find
Excuse for every glance unkind,
Must never heed
Cold word or deed,
And must, ofttimes, be wisely blind.

He who loves well must learn to keep
Some rare dreams hidden, safe and deep;
From even Love's eyes
He must devise
Some refuge where no doubts can creep.

He who loves best . . . ah! he must see
Beyond love's utmost ecstasy,
For he must know
When love would go,
And he must bravely set love free.

Isn't It So?

When lightning strikes, there is no time for arbitration.

The Siamese Triplets

By Herbert Kaufman

AGRICULTURE is not entering upon evil days, but emerging from them.

There's scarce a century between the scythe and the combine, the flail and the thresher, the pointed stick and the chilled plow.

Pigs and cows and bees have just started to go to college. Soil analysis, selective seeds, blight prevention and pest fighting are new-born babes.

And please note that Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, widow of the Harvester's inventor, died so recently that taxes on her estate weren't settled until 1925.

Alfalfa hadn't reached the dictionary, much less the range, when Cleveland left the White House. And paved rural roads waited upon the automobile.

The last quarter century introduced agriculture to more improvements, more exactness, and more living comforts than the whole procession of deceased ages.

American soil has barely opened its eyes upon possibility and dares not yet believe what marvels and wonderments intensification will bring from its Protean fertilities.

Everything up to now has been done mainly by hit and miss, or guess and fumble.

Then suddenly, innovation, after snubbing him for aeons, descends upon the farmer, requiring the complete revision of tools and rules, pressing upon his bewildered brain facts and formulas and efficiencies—time-savers and waste-checkers such as trade and industry took hundreds of years to absorb and digest into their systems.

Budget, balance sheet and depreciation—silage, nitrogening and dairy testing—the animalization of grain—the forced maturing of meat and the evolution of super milk and egg strains weren't written on the farthest horizon of past imagination.

Agriculture on the decline? Ananias statistics and pessimism never conspired upon a more mischievous lie!

Everything the world begins to lack, grows and lies or browses upon local soils.

Professor Experience is simplifying distribution; engineers are devising the fine batch of robots to substitute for man power.

Scientists are cross-examining stalks and husks and tankage, putting 'em through test-tube quizzes to glean further values for packers and manufacturers, dairymen, paper mills and sugar bowls.

They're educating refuse-heaps to become future bank accounts.

The universe, trapped between vanishing food areas and spreading consumption centers, desperately calls upon intelligence everywhere to keep supply in stride with demand.

Commerce and finance are, willy-nilly, compelled to help out. Their own fortunes are inextricably tangled in rural problems. The three estates share a common interest and must pull in the same shafts as peers and team-mates.

They're economic Siamese triplets—one can't sicken without weakening the rest.

Bread box, money box and shoe box are inter-dependent—so are triphammer and locomotive and milking stool. Panic and prosperity alike prove it.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 2.—Something about New York creates an insatiable hunger for publicity. Men and women caught in the impudent audacity of its spell not only make themselves superbly ridiculous but sacrifice reputations to splash on the front page.

Where—save New York—could be found a "Daddy" Browning, for instance? Here was a man born to wealth and culture for business. Yet he became so entranced seeing his name in print he hired a press agent and indulged in antics that made him an international topic for cheap jests.

The Earl Carroll bathtub incident was the tragic climax of a rising taste for headlines. Publicity has inspired actresses to face pneumonia, gamboling through snow barefoot in Central Park, to "fake" suicide and risk their neck climbing flag poles. Picture newspapers added fuel to the craze.

Nothing is too intimate for exploitation. New Yorkers mortgage homes to "dunk the body" in Palm Beach waves in their ache for the rotogravure sections. Speakeasies line their walls with caricatures of those with the spotlight phobia. Even the liason is glorified.

Broadway, especially, always has a picaresque freebooter out to gain fleshly enjoyments, power and fame through the newspaper puff. More than likely he is one of those arch-swindlers who has mastered the shadiest technique in Wall Street, but he backs a show or supper club and becomes a celeb.

The late "Diamond Jim" Brady was a conspicuous example of the growing guild. He was an astute business man who piled up millions Yet nightly he decorated himself in a fantastic array of jewels to strut up and down theater aisles at first nights with a Dolly sister on each arm.

From Jim Fiske to Arnold Rothstein, the White Way has had an outstanding figure, with few morals and less manners, upon whom it bestows its mantle of fame. It haloes them with mystery and grandeur and people, fascinated by the glamour, long to know them—even indeed to become familiars.

There are several press agencies whose chief activities are devoted, sub rosa, to making celebrities. The clients are mostly newly rich longing to give the tail of the metropolitan lion a twist. They are ballyhooed by "stunts"—outfitting a trick apartment, giving dinners to frayed noblemen or authoring a "ghost-written novel. Many pay as high as $30,000 a year for such exploitation.

There is a type of Manhattan buccaneer, who, despite frequent exposures, rarely fails to find his galaxy of shining marks yearly. This year he took more than a dozen from the Social Register for a buggy ride. He works carefully and with precision.

No matter how strict the by-laws he wiggles into an exclusive club. His profession is vaguely defined as "in the street." He is a prince of entertainers and always sending clusters of orchids to wives of new acquaintances.

His is "the smart racket." When he has collected sheep for the shearing, he gives them a rush phone call. He is on the inside of a warm one and if they'll hurry the check he will include them in the loot. They usually fall.

"You like," writes Manhattan Traveling Man, "to give an impression New York is just another hick town. Do you know that back in your home burg the leading merchant is featuring bustles?"

Don't be that way. It's just Gay Ninety week back there.

A critic on Broadway plays complains all the musical plays these days are only for the young who like vodeo-do boo-boop-a-doop and collegiate stamping. Well, as one of the old front rams I don't care that for lavender and old lace sentiment or seventeenth century swashbucklers storming the moated castle. I like to cup an ear and imagine myself the handsome young man in white flannels with oiled hair stepping out from the bevy of girls, to sing: "Why Make a Fuss Over Me?" Then they wheel me home.

Cables Frank T. from Havana: "Did you hear about my finnicky uncle who insisted upon two practice swings before his hanging?"

Don't you think I ever go any place? They cracked about him in a Broadway show early this season.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

IN YOUR home circle do you follow only the line of conversation in which you are particularly interested?

Naturally, if you do, you relate facts over and over again until they become very tiresome to the other members of the family group.

You may be the kind who becomes wholly absorbed in any subject which interests you and you cannot be led to discuss other matters.

This quality can be carried to a tiresome excess when talked about night after night, week in and week out.

It may be the subject of expenses in the home.

You think that frequent repetition will impress the family with the importance of retrenchment.

Very likely it has the opposite effect.

You may be interested in some new organization concerning which your whole conversation relates.

There must be variety at home as well as abroad.

The more new and pleasing subjects brought up in the home the more enjoyable the time spent there.

Don't try to force upon the family the one or two subjects in which you are enthusiastically interested.
